No Reds Left On Payroll, Truman Tells Federal Bar

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman said last night that, thanks to the loyalty program, not a single person adjudged to be a Communist remains on the Government payroll.

He invited anybody who knew of a Communist in the Government service to give his information to the Attorney General or the FBI.

The Chief Executive, in a speech before the Federal Bar Association at the Statler, obviously was aroused over charges of Communist infiltration in the Government, especially the State Department. However, he made no direct mention of Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.), who touched off the uproar.

Reds Not a Major Threat

Mr. Truman said that proportionately there were fewer Communists in the United States than in any other large country in the world. Those the country does have, he said, were "noisy," "troublesome" and "despised," but were not a major threat.

"The greatest threat comes from Communist imperialism abroad, where the center of its military and economic strength lies," he said. "The real danger is that communism might overrun other free nations and thus strengthen itself for an ultimate attack against us."

He told what the United States is doing to fight communism, took a crack at those who publicly denounce men as Communists without proof, alluded to "politics" and selfish partisanship, and said:

"Now I am going to tell you how we are not going to fight communism. We are not going to transform our fine FBI into a Gestapo-like secret police. We are not going to try to control what our people read and say and think. We are not going to turn the United States into a right-wing totalitarian country in order to deal with a left-wing totalitarian threat.

Not to End Democracy

"In short, we are not going to end democracy. We are going to keep the Bill of Rights on the books. We are going to keep those ancient, hard-earned liberties which you lawyers have done so much to preserve and protect.

"If we all work together to maintain and strengthen our democratic ideals, communism will never be a serious threat to our American way of life. The example we set for free men everywhere will help roll back the tide

Safes Unlocked at Night

Laxity in Handling Secrets Brings Pentagon Crackdown

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Department of Defense has ordered a crackdown on careless handling of secret documents by some of its officials.

A recent order declares that "security surveys indicate that there have been numerous incidents of interoffice transmission of highly classified material" in which established security instructions have been ignored.

Following the warning—issued last week—officials have begun a series of spot checks. Personnel charged with secret and top secret papers must produce them or a signed receipt showing that they have been turned over to others in the department authorized to receive them.

"Should neither the document nor a receipt be produced," read the order, "an investigation will be initiated by the Security Division to locate the material and to fix responsibility for the loss or improper transfer of the document."

A Defense spokesman said the order referred only to improper transfer or loss of secret documents by officials of the Office of the Secretary of Defense, but that a broader order is being prepared.

The latter will deal with similar carelessness discovered in which safes containing secret papers were left unlocked overnight, and documents were discovered on desks during the day while the office was temporarily unoccupied.

For a first violation of such security orders, it was said, the officer or employe will have a notation put in his security file and his supervisor will be notified. Repeated offenses may result in transfer, court martial or dismissal of the person as a "bad security risk," said the spokesman.

House Votes Hospital Bed Boost for VA

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The House yesterday put reverse English on the congressional economy drive by voting a 16,000-bed, 237-million-dollar expansion of the veterans hospital program.

The so-called Rankin bill, overriding President Truman's cutback in veterans' hospital construction, was called up under the 21-day discharge rule and whooped to passage by a voice vote.

Economy forces meanwhile met their first setback on another front, as the House resumed voting on the 29-billion-dollar omnibus appropriation bill.

Instead of slashing the big measure, the House voted a one-million-dollar net increase in the Treasury-Postoffice "chapter" to provide training for 4900 members of the Coast Guard Reserve.

Cut of Billion Asked

Aggregate floor savings in the pooled appropriation measure, which totaled only $8,700,000 before yesterday's voting, thus sagged back to a $7,700,000 net. Republicans have urged a cut of at least a billion dollars more in all Government outlays, on top of a billion- dollar committee cut.

Their economy drive seriously stalled last week, but yesterday's million-dollar increase was the first addition to the bill.

Excess Profits Tax Asked

The House Ways and Means Committee, which has been voting excise tax cuts faster than the House has slashed spending, meanwhile took a day off.

Representative Herman P. Eberharter (D., Pa.), one member of the group, proposed the committee approve a one billion dollar excess profits tax on corporations to help offset the cuts.

Excise tax reductions already voted by the committee total 335 million dollars. Eberharter said he feared the excise cuts may reach as high as $1,500,000,000 before the group is through.

"Even if the committee closes the loopholes, as recommended by the President, there would still be a net revenue loss of approximately a billion dollars."

Truman and Gray Opposed

Yesterday's House approval of the Rankin bill directing the Veterans Administration to go ahead with plans for 24 new hospitals and additions to 13 others came in the face of President Truman's cutback in the program more than a year ago.

Mr. Truman said the 16,000 additional beds were not needed and medical personnel is not available to staff them. Veterans Administrator Carl R. Gray also wrote the House committee the Rankin additions would "aggravate the staffing problem."

But Representative Dwight Rogers (D., Fla.) told the House "nothing is too good for our veterans" and more than a score of House members took the floor for the increase.

8.5 Million More Backed For Security

The Senate Finance Committee has agreed to blanket an added 8,500,000 persons under Social Security, including self-employed and domestic workers, Chairman Walter F. George (D., Ga.) announced yesterday.

This was a sharp cutback in the 11 million increase voted by the House last year and way under the 20 million additional coverage sought by President Truman.

A spokesman said the committee was "practically unanimous" in all its decisions on coverage. He said actions on tax rates and benefits will be announced later. Some key committee members said the tax rates may be frozen at present levels.

The Senate committee agreed with the House in adding five million self-employed workers in cities, but refused to include 2,400,000 State and local Government workers already covered by retirement plans.

Armed Services Barred

It also refused to include 10 million farmers and farm laborers, 1,500,000 persons in the armed services and 1,500,000 railroad workers. It is still considering inclusion of 2,400,000 Federal employes and 300,000 farm-processing workers.

The House bill takes in 3,800,000 State and local government employes if the States make an agreement with the Federal Government. Because of heavy opposition from police, firemen and teachers, the Senate group voted to exclude those that have their own retirement plans. The groups feared they might lose rights under their systems if brought under the Federal law.

The Senate Committee also decided that tips can't be taxed for social security purposes. The House bill would make them taxable income for this purpose. The committee broadened the definition for domestic servants to increase the total in the House bill from 800,000 to one million. Almost 700,000 would still be excluded.

Also included by the committee are:

1. 300,000 workers in Puerto Rico and Virgin Islands.
2. 150,000 Americans employed by United States firms abroad.
3. 100,000 "full-time" insurance salesmen.
4. 400,000 employes of non-profit organizations.

The Senate group dropped from the House version 200,000 employes of religious organizations, and refused to provide coverage for 200,000 clergymen. Neither group is protected by present law.

The committee provided coverage for self-employed persons earning $400 or more a year, except doctors, lawyers, dentists, osteopaths, chiropractors, optometrists, Christian Science practitioners, naturopaths, professional engineers, veterinarians and architects.

Other self-employed would include salesmen, taxi drivers, industrial home workers, contract loggers, mine lessees, retail merchants, operators of service stations and all other unincorporated businessmen.

Government Wins Truce For Attempt At Mediation

Embargoes Lifted After Union Accepts U. S. Proposal; New Deadline May 10

By The Associated Press

The Government won a two-week truce last night in the strike originally set for Wednesday by locomotive firemen against four major railroads.

The new strike deadline is May 10.

Chairman Francis A. O'Neill, jr., of the National Mediation Board said that an effort will be made in the meantime to settle the issue in dispute.

This is a demand by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen for an extra fireman on big diesel engines. Two presidential fact-finding boards have found the second fireman—the diesels already are operated by two-man crews of an engineer and fireman—is unnecessary.

Embargo Plans Canceled

The strike was scheduled Wednesday morning against major portions of the Pennsylvania and New York Central systems and against the entire operations of the Southern Railway system and the Santa Fe.

Embargo orders barring long-distance passenger service and Western freight service had already been issued by the Pennsylvania. These were immediately lifted. The Santa Fe also revoked an embargo on livestock and perishable freight. The Southern canceled its plans for a freight and passenger traffic embargo after getting word of the strike postponement.

O'Neill submitted the two-week truce request from here at midday. David B. Robertson, the brotherhood's president, announced his acceptance of the proposal last night after a meeting of brotherhood aides in Chicago.

The Mediation Board today will try to arrange meetings within the next few days in Chicago between the union and the carriers to seek a solution of the long diesel controversy, O'Neill said.

Asks for Meeting Date

Robertson announced the union's decision in a telegram to O'Neill in which he asked O'Neill to "advise the diesel committee when and where the services of the board will be made available."

Robertson said: "I am hopeful that the mediation board can effect a settlement. I hope we can get the settlement in two weeks. But I won't predict."

He added that "we accepted (the postponement proposal) because the board is the highest tri-

Two Networks Hit by Brief Walkouts

A surprise walkout of station engineers and technicians on two radio networks yesterday afternoon caused disruption of some programs and complete shutdown of others. It occurred between 4 p. m. and 6 p. m.

Affected were the AM networks of the National Broadcasting Co. and American Broadcasting Co. and the television network of NBC.

The engineers and technicians are members of the National Association of Broadcast Engineers and Technicians. The Columbia Broadcasting System was not affected. Its engineers are members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

Officials of WRC, the NBC outlet here, said short AM program interruptions occurred at 4:08 and 4:18 p. m., but that AM service continued after that. WNBW, the NBC television station here, received no network service until 6 p. m., and missed the Judy Splinters and Howdy Doody programs. No ABC programs were interrupted here.

NBC issued a first statement from New York saying the strike came there at 4 p. m. without official notice while negotiations were on for a new contract, and that supervisory personnel maintained programs. The present con-

12,000 on Strike, Troops Unloading London Food Ships

London, April 24 (AP).—Troops began unloading strike-bound food ships at London's docks after the government denounced the wildcat walkout as Communist-inspired.

About 1000 soldiers and sailors were ordered to the waterfront after a cabinet meeting.

The strike is an outgrowth of one a year ago. The union tossed out three leaders of the unauthorized dock strike last year. In protest, the dockers began quitting work last Wednesday. By today, the National Dock Labor Board said, more than 12,000 dockers were on strike and 69 ships, many carrying food, were immobilized.

The port's labor force usually has 15,000 to 20,000 working on any given day.

Installers Strike; Phone Tieup Nears

By V. R. Montanari
Post Reporter

Telephone equipment installers went on strike in most of the 48 States and in the District of Columbia yesterday as Federal mediators worked to stave off a Nation-wide telephone walkout threatened for Wednesday morning.

Mediators acknowledged generally that prospects for averting the strike were not good.

Negotiations in the dispute were adjourned in New York yesterday evening with no progress reported. A company spokesman said there was no change in the position of the company.

A Federal mediator scheduled another joint session at 10:30 a. m. today.

An estimated 7000 of the 10,000 installers employed by Western Electric Co., Bell System manufacturing affiliate, had walked out by yesterday afternoon. Phone service had not been affected.

In Washington, the Western Electric area office said last night 193 men had gone on strike and 14 had continued to work yesterday. The figures were disputed by local union spokesmen, who said more than 250 installers here had walked out.

Western Electric installers, who refrained from picketing yesterday because of the 60-day truce, are ready to surround the exchanges with pickets Wednesday morning to keep operators from reaching their posts, according to Harry M. Lentz, vice president of Washington Local 96 of CWA Division 6.

Lentz said the installers would be bolstered on the picket lines by members of other CIO unions, including Government, maritime, shipyard, and transport workers as well as porters and truck drivers.

Immediate cause of the walkout was a dispute over whether six equipment installers should walk through a muddy field in South Bend, Ind., to work on a television tower, and over working conditions at the tower.

The main dispute, however, is over demands of the Communications Workers of America (CIO) for increased wages, and other benefits. The demands are being pushed both by Western Electric workers and by separate unions representing more than 200,000 other telephone workers.

A 60-day truce in the system-wide dispute, called by President Truman, will end at midnight tonight. Since no picket lines were thrown up by the equipment installers yesterday, other union

Coy Proposes Tight Curb on Gambling Data

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

FCC Chairman Wayne Coy proposed yesterday that Congress ban interstate transmission of bets, betting odds and prices paid as the best way to break up syndicated gambling on horseracing and other sports events.

In making the proposal, Coy termed a bill already before the Senate Commerce subcommittee so vague in its definition of gambling information that it could "only lead to confusion, evasion and, in all probability, failure of the law to achieve its objectives."

He was talking about the bill drafted by the Justice Department and presented by Attorney General J. Howard McGrath with the approval of the State and local officials who made up the recent national crime conference here.

Enforcement Up to FCC

The McGrath bill would put the burden of enforcement on FCC through its existing controls over radio, telephone and telegraph concerns. Coy said FCC was not shirking any responsibility but felt that under such a procedure the communications commission "would become hopelessly involved in long drawn-out investigatory prodecures" and thus defeat the real purpose of the legislation.

The FCC measure, on the other hand, would make it a criminal offense for anyone to transmit bets, betting odds or prices paid on races or other events. It would be up to the United States attorneys, under the Justice Department, to prosecute violators.

This Alphonse-Gaston act between Justice and FCC left the Senators in some uncertainty. Chairman McFarland (D., Ariz.) said the subcommittee might end up voting for one bill or the other or a composite of the two. Senator Capehart (R., Ind.) indorsed Coy's proposal as making "much more sense" than the Justice draft.

Theory of Both Is Same

Coy said that the basic theory of both measures is the same—to aid the States in controlling what he called "the wide-spread interstate gambling syndicates." Both would leave it to State and local officials to keep the bookies on the run. He said he thought no bill could completely eliminate them.

But, said Coy, the Justice bill defines gambling in such general terms that FCC would spend years determining its coverage, under a case-by-case method of administrative regulation.

Yet, he said, there is no need for such a sweeping ban on gambling. (Justice proposed a one-hour time lag before radio or television stations could broadcast any race results, plus penalties on communications concerns which transmit information which would "assist" or "facilitate" gambling. The key reformation in gambling, he contended, is the money involved; specifically, the amount bet, the odds at which it is bet and the amount

Court Denies Motion to Set Maragon Free

By the United Press

Federal Judge Jennings Bailey yesterday denied a defense motion to free John Maragon, onetime White House habitue, of the charge that he lied to the Senate's "Five-Percenter" Investigating Committee.

Defense Attorney Irvin Goldstein asked for a directed verdict of acquittal after the Government dropped one of four counts against the dapper onetime bootblack and wound up its case.

The court overruled arguments in which Goldstein challenged legal authority of the Senate Investigating Committee, its questioning of Maragon in secret session, and the evidence that the Government presented.

The first defense witness was Senator Karl Mundt (R., S. D.), a member of the Senate committee. He said Maragon came to his office several days before the session at which the perjury allegedly was committed and asked for an opportunity to testify in the committee's investigation.

Mundt said Maragon, whom he has known for 10 years, carried a newspaper clipping containing critical references to him and appeared agitated.

"He indicated to me the things written were not correct and he wanted to tell the committee they were not correct," Mundt testified.

Maragon, erstwhile friend of presidential aide Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, was indicted for perjury on the strength of testimony he gave last July 28 to a Senate subcommittee investigating the peddling of Washington influence by so-called "five percenters."

The Government said he lied

Parley to Study Federal Drain Of School Districts

Civic leaders from communities across the country with school problems brought on by Federal activities will participate in a national conference here tonight.

The meeting, expected to attract up to a thousand persons, will be held at 8 p. m. in the auditorium of Western High School, 35th and R sts. nw.

Delegations checked in yesterday from Ohio, Alabama, Oklahoma, Washington, Georgia, Mississippi, Michigan, South Carolina, Iowa, Kansas and Indiana.

Dr. Harry C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, will be principal speaker at the conference which will be open to the public.

William A. Early, superintendent of schools in Arlington County, will describe the plight of school districts which through Federal activity have lost taxable land while adding thousands of extra students. Six of the hardest-hit communities will be represented by speakers.

Campaign Planned To Hike Food Gifts To West Berlin

A special drive to step up shipments of CARE food packages to the people of west Berlin will be launched May 1 by the Advertising Council in cooperation with CARE.

Theodore Repplier, president of the Advertising Council, said that State Department consultations reveal that "one out of every four workers in free Berlin is unemployed; and many fathers cannot buy for their families even the meager rations to which they are legally entitled.

"This situation is due directly to the economic strangulation caused by the creeping blockade of the area by the Russians. It is particularly important at this time that we show the west Berliners that Americans are backing them."

CARE is offering packages for $10 and $5.50; and any purchaser may designate that his packages be sent specifically to distressed "free Berliners."

Florida Legislator Is Slain; Retired Meat Cutter Confesses

CHARLES J. SCHUH, Jr.

St. Petersburg, Fla., April 24 (AP).—State Representative Charles J. Schuh, jr., Gov. Fuller Warren's floor leader in the 1949 Florida House of Representatives, was shot to death in his office today by the "lonely hearts" husband of a woman he once represented as an attorney.

Detective Chief John S. Siers reported that Charles Gifford, 71-year-old retired meat cutter, said he killed the 36-year-old legislator because of "rotten politics."

Schuh, shot five times, died in his office before help could reach him. Gifford was seized by an associate of Schuh's in the anteroom of the law office.

The detective said he would file a first-degree murder charge against the slight, stoop-shouldered Gifford Tuesday.

"I will sign a confession," Siers quoted Gifford as saying. "I want to go to a judge and plead guilty—no trial, no anything."

The detective said Gifford was divorced from his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Young Gifford, last November. But Schuh was not involved in that action.

They had met through a lonely hearts club. She is 60 years old, the detective said.

Siers said Schuh, an attorney, represented Mrs. Gifford in a property settlement suit.

Schuh, father of four children, was elected to the Legislature in 1946 and served in the 1947 and 1949 sessions. He was one of Governor Warren's staunchest supporters and led the battle for the State 3 percent sales tax.

Rent Office to Be Fundless By May 26, Woods Testifies

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Housing Expediter Tighe E. Woods yesterday appealed for another year of rent control to protect 38 million tenants.

At the same time he warned that unless Congress acts on a deficiency appropriation, his agency will be flat "broke" on May 26, a month before the present law expires.

The agency, he said, is currently in the process of laying off 1000 persons. Two-thirds of these, he said, went off the payroll as of April 15 and the remainder go next Friday. In all, Woods told the Senate Banking and Currency Committee, his agency has scaled down from 5000 employes to about 3000.

Woods opened the Administration's admittedly uphill fight for a one-year extension—a key plank in President Truman's platform.

In arguing for extension of Federal rent controls, Woods said the housing shortage is still so acute in many sections of the country that there would be an "intolerable" rise in rents if the present law is allowed to die.

Last witness before the committee was Scott Donaldson, Deputy Assistant Secretary of the Air Force, who said he appeared at the request of the Secretary of Defense to urge continuance of Federal rent controls, particularly in those areas where military installations are located.

Artificially Bred Ape-Men Proposed as Race of Slaves

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

A new thesis on evolution and an ultimate application—production by artificial insemination of a race of ape-men slaves—were expounded here yesterday by a Virginia physiologist.

The theory, that man evolved from apes through the process of resisting gravity, was advanced by Dr. S. W. Britton, professor of physiology, University of Virginia.

He spoke at the opening scientific session of the annual meeting of the National Academy of Sciences at 2101 Constitution ave.

Through use of the principles of his new theory, Dr. Britton maintained, man might artificially mate himself to apes to produce a race of ape-men slaves "more useful to us than our present (human) laborers."

If such is to be done, he told reporters, it shouldn't be too long delayed, "since there are only about one million anthropoids left in this world."

The mating could be done by artificial insemination, he said, but only "if we set ourselves about the matter as seriously as we pursue cattle or dog breeding."

This was taken by some of the assembled scientists as a mild rebuke to those biologists and others who say it is impossible to mate man with the higher apes.

Dr. Britton said animal experiments tended to show that man is

Boys Rescued From Cave

Kingwood, W. Va., April 24 (AP). Three teen-age boys were found alive today in the treacherous, rat-infested cave where they got lost on a Sunday expedition.

Members of a searching party telephoned to a neighbor that the boys were all right.

The boys are two brothers and their cousin. Robert, 16, and Eugene, 14, are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Shrout. Junior, 15, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvie Shrout. They live at Pleasantdale, a village near here.

Mayor Thomas d'Alesandro announced the plans yesterday, said the dedication time has not been set. President Truman has been invited.

Mexican Officials Seize Five U. S. Shrimping Boats

Port Isabel, Tex., April 24 (AP).—Five shrimping boats seized by Mexico were the center of an argument tonight over where they were seized. The boats were operating from Texas.

A Mexican gunboat seized the boats south of Port Isabel. Mexico claims they were fishing in Mexican territorial waters.

The boat operators said they were not. Mexico claims its territorial waters extend 9 miles to sea. The United States recognizes a 3-mile limit. The difference has led to seizures of other boats in the past.

The State Department in Washington and shortwave listeners here said two other boats were ordered to Tampico but escaped.

Car With Dead Driver Crashes China Shop

New York, April 24 (AP).—A limousine with a dead chauffeur at the wheel plowed through traffic on Madison ave. today and crashed into the window of a china shop.

None of the customers was injured. The store manager said the Duchess of Windsor had left the store only a few minutes earlier.

Police said the chauffeur, John Clelland, 49, apparently died of a heart attack. The limousine struck two cabs and a parked truck before mounting the sidewalk and ramming the store.

Damage to the store was estimated at more than $5000.

State Dept. Accused Of 'Gestapo' Tactics

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Charges of a "Gestapo" tactics by State Department investigators flared on the Senate floor yesterday, and were promptly denied by the department.

The accusation was made by Senator Mundt (R., S. Dak.), who said he thought the department's intelligence service was to be used abroad but instead of that, "What appears to be a State Department Gestapo is operating as a corollary to the FBI."

His comment came after a speech by Senator Brewster (R., Me.), in which he described how a State Department investigator had allegedly tried to intimidate Kenneth G. Crawford, national affairs editor of Newsweek magazine.

The visit of the investigator to Crawford's New York apartment was a follow-up, Brewster implied, to efforts by Edward W. Barrett, Assistant Secretary of State and former Newsweek executive, to intimidate Crawford.

"Misinformed," He Says

Barrett, in a statement, said that Brewster had been "grossly misinformed by someone."

And in New York, Crawford himself said he was investigated, but all the investigator did "was to invite me to Washington to look into the (State Department security setup, which I did."

Barrett, it turned out, had invited him to make such a survey, feeling that Newsweek coverage of the Communist-infiltration charges by Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.) had been less than objective.

In his speech, Brewster said that Barrett had been the boss, in the Office of War Information, of Owen Lattimore, prime case in McCarthy's accusations. Brewster added that Barrett had been "particularly active in organizing the State Department's counterattack," after Lattimore was accused.

Meantime, the special Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee created to look into McCarthy's charges will press its inquiry, particularly into the Lattimore case, in three days of hearings this week.

Closed Session Today

The first will be a closed session this morning, at which former Communist Editor Louis F. Budenz will be heard. Both McCarthy and Lattimore and his lawyers will attend, as "observers." Budenz has already testified in open hearings.

He said he was told by high Communist officials that Lattimore was a Communist and was undertaking assignments at Communist Party instructions. Lattimore has sworn that he was never a Communist or Red sympathizer.

This evening, at 7 p. m. in the Senate Caucus Room, the subcommittee will hold open hearings. Witnesses will be two former FBI agents, summoned at McCarthy's request, and Dr. Bella V. Dodd, a former high Communist official, expelled from the party last year.

She has already made public an affidavit stating that during her membership and during four years on the national committee of the party she never heard Lattimore mentioned as a Communist or sympathizer.

Wednesday morning, Lattimore will appear again, in open session, to answer the allegations Budenz made about him.

Raid Leader to Appear

On Thursday, again in executive session, the subcommittee will hear Frank Bielaski, the man who led raids by the wartime Office of Strategic Services on the offices of the magazine Amerasia. Government documents, there without authorization, were discovered.

The subcommittee had indicated it planned to look into the Amerasia case, which flared into the news in 1945 and was dropped after two of the people involved were convicted for unlawful possession of Government papers.

Subcommittee Chairman Tydings (D., Md.) said his group will also look into the question of homosexuals in the Federal Government. He made the promise to inquire into this subject in response to demands by Senators Ferguson (R., Mich.), Wherry (R., Nebr.), and Brewster.

In speeches on the Senate floor, the Republicans said it was important to find out if 91 people, discharged by the State Department as security risks by reason of homosexuality, had obtained jobs elsewhere in the Government.

Finally, it appeared that the Tydings subcommittee will also look into the Barrett-Crawford case.

Before Brewster made his accusation about the alleged intimidation, Tydings had announced that two members of his subcommittee, Senators Green (D., R. I.) and Lodge (R., Mass.) would study the whole State Department security investigation procedure. Later in the day, a State Department press officer said the full facts of the Barrett-Crawford incident would be placed before them.

Brewster's Description

According to Brewster's description, here is what happened:

"When Senator McCarthy's charges against Owen Lattimore were made public, Mr. Barrett was particularly active in organizing the State Department's counterattack.

"Using his former relations with Newsweek as a fulcrum, he began sending memoranda to Kenneth G. Crawford, Newsweek's national affairs editor, accusing Newsweek of not giving the State Department a fair break."

Brewster said the department took exception to an item in the March 20 issue of Newsweek that spoke of "leaks" in the State Department.

After hearing the objection, Brewster said, Crawford offered to supply affidavits and names of the "leaks." He said Barrett first told Crawford he didn't think Crawford wanted to proceed in that fashion.

But later, Brewster said, Lincoln White, a State Department press officer, said the department wanted the names.

New Caller Cited

Next, said Brewster, a man who identified himself as Edwin D. Lennerts of the State Department division of security, called at the Crawford home in New York.

Lennerts wanted to know, Brewster said, if Crawford had any back copies of the former New York newspaper "PM," for which Crawford had written a series of articles "unfriendly' to Senator Tydings.

The Crawfords said they did not have the files and suggested that Lennerts go to a public library.

"I can only reach one conclusion from this incident," Brewster told the Senate. "Either Mr. Lennerts is one of the stupidest investigators that ever worked for the Government and is totally unqualified for his job, or this call was made for the deliberate purpose of intimidating an editor of our free press."

Later, Brewster said, "Crawford was told the whole thing was a mistake.

In a statement, Barrett replied: "Senator Brewster has been grossly misinformed by someone.

"I never put any pressure of any sort on Kenneth Crawford, an old friend and the very capable national affairs editor of Newsweek. I did absolutely nothing beyond writing him two personal letters indicating that I thought the tone of a few Newsweek articles was unfair and urging him to come to Washington and take a good look at the department's loyalty set-up, which had impressed me as excellent. . . .

"Confident" of Confirmation

"I am confident Mr. Crawford himself will confirm all of this and will be glad to make it clear that I did not and would not attempt to 'intimidate' him in any way, even if I were capable of doing so."

Barrett made public the two letters, both cordial in tone. The one inviting Crawford's inspection said that the department's loyalty procedure was "a matter of vital concern to all of us" and that it would be worth while for Crawford to study it.

This Crawford did.

The question of the McCarthy charges and their investigation was raised later yesterday in a press conference of special State Department Adviser John Foster Dulles.

Dulles, appointed to strengthen bipartisan foreign policy determination, commented that the procedures followed by the Tydings subcommittee "were not the best to arrive at the truth or to avoid unnecessary disunity."

Did he put all the blame on the subcommittee procedure and none on McCarthy's methods, reporters asked.

Dulles replied he did not see "wholly eye to eye" with McCarthy, and conceded that the problem he raised was not best resolved either by "public charges or public hearings."

Truman Reorganization Plan For Four Agencies Criticized

Representative Clare E. Hoffman (R., Mich.) said yesterday former President Herbert Hoover was "gullible" to lend his name to Government reorganization plans.

Hoffman is ranking Republican member of the House Executive Expenditures Committee, holding hearings on President Truman's proposal to put the day-to-day administrative powers of four regulatory commissions in the hands of the commission chairmen.

The plan is based on recommendations of the Hoover Commission on Government Reorganization, and will go into effect automatically May 24 unless vetoed by House or Senate.

Meanwhile, a majority of the Senate Executive Expenditures Committee called for rejection of President Truman's proposal to oust Robert N. Denham as independent counsel for the National Labor Relations Board. It said the move would "destroy public confidence" in the board.

Four dissenting members urged that it be permitted to go into effect, as it will May 24 unless rejected by House or Senate.

Hoffman charged that Mr. Truman is using Mr. Hoover's prestige in an effort to "establish little political dictatorships throughout the Government."

The Senate Executive Expenditures Committee, which is holding simultaneous hearings on the reorganization plan, meanwhile heard similar but less strongly worded criticism from Chairman Edwin C. Johnson, (D., Colo.), of the Senate Commerce Committee.

Johnson said the four commissions involved were meant to be "arms of Congress" handling legislative and judicial functions. They are the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Federal Power Commission, Federal Trade Commission and Federal Communications Commission.

The reorganization plan, he said, would make each commission a "one-man agency" directly subordinate to the President.

Budget Director Frederick J. Lawton urged the Senators to approve the plan as a contribution to Government efficiency and economy. He said it contains safeguards to prevent any change in the commissions' regulatory functions, and to limite the chairmen's power.

J. C. Gibson, representing the Association of American Railroads, and A. E. Lyon, of the Railway Labor Executives Association joined Hoffman in attacking the plan before the House committee.

They said it would give too much power to the chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and destroy the present independence of some ICC agencies.

$5000 Raised Here For College Fund

About $5000 has been raised in the 1950 Washington campaign for the United Negro College Fund, a kick-off meeting at St. John's Parish Hall, 819 16th st. nw., was told last night.

Washington's goal is $33,000 and the drive will wind up the end of May. Edward B. Burling and Robert G. McGuire, jr., are co-chairmen of the local drive and Daniel W. Bell is treasurer.

Reds Due to Control Hainan in 4 to 7 Days

Hong Kong (Tuesday) April 25 (AP).—The Chinese Communists are pouring heavy weapons onto Hainan and Nationalist headquarters on the island have been evacuated, Chinese press reports said today.

"Liberation of the whole island is not far off," trumpeted the pro-Red Ta Kung Pao which has access to official Communist sources. This dispatch from Canton said large shipments of heavy weapons were being put ashore after a sixth landing on the north coast yesterday.

Other Chinese papers here reported the Nationalists withdrew from emergency headquarters at Yulin on Hainan's south coast, after moving across the island Saturday when they pulled out of Hoihow, Hainan's capital on the north coast.

Civil Air Transport, retired United States Major Gen. Claire Chennault's air line announced its last flights out of Hainan were made last night.

Ta Kung Pao said Nationalist "remnants" were fleeing toward Yulin with Red troops from Hoichow "dogging their heels." Red guerillas were "cutting off their retreat and attacking them from different directions," the newspaper added.

Ta Kung Pao's picture of the Hainan situation probably is fairly accurate for two reasons: Its access to official Red sources and Communist officialdom's tendency to be cautiously moderate in reporting the progress of the Hainan campaign.

Within four days to a week, the Reds are expected to be in complete control of the island.

They owe their quick victory, not to the estimated 10,000 to 15,000 regular troops they put ashore starting one week ago, but to more than 60,000 local guerillas who effectively struck the island's garrison forces.

The Nationalists had about 125,000 regular troops, plus a 100-plane air force and a small navy, yet they folded like a house of cards. At Yulin top Nationalist commanders were packing to flee by sea.

A general said Chiang Kai-shek had ordered "total evacuation" of the 13,500-square-mile island. The Hainan governor, Gen. Chen Chi-tang, said the situation was "hopeless." Not many troops are likely to escape.

One Nationalist general on Hainan attributed the defeat to Chiang Kai-Shek's refusal to send the Fiftieth Army of 20,000 men from Formosa. In addition, differences' among Governor Chen, Deputy Gov. Yu Han-mou and the defense commander, Gen. Hsueh Yueh, were common knowledge.

9 Marines Picked Up After 2 Days in Boat

Hamilton, Bermuda, April 24 (AP). Nine United States Marines and three Bermudians were reported picked up safe today after two days in rough seas in a 32-foot fishing boat.

After the boat failed to return Saturday afternoon, United States Air Force search planes were sent out to sweep the sea southeast of Bermuda where the men had intended going fishing.

Truman to Give DFC to Fliers Lost in Baltic

By the United Press

President Truman signed a resolution yesterday granting posthumous awards to the 10 American fliers lost in the Baltic plane incident and the Navy announced they will be given Distinguished Flying Crosses.

The Navy said Mr. Truman himself may present the awards to relatives of the fliers who, the State Department charges, were killed as the result of an "unprovoked" Russian attack on an unarmed Navy patrol plane over the open sea.

The DFC is given in recognition of "heroism or extraordinary achievement while participating in aerial flight" and for "an act in the face of great danger well above normal expectations."

The resolution was rushed through the House and Senate last week. It was approved unanimously in both Houses amid a flurry of angry denunciation of the alleged Soviet action.

(United States officials in London announced another clew to the missing plane—a metal container and 12 signal flares—picked up by Swedish fishermen in the Baltic Sea area where it disappeared.)

Arab Palestine Annexed to Jordan

Amman, Hashemite Jordan, April 24 (AP).—King Abdullah today formally signed documents annexing western Palestine and the Old City of Jerusalem to his Jordan kingdom.

The signing came after a stormy session of Parliament at which at least five Palestinian members voted for delay in acting on the union.

(By formally annexing Arab Palestine, King Abdullah openly defies the seven-nation Arab League which earlier this month in Cairo adopted a resolution threatening sanctions against any member that took over part or all of Arab Palestine. Jordan's representative at the league meeting abstained on the vote.)

2 Confidence Votes Planned by Churchill

London, April 24 (U.P.).—Winston Churchill said today the Labor government's "extravagance" and "class hatred" have brought Britain to the brink of disaster.

The British wartime leader warned that his followers will try to throw the Laborities out of power by forcing two confidence votes Wednesday on the 1950-51 budget.

Churchill, climaxing the opposition attack on Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Stafford Cripps' list of proposed expenditures, accused the government of "amazing dissipation" of Britain's resources.

He charged the Laborites have "mortgaged the future in every way" despite the receipt of nearly five billion dollars in financial aid from the United States.

He caused an uproar which interrupted his speech for several minutes by charging that the Laborite surtax of 95 percent on large incomes was imposed because of "hate."

Five years of Labor rule threaten Britain with extinction, he declared.

The Conservatives will challenge the government on two "intolerable" tax increases proposed by Cripps—the doubled tax on gasoline and the 33 1-3 percent sales tax imposed on trucks by the new budget.

Churchill charged the two tax increases "are designed to force the traveling public and our industry to use nationalized railways, and thus offset by a counter-evil the mounting rise in railway rates and passenger fares."

If the government, whose majority in Commons is only four seats, should lose the two confidence votes it would almost certainly resign and call new elections.

Use of U. S. Farm Surpluses Urged as Part of Foreign Aid

Two Democratic Senators proposed yesterday that Marshall Plan purchases of farm products be used to cut down surpluses in the United States.

Similar amendments to the $3,366,450,000 foreign-aid bill were introduced by Chairman Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.) of the Senate Agriculture Committee and Senator John L. McClellan (D., Ark.).

They would require the Economic Cooperation Administration to spend Marshall Plan funds in the United States any time it buys farm products which are surplus in this country.

Thomas said his amendment, for example, would bar ECA from granting funds for the purchase of Canadian wheat when there is a surplus wheat crop in the United States.

A crop would be considered "surplus" any time it was so declared by the Secretary of Agriculture or whenever the price fell below Government support prices.

McClellan's amendment would leave the determination up to the Secretary of Agriculture.

ECA Administrator Paul G. Hoffman has resisted all attempts to use the Marshall Plan program as a method of dumping surplus American farm products on Europe. An attempt to earmark part of the third-year funds for the purchase of farm products was defeated in the House recently.

Robertson Hits at 'Socialism'

Cincinnati, April 24 (AP).—Senator Robertson (D., Va.) today declared the United States is threatened by a "creeping socialism" that he said could endanger the Nation's democratic institutions.

"Private but properly regulated enterprise in a capitalistic system and personal freedom in a representative democracy are handmaidens, and if one be lost the other is doomed," Robertson said in a speech prepared for the American Mining Congress.

He said that on a recent trip through western Europe he observed "the debilitating effect of that misnomer called 'democratic socialism'," and added that numerous bills introduced in Congress over the past three years would bring the same system to the United States.

"Today," he said, "we see a constant effort to push back the boundary line between government and business and we need to recognize that these efforts may constitute a creeping socialism which can undermine the Constitution and do by indirection what cannot be done directly."

He referred to such things as social security Federal aid to education, compulsory health insurance and various civil rights measures as part of "an attack on our system of private enterprise."

He called civil rights a "deceptive label," adding that the controversial FEPC bill to ban discrimination in employment "would specifically violate at least half of the Bill of Rights amendments to our Constitution."

Many of the world's peoples, Robertson declared, "have been misled into a fateful error—the belief that it is possible to maintain political democracy and representative government in full vigor while yielding freedom of enterprise, and with it the power of control over their economic destinies.

"It is not possible for this to be done," he said. "Political and economic freedoms are root and branch of the same tree."

Vatican Paper Attacks U. N. On Issue of Birth Control

Vatican City, April 24 (U.P.).—The Vatican newspaper Osservatore Romano sharply criticized the United Nations and its Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization today for advocating birth control in backward countries.

"Only an atheistic materialism can ignore the law and the command of the Creator and teach theories and practices which are different and opposed to them," the newspaper said.

Specifically, Osservatore attacked the UNESCO for its booklet titled "Population Problems in India and Pakistan."

The booklet, Osservatore said, exhorted "birth control practices under the usual hygienic, economic and 'family happiness' pretexts," and goes at the problem of overpopulation "in purely material and economic terms."

Osservatore said that the U. N. program for birth control is "a point of departure for propaganda which is inadmissible in the face of civilization and of the Catholic countries, which neither the U. N. nor the UNESCO, in virtue of their nature and office, can ignore."

Osservatore Romano demanded that the U. N. take notice of Catholic sentiments in under-developed countries and not use means in opposition to religious faiths and doctrines.

Paris Has April Snow

Paris, April 24 (AP).—April in Paris was interrupted tonight by a brief snowstorm.

GOP Will Back Berlin Stand, Dulles Feels

John Foster Dulles, a top Republican spokesman on foreign policy, predicted yesterday that Republicans in Congress will back "whatever reasonable measures are needed to maintain our position in Berlin."

He made the statement in commenting on a weekend disclosure by a high Government official that the United States is determined to use force, if necessary, to counter Russia's stepped-up cold war tactics, particularly in Germany.

Dulles discussed the situation with reporters in his first news conference since his recent appointment as a special adviser to Secretary of State Dean Acheson in a move to heal the angry political breach in bipartisan foreign policy.

He made it clear he does not pretend to speak for all Republicans. But he expressed confidence that he and former Senator John Sherman Cooper, another newly appointed Republican adviser to Acheson, will be able to give fellow Republicans "a better understanding of our foreign policies so that they can better judge the adequacy of those policies."

He seemed to feel that mutual consultation will bring understandings that will restore harmony.

"I feel confident that our efforts in this respect will be sympathetically welcomed by Republicans who have, in the past, given ample proof that they are not allergic to bipartisanship in foreign policy," Dulles said.

"If we have war, no one doubts that we would have unity both at home and with our allies. I am confident that if we can achieve that unity now, we will not have war."

Plastiras Offers Reform Program

Athens, April 24 (AP).—Premier Gen. Nicholas Plastiras tonight laid before Parliament a broad program for financial and administrative reform that had been urged by American administrators of aid to Greece. He told the 250-member Parliament that such reform was "necessary immediately."

Plastiras called for "soak the rich" taxes and "moderate expansion of industry from the country's own resources based on a 200 million dollar project for developing electric power. He pledged a graudal amnesty for leftwingers but said it would not apply to actual leaders of the Com-

47 Sentenced By Czechs as Spies, Traitors

Prague, April 24 (AP).—Czechoslovakia's spy purge machinery stayed in high gear today, grinding out sentences of death and long prison terms for accused enemies of the state.

After sentencing 47 alleged spies and saboteurs over the weekend, three of them to death, the state courts moved on with another batch of 18 Czechs accused of "espionage, high treason, attempted murder, illegal armament, proposed murder and public assault."

(Apparently 54 of the 65 defendants in the four trials were accused of connections with alleged American spy rings.)

On Saturday 47 convictions were meted out in state courts at Prague, Klatovy and Zdar, it was disclosed today. Another trial was still in progress at the Brno state court in Moravia today.

The 18 defendants in Brno were declared by the newspaper Rovnost to have "entered the services of the American imperialists." They were accused of being members of an antistate spying organization "Svetlana," operating in Moravia.

Former U. S. Employes Due for Bucharest Trial

Bucharest, April 24 (AP).—The government short-wave radio said tonight that a new spy trial involving five Romanian citizens formerly employed at the United States and British Legations here will open in Bucharest Tuesday.

The five, arrested in July of last year, are Constantin Mugur, Elenor Bunea, 40, an Albanian princess; Annie Samuelli and her sister, Norah, and Liviu P. Pasta, former string correspondent of the New York Times.

The first three named were formerly employed by the British information office, and the other two by the American Library.

Salesman's Death Laid To Asking $7 Advance

Providence, R. I., April 24 (U.P.). The death of a salesman was attributed today to a beating he suffered when he asked his boss for a $7 salary advance.

Police said Donald R. Rankin, 27, was struck on the head by his boss, William A. Pratt, 44, when he made the request Saturday at the latter's home.

Pratt was arrested after Rankin died yesterday. Arraigned in District Court today, Pratt pleaded innocent to a manslaughter charge and was held in $4000 bail for hearing May 2.

2 Escaped Lions Kill German Girl; Circus Man Held

Baden Baden, Germany, April 24 (AP).—Two lions clawed a German girl to death today and police arrested a discharged circus performer on suspicion that he freed the lions from their cages for revenge.

A witness reported seeing the discharged performer fumbling with the lock on the lions' cage.

The lions escaped just before dawn from their cage.

A young German couple was strolling arm in arm near the grounds when the beasts appeared behind them out of the gloom.

The young man, a circus employe, waved a lighted flashlight in the animals' eyes trying to frighten them.

But they attacked and tore at 20-year-old Elfgiede Lauber with their claws until she was dead.

Circus employes drove the animals back to their cage.

AFGE Wins Judgement In $3500 Damage Suit

The American Federation of Government Employes (AFL) yesterday won a $3500 damage suit filed against it by David R. Glass, 1436 Meridian pl. nw.

Glass contended he is on indefintie leave from his post as adviser to the AFGE president and hasn't been paid since 1946. He said he is entitled to $100 a month.

Judge F. Dickinson Letts of District Court said Glass did not prove his case and directed judgment for the AFGE.

Air Force Weaker, Symington Warns

For Public Good

Eisenhower Urges Strong, Free Press

New York, April 24 (AP).—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower called on the Nation's newspapers today to keep their news columns free and unbiased and to defend "the political and economic freedom of each one of us."

"Only an informed public opinion can win the peace," the Columbia University president told 1400 publishers and editors at the annual luncheon of the Associated Press.

Eisenhower's address came after the AP board of directors reported that censorship of news is growing and said factual reporting never was "more vital to the survival of our free institutions."

Lauds War Coverage

Eisenhower paid high tribute to the American press for its reporting of World War II. He said the newspapers and the universities have a common responsibility today to present "facts and honest interpretation" so the American people can make wise decisions.

"It is not so much that we are not going to come through the crisis," he said. "But if the world makes a mistake about our essential courage and confidence in the United States, our readiness to stand for what we believe to be the truth and the right, we incur very, very great dangers."

When other nations "see us torn by divided counsel, seemingly unready to make decisions," Eisenhower said, they are likely "to think that that means something deeper in our national character than it actually does."

"To my mind, all it means is that we have not got the sufficient facts," he said.

Would Guard Freedoms

Eisenhower told the editors and publishers that upholding freedom of the press is necessary but does not go far enough.

"We must stand for individual freedom and for those things that are going to preserve the political and economic freedom of each one of us," he said.

"We must combat relentlessly any needless invasion of those freedoms, because the attack on any freedom will never, in any country, be isolated and individual. It will be a creeping thing that will be on the door front and will attack all."

Censorship, Eisenhower said, is "a stupid and shallow way of approaching the solution of any problem."

Even though some censorship may be necessary in matters of security, he said, "we should be very careful in the way we apply it because in censorship always lurks the very great danger of working to the disadvantage of the great American Nation."

W. Stuart Symington stepped out as Secretary of Air yesterday, with a warning that the combat effectiveness of the Air Force has decreased in the past six months.

The Nation's first Air Force Secretary turned over his job to Thomas K. Finletter to become chairman of the National Security Resources Board. There, he'll have charge of industrial mobilization and civil defense planning—two fields in which there has been criticism that work has been lagging.

At a news conference, Symington said the combat "efficiency" of the Air Force has increased, while its combat "effectiveness" has declined, due to a reduction in size.

Defense Secretary Louis Johnson swore in Finletter during a day that included several Pentagon ceremonies. Undersecretary of the Army Tracy Voorhees was given a farewell review and salute as he left office.

Barrows Given Award

Symington awarded the Air Force Exceptional Service Award to Undersecretary of the Air Force Arthur S. Barrows, who also is retiring.

During the day, President Truman nominated Assistant Army Secretary Archibald Stevens Alexander for promotion to Undersecretary of the Army.

Symington yesterday repeated a statement he has made before, that he considers a 70-group force essential to national defense "from a purely military standpoint." He added that the Air Force recognizes, however, that the Nation can be beaten by economic disaster as well as military disaster and therefor supports the President's 48-group program without reservation.

Symington has informed Congress the proposed funds for aircraft procurement for 1951 are insufficient to keep these 48 groups equipped with modern aircraft. The Joint Chiefs of Staff have reported to Secretary Johnson that this is correct and Johnson is considering whether to recommend a boost in this fund.

Sees No Balanced Budget

Symington was asked how large an Air Force the Nation can afford economically. He replied that he had no opinion on this but added:

"I don't see how you're going to balance the budget if you face up to the international situation."

A balanced budget may become possible if the differences with Russia can be adjusted, he went on, but not under present circumstances.

The Air Force gave Symington an impressive sendoff, including the USAF Band, an honor guard, and 48 jet fighters zooming overhead.

Charges of Revival of Cartel Denied by Head of U. S. Steel

New York, April 24 (AP).—Benjamin F. Fairless, president of United States Steel Corp. said today the corporation "is not now a party to any international steel agreement or understanding, tacit or otherwise."

Fairless, in a statement issued by U. S. Steel offices here, replied to testimony before a House Judiciary Subcommittee at Washington today by James S. Martin, former chief of the decartelization branch of American Military Government in Germany.

Martin told the committee the three largest American steel companies, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem and Republic, through the Steel Export Association of America, joined an international cartel in 1938 to divide the world steel market, fix prices and limit competition. He said cartel agreements were quietly resumed in 1947 with American steel men sitting in "supposedly as observers."

Fairless said today:

"The affairs of this association were conducted at all times strictly in accordance with the provision of the Webb-Pomerene Act. At the outbreak of war in Europe in September, 1939, the foreign activities of this association were suspended and shortly thereafter steps were taken to liquidate the association. Final liquidation occurred in September, 1943.

"Since the end of World War II there has been no move to revive this association or any similar association under the Webb-Pomerene Act. U. S. Steel is not now a party to any international steel agreement or understanding, tacit or other wise, and does not contemplate entering into any such agreement or understanding."

Jailed General Sued for Divorce By Mrs. Meyers

St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, April 24, (U.P.)—Mrs. Ila Rae Meyers filed suit for divorce today from Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers, now serving a prison sentence for inducing a former business associate to lie to Senate investigators about Meyers' undercover war profits.

Mrs. Meyers, a former actress who stuck by her husband throughout his trial, sued the retired, discredited career Army officer on the grounds he had been convicted of a felony.

She is Meyers' third wife. His first two marriages also ended in divorce.

Meyers is in the District of Columbia reformatory at Lorton, Va. He has served the minimum term of 20 months, but has been denied his first request for parole and several appeals.

Discrimination Voids Negro's Conviction

The Supreme Court yesterday overturned a murder conviction of a Texas Negro because of "intentional" exclusion of Negroes from the grand jury which indicted him.

The ruling was 7 to 1, with three separate majority opinions. Justice Jackson dissented and Justice Douglas took no part.

The court split 4 to 4 with Justice Clark taking no part in the case of a Federal judge who dismissed a Government antitrust suit because the Government refused to disclose FBI files. The division of the court was not disclosed. The tie vote merely upheld the lower court in the case at issue, involving a number of oil companies. It was announced in a brief order by Chief Justice Vinson.

Holds Discrimination Shown

In the Texas case, Justice Reed (speaking also for Chief Justice Vinson and Justices Black and Clark) said the jury commissioners, who picked the grand jury panel, had stated that they chose jurymen only from those people with whom they were personally acquainted.

But, Reed said, such practices "in an area where Negroes make up so large a proportion of the population, prove the intentional exclusion that is discrimination in violation of Cassell's constitutional rights."

The defendant was Lee Cassell of Dallas, convicted of crushing the skull of a sleeping watchman with an iron pipe during a burglary.

Reed said that "an accused is entitled to have charges against him considered by a jury in the selection of which there has been neither inclusion or exclusion because of race."

Jackson Sees No Prejudice

Jackson, in his dissent, argued that there was no evidence that the grand jury, even though it were illegal, had "prejudiced a defendant whom a trial jury, chosen with no discrimination, has convicted."

Justice Frankfurter (speaking for himself and Justices Burton and Minton) agreed with Reed but argued that the jury commissioners suffered under a "misconception" as to their duty. He noted that one Negro had been chosen on a number of recent grand juries and declared:

"The prohibition of the Constitution against discrimination because of color does not require in and of itself the presence of a Negro on a jury. But neither is it satisfied by Negro representation arbitrarily limited to one.

"It is not a question of presence on a grand jury nor absence from it. The basis of selection cannot conscientiously take color into account. Such is the command of the Constitution."

Clark Explains Jury's Duty

Clark, in a separate opinion, attempted to spell out for the jury commissioners their responsibilities under the decision. He said "their responsibility was to learn whether there were persons among the Negroes they did not know who were qualified and available for service."

In the 4-to-4 tie vote the case involved the Cotton Valley Operating Committee, the Ohio Oil Co. and the Magnolia Petroleum Co. among others. The Government charged, in a suit filed in Louisiana, that the firms had conspired to monopolize business in oil and gas in a Louisiana field.

The oil concerns asked Federal Judge Ben C. Dawkins to force the Government to produce records of FBI agents who had investigated the case under the antitrust laws. The Justice Department offered to make some documents available but the judge ordered all records submitted to him to determine which should be kept secret.

At this, the Government declined to comply and the case was dismissed. The Government then took the appeal which brought the tie vote yesterday.

Justice Clark, who took no part in the vote, faced the same problem while he was Attorney General. He was ordered to turn over FBI records in the Judith Coplon case in Washington and did so, whereupon the records were made public, much to FBI annoyance and embarrassment.

Just what effect this new case will have on the Government's antitrust litigation was not clear last night. FBI agents normally do investigatory work for the Anti-Trust Division at Justice.

The Supreme Court yesterday also:

1. Decided 7 to 1 (Justice Burton dissenting) that when a bank knows the mailing addresses of interested persons it is not enough simply to publish notice of intent to liquidate a common trust fund. The opinion, by Justice Jackson, involved a New York State law.

2. Refusal to rule on the Maryland law banning marriage signs such as those at Elkton, Md. An Elkton minister had attacked the law's validity after being fined $50 for posting a sign. He contended the law violated freedom of religion.

The court yesterday announced it is raising legal fees charged by the clerk, the first such increase since 1943. The cost of bringing an unsuccessful case, for example, would jump from about $70 on the average to about $100 with other increases under a new flat-fee system.

Sawyer Urges St. Lawrence Seaway Worth

By the United Press

Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer yesterday said the St. Lawrence River seaway and power project would be a paying economic investment in peacetime and an invaluable military asset in war.

He testified before the House Public Works Committee as it reopened public hearings on the long-debated 803-million-dollar project for joint United States-Canadian construction.

Appealing for congressional approval without further delay, Sawyer said the seaway would be comparable in importance to the Panama Canal and would make the Great Lakes "an arm of the Atlantic Ocean."

Commerce Department transportation experts are confident the seaway would attract "a huge volume of traffic" with minimum annual toll revenues of at least 36 million dollars. That would make the seaway "self-liquidating by a very large margin," Sawyer said.

In a war emergency, he said, the seaway would have a dual role. It would provide a channel for bringing iron ore to the Middle West steel plants from Labrador or even Venezuela, in case Minnesota's dwindling Mesabi range ore deposits gave out.

It also would provide an alternate route for sending war materials overseas in case New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore or Hampton Roads—the key logistic ports of the East Coast—were knocked out.

The power project would be built around the proposed second largest single dam structure in the world and would generate low-cost electricity for the industrial Northeast, "which is today desperately lacking just such power," Sawyer said.

Power normally would be served to New York State, all of New England except Maine, northern New Jersey and northeastern Pennsylvania. But "in time of emergency," Sawyer said, "it would be transmitted as far as Washington and Chicago."

Home-Building Boom Called Stimulus to Other Industries

By The Associated Press

The Government reported yesterday that record-breaking home building activity is creating demand for other products.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said that this is not only boosting employment in the construction industry, but also "is creating secondary demand in furniture, household appliances, television, building materials, and a host of related industries."

Postwar Boom Again In Progress, Clague says

Atlantic City, N. J., April 24 (AP). Ewan Clague, United States Department of Labor chief of statistics, today said the postwar business boom is on its way up again.

Clague said that "coupled with the normal spring upturn in many lines of business activity is a significant revival from the mild recession of 1949."

He spoke at the first general session of the seventy-seventh annual meeting of the National Conference of Social Works.

This is buoying the employment situation in those industries.

The bureau's comments accompanied a report saying that industrial and commercial employment increased by 636,000 between mid-February and mid-March.

Half of the increase resulted from settlement of the coal strike, but the "gain reflected a continued improvement in the Nation's employment that first became evident at the start of the year," the bureau said.

Industrial and commercial employment in March was 42,323,000, about 600,000 less than in March a year ago.

bunal that deals with matters of this kind. We thought it was advisable."

O'Neill said that the National Mediation Board will promptly call meetings between the firemen's brotherhood and railroad officials in Chicago to try to settle the controversy.

Union Free to Strike

All procedures under the Railway Labor Law had been exhausted in the dispute and the union was free to strike, under the law.

However, President Truman has emergency power to seize the rail facilities. Under seizure, railroad workers would become Government employes and subject to being required by court injunction to stay at their jobs.

However, by striking only a few selected roads, the Firemen's Brotherhood had planned to avoid a Nation-wide strike and lessen the emergency aspects in hopes the White House would not order seizure.

The strike would have applied tems. It would have applied to the New York Central on its lines west of Buffalo, N. Y., and three of its divisions, the Michigan Central lines west of the Detroit River, the Big Four and the Ohio Central lines.

The Pennsylvania would have been affected west of Harrisburg, Pa.

what he is today through adaptation of his forebears to postural changes which gave better blood supply to his brain and central nervous system. This increased supply produced man's central nervous system, the highly specialized tissues which now set him apart from other animals, he theorized.

Man's descent from the trees also may have brought him such things as fallen arches, varicose veins, high blood pressure, 'strokes', sinus troubles and heart ailments.

According to Dr. Britton, the evolution of the human brain, a change which took a few million years, may have begun in this fashion:

"Possibly finding tree life too restrictive, our primitive forbears made tentative crouching thrusts from the jungle's edge in searching for food or watching for enemies. He discovered the enormous advantages of head-high position."

Gradual postural changes to the final erect position of man caused his body organs to adapt to the strains, he theorized. Many, he admitted, succumbed to the changes, with only the fittest surviving.

Even today's man is not necessarily the end product of the fight against gravity, Dr. Britton said.

Dr. Britton said the great apes and monkeys of today probably started along the same evolutionary path as the primates that evolved into man. But somewhere along the line, he theorized, they ran into a "blind biological alley."

Other animals wro set out to defy gravity only to run into simlar blind alleys of their own degree, he said, might include penguins, ostriches, bears and giraffes.

Round-Table Argues Pension Responsibility

Responsibility of employers versus that of labor to furnish pension plans in industry was debated last night at a round-table forum of Delta Sigma Pi Fraternity at the Georgetown University School of Foreign Service.

The debate took place in the foreign service school building. On the employers' side were Representative Carrol D. Kearns (R., Pa.) and Carroll French, assistant managing director of the National Association of Manufacturers. Opposing them and speaking for labor were Representative Thomas H. Burke (D., Ohio) and Harry Read, assistant executive secretary of the CIO.

tract with the union, the statement said, runs until midnight, April 30.

A later statement said the walkout ended shortly before 6 p. m., when the men were ordered back to work by union officials. Negotiations were to be resumed. The American Broadcasting Co. also is negotiating a new contract, officials said.

The Associated Press and United Press reported that engineers of both networks quit in New York, Chicago, and San Francisco and that NBC workers also quit in Denver. The news services said programs on owned or affiliated stations in other cities were interrupted for varying periods of time.

Union officials were quoted by the news services as saying the engineers sat down to "write out" grievances, which are a part of the negotiations.

Installers Strike as U. S. Phone Tieup Moves Closer

telephone employes continued to work.

Here, negotiations continued yesterday between Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. officials and representatives of operators and plant workers, but no progress was made. The 6000 workers in these categories are ready to join a strike if it is called Wednesday, spokesmen said.

The first indication that an earlier union threat to "jam" telephone equipment would be carried out came last night from Chicago, where a CWA official directed members to swamp the telephone company with long distance calls.

Paul M. Williams, secretary treasurer of Division 6, said he had issued the jamming orders to the division's 10,000 members. He told them to dial 211, or call for long distance on nondial phones, and then hang up when the operator answers.

The strike called yesterday by the equipment installers, members of Division 6, CWA, was termed illegal by Western Electric because it was in sympathy with the South Bend workers and not over wages. However, Division 6 President Ernest Weaver denied it was illegal or in violation of the 60-day truce.

A Western Electric official here said the walkout yesterday did not affect service to the public because the striking workers are installers of new central office equipment, and do not work on maintenance or repair.

The biggest job they were working on here was installation of a system which will enable telephone users to dial numbers in 12 other cities direct. The equipment, scheduled to be ready in August, was being installed in the 13th st. nw. central office by 136 employes, the company official said.

Besides the 13th st. office, others where installers walked out yesterday were the Columbia, Lincoln, Dupont, Bethesda, Johnson and Silver Spring exchanges, as well as at the Navy Annex.

Union sources said the 234 equipment installers working in Maryland went out when they received official word of the strike, but the Western Electric area office said only 119 had walked out in that State last night.

A similar discrepancy in figures left the situation in Virginia and West Virginia in doubt. The company said all installers in those States, numbering 64 in Virginia and 13 in West Virginia, were still working at the end of the day. The union said they had been "pulled out" in both States.

Division 36 officials, representing some 3500 plant operators here, met with the company in all-day sessions yesterday, which were attended by a Federal mediator. Another negotiation meeting is set for 10 a. m. today.

A similar session was held by the company and Division 50, the unit which represents some 2500 local operators. They are scheduled to meet again at 2 p. m. today.

definitely prove to us," he said, "that the biggest factor in low rates is inadequate living conditions, either a shortage of actual accommodations or inadequate accommodations at excessive rentals."

Democratic Gov. Chester Bowles of Connecticut also urged another year of Federal controls. He said he had come to the conclusion, "with considerable reluctance," that the step is necessary.

"After a most careful study of the figures on our present housing shortage, on the number of homes being built, on the high cost of construction, I am forced to conclude that to discontinue rent controls would be not only extremely unwise but dangerous to the stability of our entire economy.

"There is no question that if controls are dropped there will be rapid and substantial increases in rents throughout the country. These increases will work a very severe hardship upon the 11 million American families who are now protected by rent controls. The increases could moreover reduce, probably by as much as 1½ billion dollars a year, the purchasing power which these tenant families now are spending on food, clothing, house furnishings and other basic necessities . . .

"And further, a substantial increase in rents at this time would throw out of balance our whole price-wage structure and reopen the question of wide-spread wage increases."

Woods said Congress should not only extend controls on the 11 million housing units still under control—estimated as affecting 38 million people—but should provide for restoring ceilings in areas which have been decontrolled in local action, "when rents get out of hand."

Woods told the committee that in many places where controls have been removed by local action under the present law, rents have shot up too quickly. He cited eight cities in which, he said, the jumps averaged 26 to 41 percent.

"The heaviest burden," he declared, "was imposed on tenants occupying units renting for less than $30 a month."

Congress recently voted four million dollars for this year's rent control agency, but it earmarked $2,600,000 of it to pay terminal leave to laid-off workers. It left only $1,400,000 for office operations against the $3,600,000 Woods had requested.

The rent control administrator said the remainder of this year's job could be completed on another $800,000.

As hearings opened it was apparent that the Administration's battle to keep rent controls will find many normally Administration Democrats as well as Republicans opposed.

Senator John Sparkman (D., Ala.) who pushed last year's bill through the Senate, commented that "it was our belief last year that there would be no further Federal control extension."

However, said Sparkman, "Congress should look at all the facts again before acting."

Studies show that typing-fatigue is mainly caused by the nerve-shock a typist's finger receives at the end of the key-stroke. And that's where Daniel Schitea can really help. For he sells SMITH-CORONA—the typewriter that features "Cushioned Action." Phone Daniel at MIchigan 6900 and ask for a demonstration of this SMITH-CORONA feature!

More Hospital Beds Approved

tenant who received nine battle stars, was one of the few who voted "No."

Davis called it "a political gesture on the part of this body, and no more than that."

A recommit motion, also adopted by a voice vote, resulted only in adding a new title to the bill. The new title, sponsored by Representative Bernard W. eKarney (R., N. Y.), directs the Veterans Administration to make a survey of abandoned Army and Navy hospitals to see if they can be utilized in the program.

Kearney said he "meant" his motion to apply to the new 16,000 bed program but Representative John Rankin (D., Miss.), insisted the new hospital construction spelled out in his own bill wasn't affected. Denying his bill was "political," he said 25,000 veterans are waiting hospitalization because of inadequate facilities.

Block Sabotage of Ports

The million-dollar increase in the omnibus appropriation bill, approved later, was sponsored by New Jersey's Representative Gordon Canfield, a Republican. He argued the Coast Guard Reserve training it provided would help prevent sabotage of United States ports.

The Canfield amendment was adopted, 93 to 88, with Republicans splitting down the middle. Both Appropriations Chairman Clarence Cannon (D., Mo.), and New York's John Taber, ranking Republican on the committee, took the floor against it.

Representative Antonio M. Fernandez (D., N. Mex.) tried to increase the Coast Guard training sum to $4,100,000, the amount asked by President Truman, but was defeated, 101 to 18.

Cut in RFC Fund Fails

Economy forces failed in their only attempt yesterday to make a cut in the bill, but held firm against threatened large increases:

1. Representative Taber asked a two-million-dollar cut in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's 26-million-dollar appropriation, "to confine their activities to things that need to be done, instead of highly speculative ventures." He was defeated by a 69-to-65 teller vote.

2. Representative Henry D. Larcade (D., La.) tried to increase Postoffice appropriations by 22 million dollars to head off an announced cut in home mail deliveries to one a day and threatened personnel reductions. This amendment was shouted down by voice vote.

Atom Project Blaze Probed By FBI Men

Berkeley, Calif., April 24 (U.P.)—Federal agents dug into the charred wreckage of a building at the University of California's secret atomic energy project today, hunting for any signs of sabotage.

G-men kept silent on the results of their search through the building destroyed by a fire which threatened irreplaceable documents and priceless atom-smashing machines.

Sabotage was not even mentioned. But in a terse statement, the FBI said, "we are attempting to determine all the facts of the case."

The Atomic Energy Commision in Washington estimated damage at $150,000.

The fire raged for more than an hour and a half last night through the two-story building which had elaborate fire precautions. Rexford A. Barton, atomic laboratory manager, said the loss was "very serious" though he did not think any of the irreplaceable documents were destroyed.

Berkeley firemen who helped fight the flames were ordered not to speak to newsmen.

The blaze broke out in the project's frame administration building containing engineering and research offices. Nearby were concrete buildings housing cyclotrons and other atom-smashing equipment.

Plight of Alcoholics Debated

The waterwagon is where you belong if you have the following characteristics, Dr. Robert H. Felix, director of the National Institute of Mental Health, warned yesterday in discussing alcoholics:

1. Bullheadedness. The need to dominate a situation one way or another.

2. Wide swings in mood—up and down—so you don't run on an even keel.

3. A sense of loneliness and isolation—a wall between yourself and the rest of world.

4. A sense of inferiority which predates the alcoholism. This results in a driving sense of attaining perfection, literally driving a person to drink along the lines of "If I can't do this, I can at least forget about this."

Speaking at a round-table discussion of alcoholism at the Mayflower Hotel, Dr. Felix emphasized that these traits were warning signals to beware of drinking. They run consistently through alcoholic case studies.

Other speakers at the meeting sponsored by the Women's Safety Committee of the American Automobile Association expressed views mainly on treatment of alcoholics "after the fact."

Donald Clemmer, director of the District Department of Corrections, said that despite such developments as Alcoholics Anonymous and the District's new alcoholic clinic, he found the problem "getting worse and worse."

Four years ago the District of Columbia Workhouse and Jail had 600 drunkards in average daily population. Currently the figure runs about 1100, Clemmer reported.

Capt. Rhoda Millikin, director, Women's Bureau in the Police Department, reminded that more than 3000 women annually are charged with intoxication.

Municipal Court Judge Walter J. Casey praised the efforts of Mrs. George C. Thorpe, chairman of the luncheon sponsoring committee, and others in helping organize the District's new Alcoholic Clinic. Lieut. Col. W. W. Bouterse, divisional commander of the Salvation Army, was another speaker.

Sore Spot

The story of sick children put out by the Washington Housing Association provides a fresh account of an old sore spot in this community. Even before the war many investigators reported disgraceful conditions resulting from families crowding into ancient shacks unfit for human habitation. There is no longer any question that outdoor toilets, rat-infested walls, drafty floors and leaking roofs create grave health problems. The cost to the community of such housing conditions is appalling whenever it is interpreted in terms of sickness, hospital bills, premature deaths, loss of morale and outright crime. While the community is aware of the problem, the baffling task of getting action on the basis of well established facts is still acute.

We suspect that one reason for the continued inadequate performance in this field is the long-delayed hope that slums may be replaced by modern low-rent dwellings. Fortunately, another attack on the slums is taking shape in Washington. But it will inevitably touch only a small part of the overcrowding and health hazards that the Housing Association has again brought to light. Even with large-scale operations, a generation would probably be required to wipe out the wretched housing of this city if no new slums were created in the meantime. It is time to realize that improved living conditions for most of the slum dwellers can be realized only through enforcement of higher standards that will compel renovation and cleaning up of existing structures, and we are glad to see the Housing Association devoting its energies to this phase of the problem.

Government By Consent

The exemplary course followed by the United States in dealing with the Territory of Puerto Rico needs for its fulfillment only a grant of authority to the island to adopt its own constitution. It is governed now under an organic act which permits complete home rule and which was amended two years ago to provide for popular election of the Territorial Governor. A locally adopted constitution would not change Puerto Rico's status in any material way. It would not alter its relation to the United States or its voteless representation in Congress. It would simply give the people of the island an opportunity to embrace by right what is now given them as a gratuity—to apply, in other words, the vital American principle of government by the consent of the governed.

The bill to authorize adoption of a constitution by Puerto Rico introduced by Dr. Fernos-Isern, resident commissioner of the Territory, would provide for continued application of all Federal laws and operation of Federal agencies in the island. It would require adherence in the Puerto Rican constitution to the Bill of Rights. Its principal effect would be to raise the status and dignity of the Territory. As Dr. Fernos-Isern put it, "We adopt our local laws, but we haven't adopted our local law of laws—our constitution. This is what we want to do now." To permit the people of Puerto Rico to do this would be to bind them closer to us by the ties of affection and to present to the world a splendid example of responsibility in trusteeship.

Stalin's Successor

Not long ago the photographic experts of Newsweek magazine decided that the pictures of Comrade Stalin casting his ballot in the recent Russian elections had been rather crudely faked. The purported head on the figure of Stalin, according to these experts, had been cut from a photograph made several years ago and superimposed upon a uniformed torso, which had been heavily retouched before it was transmitted to the United States by radiophoto process. The deception, it was said, became obvious after a close study of the differences in graining and lighting between the head and the rest of the picture.

This discovery by Newsweek has since been confirmed by other technicians. It has served to set loose fresh rumors and speculations concerning the current state of Stalin's health, and the struggle within the Bolshevik hierarchy for succession to his power. It is clear that if Stalin remains in full possession of his health and faculties, such a picture could not have been released without his consent. On the other hand, if Stalin on the day of the election (March 12) had been able to pose for a photograph, there would have been no necessity for faking one. Thus it has been recalled significantly, that Stalin was expected to make one of his infrequent public broadcasts just before the election, but for some reason did not; nor was any explanation forthcoming about his failure to do so.

All this, to be sure, does not amount to proof that Stalin has lost his grip upon the Soviet state and that some individual or clique is now governing in his name. There has been in fact a good deal of dispute among Westerners who have some opportunity for observing the workings of the Soviet system as to whether Stalin has actually governed by the assent of the Politburo or whether he dominates it as completely as the Politburo dominates the rest of the system. What is known is that Stalin has reached an age at which the conservation of health might require him to relinquish more and more of his responsibilities to younger and more energetic men and with them some degree of his power. Or it is possible that in delegating duties and responsibilities he might have sought to preserve his power by the time-honored expedient of playing one potential successor off against another.

Most students of the Russian system seem to agree that if after Stalin's death or surrender of power the Politburo remains capable of unanimous action, the succession will pass to Molotov, the last survivor among the Communist hierarchy of the old Bolsheviks of 1917. They seem also agreed that if a contest over the succession should arise among the members of the Politburo, the betting odds should favor Beria because of his presumed control of the MVD, or political police. But in recent months the name of a third potential successor has come more and more into discussion. This is Malenkov, a Communist of the post-revolutionary type, tough, ruthless, and still relatively young.

Fall Of Hainan

To those who take news reports from China at face value, there will be some surprise over the fall of Hainan Island, the island of 2,500,000 people off the southern coast of China, which was only in the initial stages of invasion. It had been reported that Hainan was well defended and that the Communists, far from making headway, were being repulsed. However, as foreign reporters long ago discovered, statements about the military situation in China are generally formal declarations of hope, rather than statements of fact. It would be boorish in the extreme to tell one's superior (let alone the public) bad news. What happened at Hainan is merely a repetition of what happened elsewhere in China. The resistance simply melted before the advance, Chiang Kai-shek refused reinforcements, and that was the end of the story. Nothing succeeds like success in China.

As usual the poetry of the communiques has been succeeded by old-fashioned recriminations. The Associated Press reports a Hainan general (name withheld) as saying that Chiang refused to send more troops because he feared the growing strength and popularity of two of Hainan's defenders. That, too, is an old story, though not applicable perhaps to Hainan. Chiang Kai-shek has a swollen army of up to 500,000 men—much over twice his actual need—weighting down the slightly larger Formosa, which is 600 miles northeast along the South China Sea, and he is hoarding them, particularly their equipment. He is waiting for a Russo-American war to bail him out, meanwhile harassing the mainland, as much to embroil the United States as to pinprick the Chinese Communists and to hold up rehabilitation and consolidation.

Chiang might easily sit it out in Formosa if it were not for the fact that his political and economic base is insecure. Something of late has been done to make the Formosans less unhappy over Chinese occupation, but they still regard the generalissimo and his men as interlopers, and if their leaders already hadn't been massacred, would be making the lot of the soldiery uncomfortable. However, Formosa is 100 treacherous miles from the mainland, contrasted with the 10 miles of the Hainan Strait, and this would be a risky adventure for the Chinese Communists. The Communists no doubt are banking on infiltration. When the test will come is anybody's guess, but of more immediate concern will be whether Hainan will now be used as a ferrying point for supplying Ho Chih-minh in nearby Indo-China.

Phone Tieup

The country before this has weathered a Nation-wide telephone strike without paralyzing result. The increasing mechanization of the telephone system gives reason to hope that the present strike of equipment workers, which seems destined to spread through the industry, will not inconvenience the public drastically. Nevertheless, anything which impairs the full functioning of America's communications system is potentially serious. Facilities will be strained in long-distance service and in areas which do not yet have dial service—and a spell of bad weather might cause a general mechanical breakdown.

Whether an emergency develops depends in part on the conduct of the striking unionists themselves. A few months back President Joseph Beirne of the CIO Communications Workers called on workers to flood switchboards with calls and thus sabotage equipment. Nothing could be more calculated to prejudice the public against the phone workers' case. For their industry happens to be a vital public utility, and anything that sabotages the telephone system is in effect sabotage of the public welfare. We hope that Mr. Beirne and his fellows will steer clear of these tactics. In a monopoly industry neither management nor employes can afford to forget that a third party—the public—is directly concerned in their negotiations.

The strike itself centers principally around the same issue that precipitated a similar walkout three years ago—Nation-wide bargaining over wages. The CIO unions want a 15-cent-an-hour wage increase plus other benefits in a national "package." The constituent Bell companies contend that they are autonomous and that bargaining must be on the basis of local conditions. It is significant, however, that there have been no local agreements concluded, with the exception of an arbitration award arrived at under New Jersey's compulsory arbitration law. This is being contested in court.

After the repeated crises in coal, there is good reason to resist further extensions of Nation-wide bargaining in vital industries. There also is a good deal of merit to the companies' contention that as public utilities they should follow rather than set wage patterns in their areas. This is especially true in light of the fact that their profits are regulated, and that large increases in all probability would bring demands for rate increases. Nonetheless, if the union demands are unrealistic and if local conditions should govern wage adjustments, the companies themselves must demonstrate that they actually are prepared to bargain individually.

U. N. Anniversary

Five years ago today, when the nations meeting in San Francisco set up the United Nations, the American and Russian armies met at Torgau in Germany. It was the day of victory—and of hope. President Truman hailed the meeting of the troops at Torgau as an indication "that the collaboration of our nations in the cause of peace and freedom is an effective collaboration . . ." Ordering 24 salvos from 324 guns in Moscow, Stalin exclaimed, "Long live the victory of the freedom-loving nations over Germany!" American and Russian soldiers shook hands in sight of 200 corpses of men, women and children who had been blown to fragments during the night. One eye-witness account has the Americans and Russians looking at the bodies, expecially the corpse of a child with blue eyes and long brown hair clutching crayons in one hand and a doll in the other, and swearing that such things must not happen again.

In the flush of victory the hope was that the major powers, particularly the United States and the Soviet Union, could work together in establishing peace. It is a dashed hope. On its fifth anniversary the U. N. is at a standstill because the Soviet government is boycotting all meetings until the representatives of the Communist government in China are admitted. Secretary General Lie is now trying to remove the deadlock in his tour of world capitals. Whatever happens the world needs more and not less of the spirit of April 25. There is a good deal of merit in the suggestion that the General Assembly recommend appropriate commemoration of April 25 as a day of international amity. The good will that encircled the globe on that occasion must not be lost if our civilization is to survive.

Shorter Skirts

Wasn't it only yesterday that the country was torn in controversy from Texas to Maine over the new long skirts for women that had come in with the "new look"? Now another argument is under way from Milan, Italy, to Wagon Wheel Gap, N. Mex., over the new short skirts that Paris is promoting. American women who swore in 1947 they'd never drop their skirts to their ankles now declare they'll die before they'll let their skirts mount to their knees. They may accept skirts 15, or even 16 inches, from the floor, but not a mite higher.

Italian stylists blame the short skirts on Hollywood. Milan dressmakers are said to be spreading the story that Paris couturiers have acted as stooges of Hollywood film magnates who want to release in Europe a lot of first grade films made during the war. It seems that in these movies heroines cavort in near knee length skirts. However, the campaign is meeting resistance. Miss Bertha Korbholz, a sort of Gallup poll authority in the fashion industry, predicts that American women won't take to the Paris length skirt for at least three years, if at all. Miss Korbholz is director of the New York Institute of Fashion Research, and she insists American women are basically independent in fashion, as was shown by their rejection of the extreme "new look." Now she says they are likely to reject "extra short skirts that hike up when you sit down."

We're not willing to predict how short skirts will go, but we will stick our neck out on this—in a few years this same argument will be back in the headlines.

Charles H. Houston

Within the professional lifetime of Charles H. Houston, a profound and significant change took place in the emancipation of American Negroes. He was one of the principal architects of this change. His great gifts as a lawyer were devoted from the beginning of his career to an unremitting battle to win for Negroes genuine equality before the law. Formidable statutory barriers of discrimination on grounds of race crumbled under the skill and stubbornness of his onslaught. It is a tragedy that he could not have lived to see the final victory of the cause he championed and did so much to win.

An outstanding student at the Harvard Law School—he was the first Negro editor of the Harvard Law Review—and later vice dean of the School of Law at Howard University, he served as special counsel for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. He led the successful appeal to the courts in the restrictive covenants cases culminating in a decision by the Supreme Court two years ago that such covenants are unenforceable by either State or Federal courts. And he was in the forefront of the effort to secure equal educational opportunities for Negroes in State universities. Whites no less than Negroes must mourn the death of this crusader for a principle that lies at the heart of American democracy.

Neutralized Germany

The ordinarily astute Walter Lippmann, in your issue of April 17, passively greets a German national movement "to liberate it from occupation and to restore the greatness of the German nation."

What extraordinary progress since May 5, 1945, when Lippmann described Germany as "not a nation but a demoralized and disgraced inchoate horde, incapable of accepting moral responsibility for what has happened or of participating in what needs to be done."

Whatever their talents in chemistry and music, the Germans are still political adolescents and ethical infants. Thus, if armed, they would be every whit the menace of 1914 and 1939.

Surely the answer, pointed out in The Washington Post editorial of April 6, is for Germany to mature as a link in the Atlantic community. Within the framework of a federation of democracies—an Atlantic Union—strong, free hands can achieve security, prosperity, and brotherhood.

"Tangled Web"

Do you believe that your editorial of April 21 on the Budenz testimony observed the standards of fairness and truth of any decent newspaper?

You assert that Lattimore's guilt "is demonstrated to Budenz's satisfaction" by his anti-Soviet actions. In fact, Budenz said nothing of "demonstrating guilt" from such actions; he merely maintained, on the basis of considerable experience of Communist technique, that such actions were not demonstrative of innocence, if there was other clear evidence that the man was a Communist.

You speak of the Daily Worker book review of Lattimore as "bitterly critical"; whereas, in fact, both its headline and its lead two paragraphs and conclusion praise Lattimore highly, while the criticism offered is mild.

You say Budenz "contributed nothing" except the admission that he did not know Lattimore personally. As he said himself, he did not know Alger Hiss personally, yet he knew that Hiss was a Communist. Is the testimony that Lattimore was officially regarded by the leaders of the Communist Party as a concealed agent under their orders no contribution?

Korea's Problem

There is a real need to see the situation in Korea in perspective. The alternatives confronting the United States are clear: (1) to support the elected government; or (2) to withdraw from what Professor Lattimore calls "entanglements" there and let Russia assume control.

The present government was elected under U. N. auspices and pronounced by both the U. N. and the United States to have been fairly elected. In case we don't like it, can't we at least be patient enough to wait till the end of May, when another election is to be held under U. N. auspices?

But, it is said, the Republic is suffering from inflation induced by bad fiscal policies. It also has 56 percent of its area, including the chief mineral, hydro-electric, and industrial portions, occupied by Soviet puppets. It has four million refugees to house, clothe, and feed. It has an economy struggling to recover from three years of occupation and from a transfer of ownership and management. It has an admittedly inexperienced administrative and managerial personnel.

Alternative number two is to withdraw current and pending United States aid and let the Communists have Korea. By this stroke, Soviet imperialism would have achieved mastery of the whole of continental north Asia. Who but the Russians could possibly benefit by that?

Meanwhile, the following paragraph may be of interest. It is from a letter written by Dr. Soon Ju Chey, director of the Bank of Korea, dated March 24:

"The governmental deficit for the period ending March 31 of this year will be about 56 billion won, but from the next fiscal year beginning April 1 we have succeeded in balancing the budget by cutting the personnel in government offices and by raising taxes and other income from governmental enterprises. Bank note circulation had reached 74 billion won on January 5. However, it is coming down steadily and is now 65 billion won. We hope to continue the reduction of circulation. The increase in price level is coming down a little bit. The disposal of vested properties will be started on April 1 with the program of land reform. The estimated value of the property is about one billion United States dollars. Also the land reform will abolish the so-called absentee landlord class. So you will realize we are taking drastic measures toward economic stabilization."

Militant DAR

The Daughters of the American Revolution have come and gone. Four or five generations removed from their illustrious fighting ancestors, they exhibit in the family tree the only bond with those men of independent action. For a surprising numbness of mind joins 167,000 American women into this totalitarian hierarchy where without their being consulted the top echelon may, as now, announce and activate a campaign against world government and carry it into the public schools.

The delegates last week heard their president general say that the National society opposes all plans for world government and will continue to oppose them until they are all killed. Her loyalty is to "the old-fashioned brand of Americanism" — and hold on to the sleigh!

A Major Hill had been invited to address the Continental Congress. The delegates heard Major Hill say that war with Russia was inevitable and the sooner it comes the better. This seems to have delighted and excited them for everybody wanted a copy of his speech. Copies are to be reproduced in quantity so that every regent in the land can read the speech and get bow and arrows in readiness.

Bethesda Cross

It was amazing to discover in your April 15 edition a letter of protest from Mr. James R. Kellogg against the cross of electric lights on the Bethesda Naval Hospital.

It is a foregone conclusion, in this Christian country, dedicated to God, that the display of a symbol of religious faith such as a cross should be acceptable to all. Furthermore, the people who contributed money to the hospital funds are Christian people and surely would have no objection to the cross.

France And Coca-Cola

I do not think Coca-Cola can be for us matter to quarrel about. And, if, as the press announces, a New York night club has already given up French champagne, we think it is only a little "prearranged" demonstration, the too obvious aim of which would be to impress our Minister of Public Health. Likewise we know that the Coca-Cola Corp. is one of the most powerful firms in the States, and that is why we don't take too seriously the manifestations of a certain press which, with a striking unanimity, has reproached us for our ingratitude.

We are even threatened with a cessation of the Marshall Relief Fund if we don't accept to drink Coca-Cola! Now, let us consider: The Marshall Relief Fund for which France is very grateful to the States was granted to us because we have been ruined by the war. After the 1918 war we also did help our poorer allies of central Europe, and we did not overflow them with our soda waters. Besides the threats of your press have not upset the French, and I did not hear a single Frenchman saying that if you had stood by us from the first days of the war, which was your war, too, today we would need your help less than we do.

All this is mere trifles! But friendship and affection—you stand as an example—in no way exclude petty wrangling. The Coca-Cola matter is, plainly spoken, a very simple one, and true democrats will understand it easily. We have laws in France, just as you have acts in the States. According to one of our laws, dated 1905, no drink can be sold here if it contains any mineral acid whatever or any product the composition of which is kept a secret.

The mere presence of phosphoric acid is enough to prohibit such a drink in France. The 1905 law is final. Then what surprises us Frenchmen is that a French law should revolt you, Americans, who have such reverence for your own laws, and that you should be quite unpleasant about it! Do you think we don't find it amazing not to be allowed to sell you sugar plums because sugar plums must be colored with an American coloring—or to sell you chocolate bonbons with liquor inside, because they must be filled with liquor in America?

You have taken very similar decisions, and as far as I know, they did not rouse our anger, not even laughs. And when you adopted prohibition, which, for France, the first wine producer in the world, was economically far more serious than would be to you the consequence of the consumption of Coca-Cola in France, we did not say it was unfriendly or that Uncle Sam was forgetting LaFayette's visit. We just bowed, because your decisions and the laws of your country have nothing to do with us.

All that we reproach one another for are mere trifles. Don't let anybody give those trifles more importance than they really have. Don't make things easier for our common adversaries who already give us trouble enough.

Pepper Vs. Smathers

By Marquis Childs

Red Label In Florida

NEXT WEEK, primary elections are being held in Florida and Alabama that will be watched as closely as the national election in the fall. The outcome can mean almost as much for 1952 as the result of the congressional contest in November.

The hottest primary is in Florida, where Senator Claude Pepper is in a fight for his political life. Opposing him is Congressman George A. Smathers of Florida's Fourth District. What gives this mortal combat a special fillip of irony is that Smathers was once Pepper's protege and pupil of the special Pepper technique of spellbinding.

Reports from Florida indicate that the pupil now excels the master. Smathers is leaning heavily on charges he repeats in speeches day after day that Pepper is a Red and a friend of Communists

Observers hesitate to guess the outcome. The belief here is that Pepper's fate turns on the size of the Negro vote. If as many as 85,000 Negroes are registered and go to the polls, most of them, it is thought, will vote for Pepper and supply the margin essential to win.

There is an irony in this, too, inasmuch as Pepper has been trying hard to disclaim the Truman civil rights program which Smathers wants to tie around his neck. The Negro vote would presumably go to Pepper on his Fair Deal voting record and because he is less hostile to equal rights than his opponent.

THE campaign has moved into a brass knuckles and long knives phase exceptional even for the fervor of a Southern political battle. The Smathers camp is circulating widely a pamphlet entitled "The Red Record of Senator Claude Pepper."

On the red, white and black cover is a news photograph of Pepper that makes him look like a cross between a startled alligator and patent medicine salesman. Spread across two pages is the reproduction of a photograph of Pepper with Paul Robeson, Negro singer who has been one of the chief advocates for the Communist Party and Soviet Russia. Another photograph shows Henry Wallace with his arm around Pepper.

What gives this pamphlet special interest is the announcement on the title page that reads, "Compiled and published by Lloyd C. Leemis, attorney at law (former special agent Federal Bureau of Investigation)." Pepper's backers in Florida are indignant at what they say is a clear implication that the FBI has a file on Pepper and that these documents came out of the file.

The FBI here says that no such file exists. Leemis went with the bureau in 1942, was assigned to the Miami office with headquarters in Jacksonville in 1943 and resigned a year ago. The pamphlet points out that all the documents are a matter of public record. But the compilation was obviously done by someone thoroughly familiar with Pepper's record, since many of the photostats are from obscure and dreary left-wing publications that no ordinary person would know about or be able to locate.

MOST OF this record is from the years after the war when Pepper was bitten with the presidential bug and was being courted by left-wing groups. These groups found that he could almost always be counted on for Madison Square Garden rallies where salvos of cheers and applause, carefully engineered, greeted the Senator from Florida. Part of the record is the outgrowth of Pepper's wartime efforts for Russian war relief; efforts backed by a number of highly respectable citizens who could never be accused of being Red or pro-Communist.

The campaign in Alabama is not spectacular, but it is nonetheless important. Senator Lister Hill is expected to win easily over his opponent, a Birmingham real estate man named Lawrence McNeil, a newcomer to politics.

The real struggle is over election of the State Democratic Executive Committee. Seventy-two members in all are to be elected. The Dixiecrat organization, with the backing of powerful financial interests both North and South, is seeking to control the committee.

Both Hill and Alabama's other Senator, John Sparkman, are campaigning hard to foil the Dixiecrats. Hill used that argument that, to defeat civil rights legislation, it is essential to stay in the Democratic Party. Senator Robert C. Hendrickson (Republican) of New Jersey promptly picked this up and made excellent propaganda of it in challenging the Democrats on the sincerity of their desire to enact civil rights legislation.

If the Dixiecrats are defeated in Alabama, there are many who believe it will be a blow that will frustrate the organization generally in the South. On the other hand if they win, it will be the signal for a renewed organization drive in every Southern State. At stake are Southern electors who in '52 might throw sufficient votes to a Republican to decide the election.

Tip To McCarthy

I suggest Senator McCarthy contact Milton Caniff to learn the true identity of Mr. Ganglia (obviously of the State Department) before he causes harm to Smrnsk Canyon.

Today and Tomorrow

Berlin Trap

IN AN authoritative dispatch the Associated Press says that "allied authorities in Berlin were reported by high Government sources last night (Saturday night) to be ready to use machine guns, if necessary, to prevent a massed march of young Communists from the eastern zone of Germany, occupied by Russia. A march of 500,000 youths into west Berlin has been scheduled for May 27-30."

Lippmann

The Associated Press dispatch is a full and accurate account of the present position taken by "high Government sources." As they state their position a serious doubt arises as to whether Secretary Acheson has appraised the threat in Berlin adequately and is taking adequate measures to deal with it. I am not questioning the firmness of the decision or the effectiveness of the police and military measures to repel a marched mass of young German Communists. What troubles me is that nothing appears to have been done by way of diplomatic preparation for the worst eventuality—which would be that American troops had to shoot down German boys in the streets of Berlin.

ALL OUR preparations seem to be directed toward, it seems to me, an oversimplified and indeed naive estimate of the affair. We are treating the proposed march of the young Communists as an effort to "dislodge" us from west Berlin by force. Now it may be that some of the young Communists have imagined that they would be allowed to parade through west Berlin in great masses and that like Hitler's storm troopers they could then terrorize the inhabitants and thumb their noses at the West German government and the Western military forces. But the Soviet authorities, who have the final word as to whether the march shall be attempted, are not likely ever to have taken this view seriously. And in any event they know now that the march is forbidden and that the prohibition will be enforced.

Will the Soviet authorities, knowing of the measures taken to resist the march into west Berlin, nevertheless order the marchers to enter west Berlin? That is the eventuality for which our preparations are, I submit, inadequate.

FOR IF the Soviet authorities now send the young Germans forward, it will not be to "dislodge" us from Berlin. We are underestimating the realism and the shrewdness of the Russians if we suppose that they will send these boys on the man's errand of dislodging us from Berlin. If they send the boys across the line, it will be to catch us in a trap where American troops must shoot unarmed German youths in the streets of Berlin. If this happened, if we could be provoked into shooting Germans, the effect on the Western occupation and on the Bonn government and on the west Berlin German authorities will be very grave indeed.

The shooting by American soldiers of young Germans demonstrating in Berlin for "peace" and "unity" would be a resounding success for the Soviet government and for the German Communists. If the marchers are ordered forward, it will almost certainly be for the purpose of provoking us to open fire. We are prepared to fire if necessary, Is Secretary Acheson also prepared for the psychological and political consequences if our soldiers have to shoot young Germans—if they are provoked, as was the Weimar Republic before Hitler, into manufacturing some martyrs in what will be presented as the cause of German unity and resistance to the partition and occupation of Germany?

THIS TRAP can be avoided by taking formal and open diplomatic action. The young Communists will not march into west Berlin unless the Soviet occupation commander tells them to. We should, therefore, address the Soviet authorities directly, setting forth the evidence as we know it about the march, and explaining firmly but fully and clearly why the march has been prohibited and why it will not be permitted. We should then ask the Soviet authorities to cooperate with us in preventing violence and bloodshed in the streets of Berlin. If we get no satisfaction, we should then put the Security Council on formal notice that there is a threat to the peace in Berlin.

THIS diplomatic action, which should not be rhetorical and declamatory but which should be weighty and reasoned, will put the whole world on notice that if there is shooting in west Berlin, it will be because the Soviet authorities in east Berlin deliberately sent the young men there to be shot. That will be the truth of the matter. But if Mr. Acheson does not register that truth by formal diplomatic action now, he will regret the omission later if there is shooting in Berlin. In fact it is rather hard to understand why this diplomatic action was not begun some time ago and then carried on concurrently with the police and military measures.

Prettyman to Speak

The link that had to come

The two main roads to the solution of life's problems have been the way of Science and the way of Religion.

Though seeking the same answer, they have seemed to be divergent, to demand a choice of one at the expense of the other.

The rational thinker felt religion was lacking in logic and unsupported by proof of its claims.

The religious thinker felt science ignored his deep conviction that there was a primal cause, Mind or intelligence, which he reverently called God.

Today these two paths converge on common ground. Both science and religion can now agree. For through the Christian Science textbook of Communist imperialism in other parts of the world."

Mr. Truman explained that he had decided to set the record straight because there was so much "confusion" over what the Administration was doing to defeat communism in this country.

"This Administration," he said, "has fought communism with action and not just with words. We have carried on this fight with every law on the statute books, and we have recommended new laws when we found they were necessary and could be framed without impairing the very freedoms we are seeking to protect."

He told how 11 top-ranking Communists were convicted in New York and mentioned other successful prosecutions, noted that more than 1000 persons are being investigated to determine whether their citizenship should be revoked for subversive activities, and disclosed that 138 persons are about to be deported on grounds involving communism.

He told how he set up the Employe Loyalty Program three years ago with two objectives in mind: to see that no disloyal person should be employed by the Government, whether he was a Communist or a native Fascist of the Silver Shirt or Ku Klux Klan type; and to see that loyal Government workers were protected against false or malicious accusations.

He said that the FBI and the loyalty boards in the various agencies, together with the Loyalty Review Board, had worked quietly but effectively to carry out the program. He observed that the Loyalty Review Board, central organization in the whole program, was made up about half and half of Democrats and Republicans, and was headed by Seth Richardson, who was an Assistant Attorney General in the Hoover Administration.

Only Tiny Fraction Disloyal

"Under the supervision of this board, the loyalty program has rid the Government of all employes who were found to be disloyal—and they were only a tiny fraction of 1 percent.

"Not a single person who has been adjudged to be a Communist or otherwise disloyal remains on the Government payroll today.

"The able men charged with carrying out the loyalty program know that keeping disloyal persons out of the Government is a business which must be done carefully and objectively.

"They know that the job cannot be done by publicly denouncing men as 'Communists' without having evidence to support such charges, or by blackening the character of persons because their views are different from those of the accuser, or by hurling sensational accusations based on gossip, hearsay, or hunch.

"They know that no one whose principal concern was the security of this country would try to do it that way. They know that any one who had information about Communist activity, and who placed the security of this country above selfish or partisan considerations, would turn that information over to the FBI, so that it could be properly investigated and the necessary action taken.

"I have been surprised to see how much ignorance and misunderstanding there is about the loyalty program—even on the part of people who should know better. It has occurred to me that perhaps they do know better—that perhaps there is some element of politics in their accusations.

"A large part of the hue and cry about the loyalty program has centered on my refusal to turn over to a congressional committee confidential loyalty files concerning individual employes. I have already stated several times the reasons why these files must not be disclosed. I want to restate them briefly, now.

Must Preserve Confidence

"The preservation of the strictest confidence with respect to loyalty files is the single most important element in operating a loyalty program which provides effective security for the Government and justice for the individual employe.

"The disclosure of these files would not only destroy the whole loyalty program but would seriously damage the future usefulness of the FBI. Information is given to the FBI in confidence, which the FBI has sworn to protect. Breaking the confidence would not only greatly embarrass and even endanger the informants involved but would gravely impair the FBI's ability to get future information from other confidential sources.

"Opening these files would reveal FBI procedures and methods. It might reveal highly secret information vital to our national security and of great value to foreign nations.

"Disclosure of the files would result in serious injustice to the reputation of many innocent persons. This is true because the FBI investigative files do not contain proven information only. They include unverified charges and statements, as well as mere suspicions, which, upon investigation, are found to be untrue.

"If I should now open these files, I would create a precedent for future cases in which access to these files is demanded—and there would be many of them. This would completely destroy the loyalty program, since, as experience shows, it would mean an attempt to try all loyalty cases over again in newspaper headlines, although they had already been carefully considered and fairly decided by a bipartisan board of loyal and distinguished Americans.

"This question of maintaining the confidential character of information which the President determines it would not be in the public interest to disclose is not new. It goes back to the beginning of our Government. Washington, Monroe, Jackson, Cleveland and Theodore Roosevelt are only a few of the Presidents who have taken the same position which I am taking.

"Despite the historic precedents, with which I was thoroughly familiar, I gave the most careful consideration to the recent request of a Senate committee for access to the loyalty files. I obtained the views of Attorney General McGrath, Loyalty Review Board Chairman Richardson, and FBI Director Hoover before I reached my decision to deny this request. All three were unanimous in recommending to me in the strongest possible terms that I refuse to make the files available. The decision was mine and I made it. I am confident that no President, whatever his party, would have acted otherwise.

Most Loyal Civil Service

"The Federal employe loyalty program has demonstrated that the United States has the most loyal service in the world. It is a splendid organization which I am proud to head.

"Of course, in an organization as large as the United States Government it is always possible, despite the greatest precautions, that there may be a few bad individuals. We shall not for one minute relax our vigilant efforts to protect the security of the Government.

"The present Attorney General and his predecessor have repeatedly asked that if any person has any information about the presence of any Communist in the Government, it be furnished to them.

"I now repeat that request.

"If any citizen knows of the presence of a single Communist or other subversive person in any Fderal job, let him furnish that information, and the evidence which supports his belief, to the Attorney General or to the FBI. Any information that may be furnished in response to this request will be promptly investigated and will be acted upon if the allegations are found to be true.

"The fact of the matter is—because of the measures we are taking—the internal security of the United States is not seriously threatened by the Communists in this country. There are proportionately fewer Communists in this country than in any other large country on earth. They are noisy and they are troublesome, but they are not a major threat.

"Moreover, they have been steadily losing ground since their peak in 1932, at the depth of our greatest depression, when they polled the largest number of votes in their history.

"There is a right way and a wrong way to fight communism. This Administration is doing it the right way, the sensible way.

"Our attack on communism is embodied in a positive, three-fold program:

"One, we are strengthening our own defenses and aiding free nations in other parts of the world so that we and they can effectively resist communist aggression.

"Two, we are working to improve our democracy so as to give further proof, both to our own citizens and to people in other parts of the world, that democracy is the best system of government that men have yet devised.

"Three, we are working quietly but effectively, without headlines or hysteria, against communist subversion in this country wherever it appears, and we are doing this within the framework of the democratic liberties we cherish.

"That is the way this Administration is fighting communism. That is the way it is going to continue to fight communism."

Senator McCarthy promptly issued a reply assailing the President for "complete indifference to the greatest threat ever faced by this Nation . . ."

He said he intends to ask for equal radio time "to present the people's case against Communists and other dangerous and unnatural people shaping the policy of this Nation."

Bar to Help Keep Reds Out Of U. S. Jobs

By Melvin Altshuler
Post Reporter

The Federal Bar Association pledged itself at its first national convention here yesterday to guard against Communist infiltration of Government departments and agencies.

This, FBA declared, is its "especial obligation in the period of the cold war now existing with the USSR." The organization is composed of present and former attorneys in the Federal Government.

FBA's resolution on communism "charged" its members and officers "to assist the Government in every manner possible, and to the fullest extent possible in combating any and all attempts to infiltrate."

Such infiltration, the resolution pointed out, "is an acknowledged part of the Soviet strategy" and might include not only Communist Party members but persons "who are subject to control and direction by the USSR."

FBA's afternoon business session at the Statler Hotel also adopted a resolution endorsing the United Nation's Genocide Convention. (Genocide refers to mass killings by government order, particularly of racial, religious or political groups).

The resolution called on the Senate to ratify the U. N. convention "with the understandings" proposed by the Foreign Relations subcommittee of the Senate studying the United Nations draft.

In a speech keynoting the one-day convention, Solicitor General Philip B. Perlman suggested that FBA study the possibility of suspending or disbarring lawyers who "have been punished with fines and sentences . . . because of the contemptuous manner in which they have conducted themselves" in Federal courts.

Obviously referring to certain attorneys who represented the 11 convicted Communists in New York, Perlman said:

"It may be that this association should study the records in all such cases, and take steps . . . to have those guilty of attempting to destroy respect for the courts either suspended or disbarred.

"We have noted, too," he said, "that on a number of occasions lawyers who have been questioned by congressional committees or by grand juries declined to answer on the ground that the answer might tend to incriminate them.

"They undoubtedly have the right to claim the privilege granted by the Constitution, but wherever that privilege is claimed by a member of our profession, we cannot escape the question as to whether the person who claims it is a proper person to practice law, to remain a member of our profession.

"The question," the solicitor general added, "is not an easy one to answer."

A reference by Perlman for FBA action on the Genocide Convention resulted in the group's resolution, proposed from the floor.

Attorney General J. Howard McGrath, who welcomed President Truman to the organization's dinner, stressed the importance of laws in a democracy.

"It is justice, properly administered, which will bring about (the) moral regeneration (needed) to achieve a lasting peace," McGrath said. "Our common law doctrine of the supremacy of law, and our insistence on the security of individual rights against any official unauthorized action," he said, "is a gospel which we must preach to all and practice with sincerity and effectiveness."

Earlier in the day, Agriculture Secretary Charles Brannan outlined the history of governmental price supports.

In resolutions passed at the convention, FBA went on record as:

"Disapproving" the general exclusion of the chief legal officers in Government from provisions of the recently passed Executive Pay Bill. The resolution said the exclusion is "regarded as unjustifiable discrimination against members of the legal profession in the Government as a whole."

Recommending that only "duly authorized" attorneys be permitted to represent persons having legal business with the legislative, judiciary and executive branches of Government.

Noted a "general encroachment" in the use of "lay personnel" in positions that should be filled by attorneys in government, and decided to "bring this matter to the attention of the Civil Service Commission . . . to the end that qualifications for legal positions in Federal service be set and maintained at the level of duly licensed attorneys."

Urged that the Uniform Military Code, HR 4080, "be reported out of the conference committee promptly and be enacted into law," and,

Praised Attorney General McGrath for his citizenship program.

Democrats Watch Primary in Alabama

Birmingham, April 24 (AP).—Whether Alabama will return to its traditional place in regular Democratic ranks is the major issue in the party primary to be held May 2.

The outcome of that election will largely decide whether the State again rejects the national Democratic nominees over the civil rights issue.

That happened in 1948 when Alabama went for the States' Rights ticket.

A bitter fight is on to decide whether the same thing can happen in 1952. It centers on the race for State Democratic executive committee, the party governing body.

The committee led the 1948 break with the national party.

Strong Forces Opposed

Strong political forces are arrayed against each other in the State committee fight. Senators Hill and Sparkman are spearheading a move to insure Alabama's 11 electoral votes for the regular Democratic nominees next time.

On the other side are the leaders of the 1948 revolt, Gessner T. McCorvey, State committee chairman, and his followers. They advocate continued control of that body by those who split with the regular Democrats two years ago.

This is not a pro and con battle over the civil rights measures. Both sides oppose the civil rights bills. But the McCorvey group contends the fight can best be conducted by holding on to the threat of giving Alabama votes to some Democrat other than the regular party nominee.

The other group says the most effective fighting can be done within the Democratic Party framework.

Pledged in 1948

In 1948, Alabama's Democratic presidential electors were nominated in a primary election. Every one of them had signed a pledge not to vote for Mr. Truman or for any other candidate who accepted the civil rights measures in his platform.

These electors were under the Democratic emblem in the November election and received the normal and overwhelming party majorities.

Opponents of the States' Rights faction charged that the voters had not understood what was happening when they nominated the anti-Truman group.

This time the lines will be more clearly drawn. The State committee is made up of 72 members, eight from each of the nine congressional districts. Rival slates are being pushed in each district.

The State committee fixes the rules for all Democratic primaries. Capture of the committee by either side would virtually decide the State's course in the 1952 presidential race.

Hill is a candidate for renomination which in this State means reelection. But he plans no campaign except on the committee question. His opponent for the Senate seat is Lawrence McNeil, young Birmingham businessman without previous political experience.

McNeil has been accusing Hill of only lukewarm opposition to the civil rights measures.

Fifteen in Governor's Race

A record-breaking 15 candidates qualified for Governor. Three are prominently identified with the 1948 break from the Truman-Barkley ticket.

Governor James Folsom, who cannot succeed himself under State laws, also is an issue in the race for Governor.

Folsom is campaigning actively for Philip J. Hamm, his revenue commissioner. Hamm was soundly beaten two years ago when he opposed Senator Sparkman.

Eight of the nine Alabama Representatives in Congress are up for reelection. The other, Representative Sam Hobbs of Selma, is not running again from the Fourth District.

Housewives, Too

ENRIQUE AVELEYRA, of 5020 Nebraska ave. nw., rides a 250-pound turtle at the Zoo, gift of the late Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania

By Frank Carey
Associated Press Science Reporter

If you think that everything at the Zoo is sent in by explorers and scientists from faraway places, pull up a chair.

Housewives, schoolboys, businessmen, even policemen, have given animals, birds or reptiles to Dr. William Mann's menagerie.

Various Presidents have relayed gifts from admirers in this and foreign countries. Calvin Coolidge gave a raccoon he had kept for some time in back of the White House.

Housewives specialize in birds which fall from treetops. Nice bluejays, robins and cardinals have joined the Zoo's family that way. So have screech owls and even a pileated woodpecker or two.

Sometimes Skunks

Housewives, or their husbands, also contribute valuable pet parrots and turtles—sometimes even pet skunks.

"Of course," says Dr. Mann, the Zoo's director, "the skunks always have had their chemical warfare removed."

Schoolboys are always popping up with a box or a paper bag of snakes.

"I keep warning them against grabbing copperheads," says Dr. Mann, "but they don't pay much attention."

During the Easter season Dr. Mann generally gets a windfall of ducks and bunny rabbits.

"It's funny," says the Doc. "Rabbits—and guinea pigs, too—go big out here. People look at them as much as they do the elephants."

Police and 'Possums

Alarmed citizens sometimes call police to report a "wild animal" hovering outside their bedroom windows. The police rush out—only to find an itinerant opossum preening itself in the morning sun. They arrest the 'possum and make a fast run to the Zoo.

Dr. Mann says the Zoo will accept just about anything in the animal, bird and reptile line as a gift—"my motto is 'N. R. A.—Never refuse anything' "—but he's choosy about "deposits."

Deposits are creatures left temporarily in the Zoo's care by their owners. The Zoo will accept them—and even feed them for free—if they are "useful for exhibition."

Carnival people sometimes park an odd leopard or two during the off-season. People who have to leave home for extended periods are sometimes allowed to leave parrots or pet turtles. Once a Congressman, Representative Carl T. Curtis of Nebraska, left a domestic rabbit.

"But we can't take in everything," says Dr. Mann firmly. "Otherwise, we'd be running a regular boarding house."

D. C. Trade Board Shows Steady Gain

Groups Active

Home Rule Talks Heard By Citizens

Three citizens' associations heard talks on the Kefauver bill last night, two groups reserving action and one favoring the home rule measure for the District.

The Mid-City Association unanimously backed the legislation, after hearing Herbert P. Leeman, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations.

Both the Shipley Terrace and the North Calitol citizens associations reserved opinions after talks by speakers favoring the measure.

Sturgis Warner, a Washington attorney, addressed the Shipley group while Harry N. Stull, former president of the Federation of Citizens Association, spoke before the North Capitol body.

In other action, the Mid-City association condemned the move of the Board of Education in turning over Central High School for the use of Negro students; indorsed the D. C. commission-sponsored "clean-up" campaign and deplored the slash by the House in the D. C. appropriation bill. The meeting was in the Thomson School, 12th and L sts. nw.

Tribute to George McCurry of the Shipley Terrace Citizens Association was paid by the group at its meeting in the Oxon Park apartments, 2607 Southern ave., Oxon Hill. McCurry, as chairman of the membership committee, doubled the membership to 4500, bringing in 100 newcomers himself.

Gerald Russell was nominated for president of the association. Others presented for election at the next meeting were: Walter Short, for first vice president; Mrs. Anthony Trunfio, second vice president; Mrs. Henry Everett, recording secretary; Robert Borras, corresponding secetary; E. C. Simmons, treasurer; and for delegates, James W. Campbell, jr. and Frederick C. Belen.

The North Capitol association heard the first half of a two-session program on home rule at a meeting in the Lutheran Church of Atonement, 2 Rhode Island ave. ne. Next month, an opposition speech will be heard.

Society of Natives

Evan H. Tucker, sr., president of the Northeast Washington Citizens Association for 50 years, was honored by the Society of Natives, meeting at the Mayflower Hotel last night.

Tucker, now 85, missed only one citizens meeting in half-a-century, he said, prior to giving a speech on "Washington Affairs of the Past Years and Today."

The group also opposed the 10 percent cut in District appropriations voted by the House, and urged the return to the old formula where the Federal Government paid for 40 percent of the District's upkeep.

Georgetown

Opposition to the Congressional 10 percent slash in District appropriations was voiced by the Georgetown Citizens Association, meeting at St. John's Parish Hall, Potomac and O sts. nw., last night.

The group also favored a rent control resolution which would permit removal of present restrictions, but would forbid landlords to raise rents more than 15 percent above figures established in 1941.

Citizen Group Vetoes County Road Spending

The Allied Civic Group, Inc., of Silver Spring, voted last night against dipping into county funds to finance Montgomery County's share for the cost of improvements on Georgia ave. extended.

The resolution, introduced by Dr. Manuel Shpritz on behalf of the Glenview Citizens Association, was voted down, 13 to 9.

Opponents argued that in other instances of street improvements, owners of abutting property are assessed on a frontage foot basis for the cost of sidewalks, gutters and curbing. They said there should be no exception in this case.

Supporters declared, however, there should be an exception because the job is a State highway project.

The State Roads Commission proposes to improve and widen Georgia ave. from Colesville rd. through Glenmont, at a cost of $2,800,000. The State will pay two million dollars of total cost for the improvement of the four-mile stretch of roadway, leaving the county with an obligation of $800,000.

Robert T. Snure, ACG president, appointed Dr. Shpritz chairman of a nominating committee to draw up a slate of officers for the annual election May 27, and named N. Merritt Batchelor as chairman to arrange the group's annual banquet in June.

Board of Trade Directors

Schlosser Luchs Neal Nee

Moore Balshaw Drake Jones

Maddox Parks Smith Henry

. . . Twelve elected directors of Washington trade body

A hale and hearty Washington Board of Trade was described last night by President Frederick P. H. Siddons in his report to the annual membership meeting in the Mayflower Hotel.

The Board's financial condition is sound, Siddons said, and the Membership Committee under Howard C. Drake has brought in 1674 applications, an all-time record, during the past year.

Re-elected to the Board of Directors were A. G. Neal, president and chairman of the board of the Potomac Electric Power Co.; L. Gardner Moore, vice president and general manager of the Shoreham Hotel Corp.; Harvey L. Jones, vice president of Sandoz, Inc.; Sterling A. Parks, district manager of the Gulf Oil Corp., and H. Randolph Maddox, president of the Chesapeak and Potomac Telephone Co.

Seven new members were elected to serve on the 36-member Board of Directors. They were:

Howard C. Drake, owner of Drake Press; Fred A. Smith, president of the Fred A. Smith Co.; Edgar Balshaw, distribution division manager of Safeway Stores, Inc.; Frank J. Luchs, executive vice president and treasurer of Shannon and Luchs; Milton H. Schlosser, jeweler; Ernest F. Henry, attorney; and Maury L. Nee, treasurer of the P. J. Nee Co.

The board of directors will meet at 11 a. m. today in the board room of the American Security and Trust Co. Building, 15th and Pennsylvania ave. nw., to elect officers for the 1950-1951 term.

Russell L. Hibbard, director of unemployment compensation of General Motors and principal speaker of the evening, told the several hundred members assembled that employer disinterest in unemployment compensation administration can hurt them financially and do serious injury to the economy.

Hibbard said District laws are far from adequate in providing employers with "tools" to cooperate against abuse of unemployment compensation.

In his annual report, Siddons stated the board intends to oppose a pending Senate bill which would liberalize unemployment compensation benefits in the District.

Reporting on the activities of the Greater National Capital Committee, chairman Joseph C. McGarraghy, said Washington has the heaviest convention schedule in its history this year with 275 conventions on the calendar. In addition, six million "pleasure visitors" are expected this year, he said.

Announcement of the campaign to raise $110,000 for the expenses of the Greater National Capital Committee was made by Clark G. Diamond, campaign chairman. The drive will be conducted during May.

Al W. Lee reported on preparations for the Board's 54th annual Spring outing scheduled for May 20 at Chesapeake Beach Park, Md.

Truman Host May 3 To Pakistan Premier

President Truman will be the host of Liaquat Ali Khan when the Prime Minister of Pakistan arrives here May 3 on a state visit.

The State Department last night said the Prime Minister will visit Chicago, New York, San Francisco, Los Angeles, New Orleans, Houston and Boston during a tour of about four weeks.

Communist Loses Right to Collect Idleness Benefits

Omaha, April 24 (AP). — District Judge James M. Patton held today that a man who "made himself unavailable for work by declaring himself a Communist" is not entitled to unemployment compensation.

Judge Patton ruled in the case of John E. Hester, Omaha, who had appealed a ruling of the State deputy commissioner of labor and a three-man board.

Hester, 58, was injured in an altercation with union members when he attempted to pass out Communist pamphlets during a Labor Day parade last fall. He testified he has been unable to find work since that time.

"Mr. Hester made himself unavailable for work by declaring himself a Communist," Judge Patton said, since no one in this part of the country will hire a Communist.

Big Increase Seen in School Enrollments

A Maryland public school enrollment of 400,000 by 1957, or 115,000 more than today, was forecast last night by State Superintendent of Schools Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, jr.

Speaking before a "school night" audience at a dinner meeting of the Prince Georges County Chamber of Commerce, Dr. Pullen said the pupil increase would bring from 600 to 800 new teachers into the system each year.

His talk, at the Prince Georges Golf and Country Club, emphasized the needs within the State system. Dr. Pullen stressed particularly the necessity for added normal school facilities to train the new teachers and listed junior colleges, an increased program for the physically and mentaly handicapped, a larger adult education program, expanded summer school program and statewide nursery schools and kindergartens as other "obvious needs."

Speaking on the program also were Thomas S. Gwynn, jr., director of Prince Georges County school planning; William S. Schmidt, assistant superintendent of schools, and G. Gardner Shugart, county superintendent of schools, who introduces Dr. Pullen.

Nicholas Orem, jr., president of the Chamber of Commerce, introduced his father, who for 22 years was superintendent of schools in the county and now is vice president of the Maryland State Board of Education.

ALWAYS ON THE LEVEL?

Not all roads are boulevards, and not every street can always be level as a ballroom floor.

But if you think, sir, that there's nothing you can do about it—are you game to make a test that may prove you wrong?

All we want you to do is sample a Buick ride.

We want you to sit in this broad seat and aim your gun-sight ornament at the roughest stretch of road you know.

We want you to see how soft coil springs all around, not on front wheels alone, soak up those jars and jolts, fairly float you over cobbles, railroad crossings and weather-pocked macadam.

We want you to try the back seat—and see how free of toss and throw it is, how soft, low-pressure tires on wide Safety-Ride rims cut down the sway and swerve on sudden curves.

Feel, please, the steadiness of this car under you as Buick's stout torque-tube takes rear wheel wiggle-waggle out of your going.

Note the quick, firm snub of Buick shock absorbers, the absence of engine vibration, the sensation of soaring over roads on which your wheels never lose their sure-footed grip, the special liquid smoothness of Dynaflow Drive.*

Particularly if you've been driving a car that seems patterned to move ahead by leaps and bounds, we want you to experience a Buick ride for comparison's sake.

Try any Buick—SPECIAL, SUPER or ROADMASTER—they're all "on the level" with you all the time, as we'd like to demonstrate.

Just see your own Buick dealer. Ask him for a no-obligation test ride. After that—well, decide for yourself if you hadn't "better buy Buick!"

Five Arraigned on Narcotics Charges; 11 More Sought

Five persons charged with narcotic law violations were held for grand jury action or for future preliminary hearings by United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence yesterday

They were arrested Saturday in the beginning of the roundup by police and Federal agents here of an alleged dope ring which police said was doing business at the rate of $200,000 a year.

Lieut. H. H. Carper, head of the Metropolitan Police narcotics squad, said his men still hold warrants for 11 individuals in the alleged ring, whom they are seeking. The 11 apparently disappeared after news of the arrests of the first ones became public.

Charles Hannon Levister, 39, alleged head of the ring here, waived preliminary hearing yesterday and was held for grand jury action under bond of $3000, as was Harry Lee.

Cases of the other three brought before Commissioner Lawrence were continued to May 9 for preliminary hearing. They, and the bonds set on them, are: Virginia Blevins, $1000; Frederick T. Gray, 38, $3000, and William Francis Corridan, 54, $2000. All except Mrs. Blevins are charged with possession and sale of narcotics. She is charged with possession.

Coy Favors Tighter Ban on Gambling Data

paid off on horses—or football, baseball or other sports events.

"This is the information," he said, "which the professional gamblers and bookmakers presently get by means of interstate communications facilities." A denial of such information also would end the telephone layoff or hedge bets, supposedly handled by the kingpins of the gambling world and running into astronomical figures.

Newspaper News Exempt

Coy pointed out that the Justice bill would exempt any gambling information going to newspapers and other "printed publications." This, he said, was "self-defeating," for the papers and scratch sheets publish odds and prices paid.

The FCC head said he had doubts of the constitutionality of such a sweeping ban as contemplated in the Justice bill. But, he said, the current Federal ban on lottery information is a perfect precedent for a ban on bets, betting odds and prices paid.

No newspaper could claim, Coy told the Senators, that its freedom of the press was being invaded if it could publish all information about sporting events except the bets, odds and prices paid, which he contended "clearly have no independent news value other than with respect to gambling."

Radio stations, under the FCC bill, could broadcast races as they are run (instead of having to wait an hour) and television stations could televise live events. But neither could announce bets, odds or prices paid and the television camera would have to avoid the racetrack tote board.

Penalties Provided

The FCC bill would provide penalties of up to $1000 and/or a year in jail, the same as for lottery law violations. In addition, FCC "could and would" use its present controls over Western Union, American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and radio and television stations to penalize any firm which knowingly permitted its facilities to be used illegally.

Coy said FCC favors legislation to break up the interstate gambling racket and that he personally thinks the time has come for Federal action to help the States and local governments cope with the problem. But, he pleaded, don't saddle FCC with a hopeless administrative job.

The Senate subcommittee on Wednesday morning will begin hearing testimony from Western Union, A. T. & T. and Continental Press, the big racing wire firm. Continental's general manager, Thomas F. Kelly, has wired McFarland asking a chance to "refute the slanderous and libelous statements" he contended have been made about the wire service by previous witnesses.

Meanwhile, action on the resolution for a special Senate crime investigation committee, to be headed by Senator Kefauver (D., Tenn.), was again further delayed when a Senate Democratic Policy Committee meeting was cancelled. Majority Leader Lucas (D., Ill.) was ill. No date was set for a meeting.

Technician Calls Guilty Verdict Unconstitutional

Stephen Robert Dellavalle, a Takoma Park dental technician, was found guilty of practicing dentistry without a license by a jury in Prince Georges County Circuit Court yesterday in Upper Marlboro, Md.

Judge Charles C. Marbury fixed bond at $500, and postponed sentencing, pending the filing of briefs by the defense that Dellavalle was tried under an unconstitutional act of the General Assembly.

Charges were brought by the State Board of Dental Examiners which alleged Dellavalle practiced dentistry when he made impressions for a set of teeth for Albert D. Rust of 3719 35th st., Mount Ranier. The offense calls for from $50 to $300 in fines and up to six months in prison.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

MY OPERATIVE in West Berlin, Fred Kirsch, reports that times are so tough in Germany there aren't enough mink coats to go 'round. So former heavyweight champ Max Schmeling is turning himself a fast buck by importing the weasel-like mammals from the United States and breeding 'em on his Hamburg farm.

Kirsch, the former German army captain who brought Schmeling to America in 1930, is now roaming Europe as an agent for a boxing combine that hopes to resuscitate the fight business in the United States by bringing in foreign pugilists.

POVICH

He reports that the European fighters are reluctant to quit their soft racket for the doubtfully golden shores of the United States. "They're making too much money over there," he says. "The Berliners are starved for entertainment and any fight card packs their stadiums. Last summer old Walter Neusel and Ten Hoff drew 55,000 to their fight at Dusseldorf."

The big boss of boxing in the American zone of Berlin is Schmeling's former trainer, Max Machon, now chairman of the West Berlin Boxing Commission. He's so important, says Kirsch, the Russians have been trying for three years to enlist Machon in their propaganda bureau.

WHEN, AT THE end of the war, Schmeling was screened by the British de-Nazification authorities, the biggest break he got was a document unearthed from the files of Propaganda Minister Goebbels, says Kirsch.

"I saw it with these eyes, and Schmeling has photostats," relates Kirsch. "It was an order by Goebbels in 1942, warning all German newspapers that Schmeling's name was never to be mentioned again, and that any favorable publicity for Schmeling was against the best interests of the Nazi Party."

Schmeling's crime, in Goebbels' eyes, was the day in 1941 when he was interviewed in Athens, during the Nazi's Greek campaign, by a reporter for CBS before America entered the war. On that broadcast parachute trooper Schmeling had said: "The British fight fair and square."

BEFORE THE United States troops marched into Germany in 1945, Berlin fight promoters had already resumed operations under Russian surveillance, says Kirsch. "The trouble was, they discovered the Russians were fight fans, too, and wouldn't stand for any mismatches.

"The chief promoter, Joachym Goettert, resurrected the old German welterweight champion, Gustave Eder, and matched him with a fair sort of fighter named Hans Teishman. The Russians didn't know that Teishman was still in Hamburg, in the British zone, assuming he was in Berlin.

"Goettert got the underground to move Teishman into Berlin, but the Russians grabbed him before he arrived, and without knowing his identity, escorted him back to the British. The Russian generals at the ringside raised a fuss when Teishman didn't show, and the promoter pleaded he was innocent.

"They finally agreed to a substitute so the card could go on, and despite Eder's willingness to carry the fellow, it was a putrid fight and the Russians screamed. Goettert sneaked out of the arena before it ended."

THERE WERE repercussions, though, says Kirsch. "The next day, the promoter, the commission chairman and eight others connected with boxing in Berlin were ordered to report to the Russian Kommandaturat. The poor fellows figured that meant Siberia, and were tempted to hide out, but finally decided to report.

"They kissed their wives goodby, stripped themselves of their watches and jewelry and went to the Kommandaturat to face the rap. The Russian general thundered 'Who is the promoter?' The badly scared Goettert didn't answer, at first, finally spoke up. 'It was a bad fight,' said the Russian. 'You will pay 10,000 marks ($2500) to the Kommandaturat.'

"Goettert and his friends weighed the 10,000 marks against the prospect of Siberia and paid up eagerly. Three weeks later they learned that they hadn't contributed anything to the Russians' war chest, apparently. The same general, they read in the papers, was getting 20 years somewhere behind the Urals for grafting."

Sheboygan, Waterloo, Denver Drop Out of NBA

Chicago, April 24 (AP).—Three members, Denver, Colo.; Sheiboygan, Wis.; and Waterloo, Iowa, today quit the National Basketball Association and immediately announced plans for an eight or ten-team rival circuit.

Representatives of the three cities named Doxie Moore, veteran professional cage executive, as commissioner of the proposed loop.

The three clubs had failed to post a $50,000 cash performance bond and their walkout left the NBA with a membership of 12 clubs. St. Louis last Saturday announced it was quitting the NBA and Anderson, Ind., previously had sold its franchise to the league.

Moore Headed Old NBL

Moore, who was general manager and coach of Anderson and headed the former National Basketball League which was absorbed by the NBA said he would call a meeting in two weeks to organize the new league.

He said interested cities also include Oshkosh, Wis., or Milwaukee, Grand Rapids, Mich., St. Paul, Des Moines, Omaha, Colorado Springs, Colo., Rockford, Ill., Anderson, Terre Haute, Ind., St. Louis and Evansville, Ind.

The rift again set the stage for competitive bidding for players which existed before the NBA gobbled up the National loop two years ago.

The NBA earlier attempted to negotiate with Sheboygan and Waterloo as part-time members with a guarantee of one game with each NBA member. This was rejected and Magnus Brinkman, Sheboygan president; Chris Narsau, Waterloo president, and Jerry L'Estrange, Denver president, walked out of the meeting.

Maurice Podoloff, NBA president, said St. Louis' resignation, a matter of formality, would be accepted later.

Then in the night session the NBA purchased all players on the St. Louis team and voted to retain its franchise in that city for three years. Among the players bought by the association are Ed MacAuley, star center; John Logan, Belus Smawley, and Red Rocha.

"We now are boiled down to a good working organization," Podoloff said.

Caps Remain

Still in the league are Chicago, Baltimore, Boston, Washington, Syracuse, Philadelphia, Indianapolis, Rochester, Fort Wayne, Ind., Tri-City (Ill.) and New York.

At the same time, however, the NBA president disclosed that, by special dispensation, the Chicago Stags—reportedly aided to the extent of $40,000 by the NBA last season—were given until June 1 to post the $50,000 performance bond.

Pinky George, Des Moines fight promoter, said he was interested in purchasing the Stags and keeping them in Chicago. A Stag spokesman said no decision will be made on the club's future until June 1.

Podoloff said the league would now begin work on the college-player draft which will be announced tomorrow. Players of Anderson and St. Louis will be thrown into a pool as part of the draft.

Only Nats' Hit in Weird 3-Run 8th Is a Bunt

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Ray Scarborough was back at his pet hobby—beating the Boston Red Sox—last night again, and he notched another complete success with a three-hit pitching job that delivered a 3-to-0 victory to the Nats.

It was no breeze for Scarborough, who found himself locked in a scoreless struggle for seven innings with the amazing Al Papai, a cast-off from the Browns, who was pitching the best game of his spotty major league career.

The Nats won the ball game in a weird eighth inning which saw them score all three runs on one hit, and that a bunt, against the hapless Papai, whose infield support collapsed with suddenness.

Papai invited disaster at the start of the Nats' eighth when he committed the high crime of walking the opposing pitcher, Scarborough, on four wide pitches. Then a pair of Washington bunts completely undid him.

Gil Coan laid down the first one, and with an easy force play at second in sight, Bill Goodman pulled Vern Stephens far off the bag. Sam Dente caught Johnny Pesky flat-footed with another bunt and the panic was on.

Pesky threw wild past first base, and Scarborough dashed all the way home from second on Dente's hit and the error, while Coan raced to third. Papai bravely fanned Noren in this crisis, but a bit later was in deep trouble again.

Coan Scores on Interference

Eddie Robinson tapped a pitch back into the box and Papai, after hesitating too long to route the ball around the infield for a double play, elected to throw to the plate to flag down Coan, who was dashing in from third. A wild rundown ensued.

The trapped Coan led the Red Sox a merry chase on the base lines in what appeared to be his hopeless situation, when all of a sudden the Nats got a break. Catcher Matt Batts, without the ball in hand, knocked Coan flat, and Umpire McKinley ruled it interference, allowing him to score.

Manager Joe McCarthy raced from the dugout and protested violently, even to the point of nudging the umpire forcefully. McKinley motioned as if to wave him out of the game, but later the umpire declared he was merely remanding McCarthy to the dugout.

The Nats weren't through, however. Dente, who had reached third while Coan was giving the Red Sox the slip, scored a moment later when Goodman momentarily fumbled Stewart's hot smash and had no play at home, making the put-out at first.

Ideal Night—for Football

A gathering of 9323 saw the contest, with their overcoats their most treasured possessions, at least last night. Pregame rains delayed the contest for 25 minutes and a damp chill sent the thermometer skidding into the 40s.

Scarborough, the perennial nemesis of the Red Sox, had trouble only with Al Zarilla, who was batting third in the accustomed spot of the ailing Ted Williams, still bedded down in Boston. Zarilla made all three of the hits Scarborough allowed, two of them two-baggers.

The Nats' rugged right-hander was never sharper, but he had to be something special to best the astonishing Papai, supposedly a second-flight Boston pitcher. Going

WWDC Carries ALL Nats' Ball Games

Many phone calls to the sports desk of The Washington Post last night indicated that baseball fans still do not know what station is broadcasting games played by the Washington Nats.

Station WWDC is broadcasting all Nats games this year, both day and night. The dial number is 1260.

WTTG, channel 5, televises all HOME games.

Miller Keeps Alive Hole-in-One Run At Rock Creek

The seventh hole-in-one scored at Rock Creek Public Golf Course in the last four weeks was rung up yesterday by Cleve Miller.

Miller scored his ace on the 17th hole on the B course using a 4-iron. The distance was 159 yards. He shot a one-over-par 35 for nine holes.

Bums Whip Braves on Error, 6-4

Boston, April 24 (AP).—By scoring two runs on a bad throw to third in the seventh inning tonight, the Brooklyn Dodgers whipped the Boston Braves 6-4 before 18,478 fans who sat through 47 degree temperature for nearly three hours.

The defeat, in the first night game of the season, was suffered by 23-year-old Dick Donovan, who made his first major league start. Don Newcombe, who was relieved by Willard Ramsdell in the ninth when the Tribe threatened, was credited with the decision, his first. He lost his first start.

Roy Campanella, Dodger catcher, aided his team's effort by crashing a two-run homer off the base of the scoreboard in left field in the sixth inning. It was the second four-base swat of the young season for Newcombe's battery mate.

That pulled the Dodgers into a 4-4 tie which was broken for good when Catcher Del Crandall threw poorly to third base in an effort to pick off Duke Snider.

The ball skittered into left field foul territory. Snider and Carl Furillo, whose steal of second prompted Crandall to peg to third trying to trap Snider, raced home with the winning run.

Snider had walked, stolen second, and moved to third on Furillo's single off Buddy Kerr.

Cards Win On Lanier's Double, 1-0

Cincinnati, April 24 (AP).—Max Lanier doubled home the only run of the game in the ninth inning tonight to give the St. Louis Cards a 1-to-0 victory over Cincinnati. Lanier and Ken Raffensberger had waged a brilliant scoreless pitching duel until that final frame.

The defeat was the fifth straight for the Reds who have yet to win a game this season.

Lanier's long ninth-inning drive to left scored Harry Walker from second with the winning run. Steve Bilko had opened the inning with a single. Walker went in to run for him and was sacrificed to second by Del Rice.

Raffensberger managed to get Eddie Miller but Lanier then came through with his wallop.

The chunky Cardinal southpaw hurled brilliant ball in winning his first game of the season. He allowed only two hits after the second inning, fanned seven and walked only two.

A Champion's Story

That Was No Follies Blond, Sarazen Finds— It Was Just a Rib From Inimitable Hagen

(Editor's Note: This is another in a series of anecdotes about the colorful golf career of Gene Sarazen, who will appear in The Washington Post's National Celebrities Tournament June 3-4 at Army-Navy Country Club.)

By Gene Sarazen

WALTER HAGEN and I were playing the second part of a two-part grudge match at the Westchester-Biltmore Club. The course was soaked. It had been raining in the New York area for several days. It began to come down again before we teed off, and it showered on and off during the match. By noon, all the orange in the orange-and-white tie I was wearing had washed off onto my shirt.

GENE SARAZEN

I kept the tie on, though. It had arrived at the club that morning in a box with the following card: "You probably don't remember me but I'm the blonde from the Follies you met. Don't look for me in the gallery. I don't want you to take your mind off Hagen. I want you to wear this tie for good luck."

When we stopped for lunch, I was protecting a one-hole lead. I ate quickly and then walked fretfully up and down, anxious to get on with the match. Hagen saw me pacing and called me over to his table. "Say, kid," he said with a mischievous twinkle in his eyes, "that's a handsome tie you've got on. Where'd you get it?" I told him that a friend had given it to me. "Just a friend?" Hagen said.

"Why I thought I had written in that note that your mysterious admirer was a Follies' girl who wanted you to pay strict attention to beating Hagen." I should have suspected a notorious practical joker like Walter from the beginning. I had been looking for that blonde all morning.

Severest Critic

Until we were married, my wife Mary thought I was perfect, but then she found fault with my putting. On our honeymoon we played our first round of golf together, "Gene," she said sweetly as we came off the second green, "you're cutting your putts." I shook my head in chagrin and amazement. "How long have you been playing golf, dear? A year? And you're telling the PGA champion that he's cutting his putts? I've heard everything now."

Adventurer and Promoter

Major Livingston, Manager Of Uline Arena, Dies at 66

MAJ. HOWARD W. LIVINGSTON, adventurer, promoter and more recently manager of Uline Arena, died in his sleep early yesterday morning at his home, 1915 16th st. nw.

His body was found by his wife.

LIVINGSTON

A native of New York City, Major Livingston celebrated his sixty-sixth birthday April 2. He came to Washington in 1934 after a varied career which included panning gold in Alaska during the gold rush.

An affable, modest man, Major Livingston was decorated by several foreign governments for his services during World War I in which he served as a marine pilot with many months of combat duty.

His Alaskan gold experiences brought him into close personal contact with such luminaries as Tex Rickard, greatest boxing promoter of his time; poet Robert Service and author Jack London, with whom he later toured Europe.

Livingston promoted various sports shows throughout the Southeast and teamed with Jack Dempsey to stage the Jack Sharkey-Young Stribling heavyweight fight at Miami Beach in 1926. He later became promoter-matchmaker at the Miami Garden.

At one time in his career, Livingston also became interested in the motion picture industry, doubling as an actor and director and later producing pictures for Mutual Films and Livingston Productions, his own company.

He was one of the first referees licensed in Washington when boxing was legalized in the District 17 years ago. He also promoted fight shows at the old American Legion Arena and Rialto Theater.

He was appointed assistant manager of Uline Arena in 1943, leaving two years later to become director of midget racing at the West Lanham, Ill., track. He returned to Uline's last year.

Funeral services will be held Thursday at 1 p. m. at the Hines funeral home. Burial will follow at Cedar Hill Cemetery.

5-Year-Old Pays $4.20 For Victory

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., April 24. Mrs. J. D. S. Coleman's Certified after winning one race in 37 tries over a two-year period, ran back to a promising Laurel effort today and took the Cumberland Purse, featuring the Monday program here.

Saddled by H. M. Simpson, of Washington, the 5-year-old horse scampered home seven lengths in front of the closest opposition.

Principal Joe, owned and trained by J. P. Simpson 3d, accounted for second money in the field of eight. J. Valila's Skyflight was third with A. A. Fishback's Fancy fourth.

Certified, beaten in all of his seven previous starts this year was installed the favorite and paid $4.20. Apprentice Jockey Jimmy McDermott, leading local rider, used the whip for insurance. The winner was clocked in 1:28 4/5 for the about seven furlongs contested over a slow, drying out track.

Weatherman Wins

On the swing into the stretch, Certified was given the gun by McDermott, went to the outside, wore down Principal Joe and was drawing away to a long lead at the finish line. Principal Joe, however, finished gamely, having a length and a half advantage over Skyflight at the wire.

Weatherman, a son of the once popular jumper Annapolis was a convincing winner of the Hagerstown Purse, the day's secondary feature. In a field of eight sophomores, Weatherman scored by two and a half lengths over G. E. Curtis' Kerry Airs, the favorite. Mrs. Coleman's Boston Hero was third in the group of eight.

Well handled by Apprentice J. C. Lauer, Weatherman was clocked in 1:18 for the Charles Town course and returned an $8 mutuel.

The daily double on the 6 and 2 combination paid $101.40. Trainer J. H. Van Wert, who saddled two winners for the day, sent F. E. Westenberger's Secret Knight out to win the first race at $12.20. The second event went to M. and I. Prickett's Miss Moon, paying $9.40.

'Vet' Starter

Dr. A. C. Goff Gets 'Em Off Again at Rosecroft Track

THE MAN who started the Hambletonian classic at Goshen, N. Y., the past three years, and who is marking his thirty-sixth season with the sulky sport, yesterday again was named starter for the 20-night trotting meet at Rosecroft Raceway, opening May 22. He is Dr. A. C. Goff, 56-year-old Ithaca, N. Y., veterinarian, who also will get the field away in this summer's Hambletonian.

DR. GOFF

Rosecroft President William E. Miller, who announced the appointment of Dr. Goff, with the approval of the Maryland Racing Commission, said he has known the Ithaca man since the days when the old scoring system was used and the horses merely lined up and went into action. He termed him "one of the best in the world, an official who has reputation for preventing faulty starts."

Dr. Goff has served at Santa Anita, Calif.; Hollywood, Calif.; Buffalo Raceway; Lexington, Ky., and Bay State Raceway, Foxboro, Mass. In his day, he has used such new-fangled apparatus as the Phillips gate, with the 72-foot wing span; the McDowell gate, with the 62-foot spread; the Phantom barrier, which consists of two telescoping steel arms spread to 80 feet, and the Smith gate, which projects a barrier of five rubber strands in front of the horses. All are operated by high-powered autos.

Season Nears

Area Expects Banner Year In Boating

By Happy Walker

THE NEXT FEW weeks will be busy times for most of the area yacht clubs and boating groups who will be holding their formal spring openings and flag raising ceremonies, signalizing the traditional kick-off of the summer boating season in Washington and nearby waters.

Walker

Heading up the parade of spring openings is the Chesapeake Yacht Club on West River at Shadyside, Md. which throws open its doors Saturday. There will be the usual opening day fanfare which will draw a large number of Washington skippers who make up the popular bay club's roster.

The sun deck lounge, California bungalows for guests, tennis and shuffleboard courts are all in readiness for a full season's activity. The club restaurant will also open for the season.

The occasion will be the setting for the installation of this year's flag officers. Slated for installaton are commodore, John M. Thomas, Shadyside, Md.; vice commodore, Harry Clarke, Washington, D. C.; rear commodore, Thomas T. Keane, Washington, D. C.; fleet captain, Bruce Lamond, Washington, D. C.; secretary, Joseph K. Ferguson, Shadyside, Md. Board of directors, George E. Dickie, L. H. Gilpin and Frank N. Proctor, all of Washington, D. C.

ADVICE reaching this department give a hint of what can be expected of the blue chip speedboat kings this coming season when the power moguls meet to challenge existing speed records including the President's Cup regatta marks. It might be well to mention that the cost of these speedboat giants run into the thousands and consume many months in designing and building.

Detroit's Dossin Brothers are showing the John Hacker and Ed MacKenzie designed model for their new Miss Pepsi, which is expected to make a strong bid for the Harmsworth Trophy this year. The new $85,000 job is 35 ft. long, 9 ft., 3 in. wide and is powered with twin Allison motors, connected in line by a specially designed gear box. The motors will have a combined 6400 rpm capacity, connected by a 7 ft. shaft to the propeller. How far are these speed demons going? When we see the new Miss Pepsi we will find out.

Meanwhile, Henry J. Kaiser, west coast industrialist, is making design and engineering changes on his last year's ill-fated Hot Metal and Aluminum First. His carefully guarded plans do not disclose just what the newcomer to the Gold Cup class will come up with this early in the season.

A highlight of the preseason sailing events of note, will be the meeting on Wednesday, May 3, at which time the internationally known Ernest Ratsey will present recent developments in the field of sailing and sail boat racing. The last of six generations of sailmakers, both in England and America, Ernest Ratsey will present a two-hour demonstration of models, gear, sails and props.

The meeting starting at 8 p. m. at the Corinthian Yacht Club, is sponsored by the Potomac River Sailing Association, and is expected to draw a banner crowd of area sailing skippers.

He Fans 11, Towson Gets Only 6 Hits

American University's baseballers took their second straight game yesterday at Ward Circle after losing 10 in a row. The Eagles defeated Towson Teachers, 9-6, in a Mason-Dixon Conference contest.

"Packy" Morris came in to pitch for the Eagles in the first after Towson had pounded McGuire for three runs. Morris retired the side, struck out 11 and yielded only five hits the remainder of the game.

It was the second conference win for American. They defeated Baltimore on Saturday. Bob Lamon and Leroy Ishman shared batting honors for the locals yesterday with two doubles and a single each. Art Morales hit three singles.

Dear Folks:

I've had several inquiries as to the breeding of the 4-week-old filly who has been entertaining between races by galloping around the paddock beyond the back stretch. The young miss, who seems tireless, is by Equistone and out of the mare Blossom Rose. Mrs. A. J. Boyle's modest, but well appointed and picturesque breeding plant has produced a number of winners. Two juveniles, bred and raised by Mrs. Boyle, have been major track winners this spring—Jones Reward, by Reaping Reward, out of the mare Ene, at Laurel and Numbers, by Equistone, out of Fly Tackle, at Havre De Grace. Jimmy McDermott and Mike Sorrentino are staging a merry duel for riding honors at the meeting which closes on Friday. With Havre de Grace closing Wednesday and Pimlico opening Saturday, Charles Town will have an exclusive on racing in this area Thursday and Friday.—BILL.

into the eighth, both men were boasting three-hit shutouts.

Scarborough was in trouble in the first inning when a walk to Dom DiMaggio and Zarilla's single into left center put men on third and first with one out. But he disposed of Stephens on a pop up and registered the first of his three strikeouts over Rookie Tom Wright.

Zarilla started trouble for Scarborough again in the fourth by leading off with a double to left center, and moved to third on Stephens' grounder, but Scarborough was sheer magnificence at that point. He bent his curve ball past both Wright and Doerr and got them as strikeout victims, Doerr on three pitches.

Zarilla Gets 2d Double

Zarilla's two-bagger to left that Coan couldn't hold after a long run in the sixth, was the Red Sox's final hit. Scarborough negated it, however, by getting rid of Stephens on a fly to Noren.

Dente's single in the first and Stewart's single in the fourth were the only hits the Nats could show against Papai, until Evans led off with a triple down the left field line in the fifth.

Then it was that they were a frustrated gang. Papai didn't permit any of the next three to get the ball out of the infield, and Evans perished on third.

He couldn't survive the eighth, though. It was a sabotage.

The Nats will get a look at their old pal, Walter Masterson, as a starting pitcher for the Red Sox this afternoon . . . It will be Sid Hudson for the Nats.

Season Opens April 29

West Virginia Stocks Trout: (122,600 Rainbows, Brooks)

By Ralph Murdock

WEST VIRGINIA opens its trout season April 29 and the Conservation Commission advises that 122,600 legal size trout have been released in preparation for the 1950 opening. This is far in advance of last year's stocking of 89,000 trout.

Murdock

This year's release of trout includes 68,500 brooks and 54,100 rainbows. A subsequent stocking will be made during the open season.

An additional 4000 brown trout will be stocked as soon as these reach legal size, which will be within the next few weeks.

The brook and rainbow stocking figures by stream systems are:

Cheat River system, 12,500 brooks, rainbows. Elk River system, 7300 brooks and 4500 rainbows.

Gauley River system, 9000 brooks and 5500 rainbows. Greenbrier River system, 8200 brooks and 4000 rainbows.

South Branch River system, 12,000 browns and 4450 rainbows. Tygart River system, 5100 brooks and 3000 rainbows.

Little Kanawha River system, 500 brooks and 600 rainbows. Potomac River system, 10,000 brooks and 1750 rainbows.

Ohio River system, 1600 rainbows. New River system, 600 brooks, 7100 rainbows. Big Sandy system, 2300 rainbows.

Coal River system, 2800 rainbows. Guyandotte River system, 500 brooks, 1900 rainbows. Monongahela River system, 500 brooks, 1000 rainbows. James River system, 700 brooks, 500 rainbows.

THE WEATHER MAN gave the back of his hand to a shivering turnout of trout fisherman when they converged on the choice streams of the Split Rock Lodge on opening day.

The lodge, a peak fishing and hunting rendezvous, is located in the Pocono Mountains at Split Rock, Pa.

The 25 degree temperature didn't keep the hardy anglers from the Tobyhanna River's "dream mile," a red-hot spot for trout.

The waters at this location registered 34 degrees and the trout were sluggish and disinterested. Among the disappointed anglers was Brig. Gen. R. C. M. King of the British Embassy.

Top honors of the day went to Dr. Archie J. Rasler, a Philadelphia osteopath who nabbed five good sized rainbows before 9 o'clock.

All the more remarkable is the fact that the smiling Pennsylvanian is blind—and he has been since World War I.

He took his fine batch of rainbows with no help except a little assistance when they were ready to net.

Friends Wins Track Meet

Friends School scored 51 points yesterday to take a triangular track meet from St. Albans and Stuyvestant at Friends, St. Albans was close with 46. Stuyvesant had 37.

Curtis Turnbull of Friends took first in the high and low hurdles and second in the high jump to tie with Charley Warner of St. Alban's for high point man.

Leap in River Fails to Save Fast Driver From Police

An 80-mile-an-hour dash down Pennsylvania avenue Saturday put Andrew Haywood Turner in Municipal Court yesterday on 22 traffic charges and one of assaulting a police officer with a dangerous weapon—his automobile.

Turner, 27, of 419 Temple ct. sw., was held for action of the grand jury under $2000 bond on the assault charge and $500 bond for hearing May 9 on the traffic charges.

Turner made his first mistake, police said, with an illegal turn at 13th and F sts. nw. at 6 p. m.

Minutes later, Turner was swimming in the Anacostia River off 1st and V sts. sw., trying to escape from Pvt. Samuel Wallace, and Wallace was firing warning shots over his head.

Police gave this version of the intervening minutes. Pvt. Isadore Fein saw Turner make the illegal turn and blew his whistle. Wallace heard the whistle, saw Turner take off, and went after him on a motorcycle.

At 14th and F sts., Wallace watched Turner come within inches of mowing down Patrolman Rudyard Hesse. Turner drove down 14th to Pennsylvania ave., and then opened the throttle, hitting speeds of 75-80 miles an hour, according to Wallace, who was close behind.

Eventually, the two ended up at Buzzard's Point, where Turner jumped out of his car and into the river. Three shots returned Turner to Wallace.

Wallace, unhurt during the chase, showed up in court yesterday with an injured arm. He spilled some hot grease in his kitchen over the weekend.

Tenth Day Passes In Bookbinders' 20-Plant Strike

The 10-day strike of 180 AFL bookbinders against 20 print shops and binderies appeared no nearer settlement last night after five hours of negotiation.

The members of Local 4, Brotherhood of Bookbinders, walked out of 20 plants April 15 over a demand for a 37½-hour work week. They asked for continuation of the $85 weekly wages they were receiving for 40 hours.

Efforts to end the dispute are being made by the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

MARAGON—From Pge 1

Maragon Acquittal Bid Denied

when he denied negotiating any Government business for private firms from 1945 to 1949, that he received any money for such activities and that he had only one bank account.

Evidence was presented to show that he had a sizable bank account in San Antonio, Tex., that he got several fees for Government contact work and that he drew $3893 from a Chicago perfume company in 1945 and 1946 while he was on a mission to Greece for the State Department.

The Government rested its case with an announcement that it was compelled to drop one count of the indictment—that Maragon lied when he told Senate investigators his mother-in-law, Mrs. Hattie Johnson, Salisbury, Md., lent him $5000 last year.

Mrs. Johnson is ill with a heart ailment and could not be produced as a prosecution witness.

Each of the three remaining counts against Maragon carries a two to 10-year penalty. If convicted on all the charges, Maragon could be sentenced to a maximum of 30 years in prison.

One of the last prosecution witnesses was Francis D. Flanagan, chief counsel of the Senate committee. He told about a series of conversations the committee staff had with Maragon during its "five percenter" investigation.

Goldstein, on cross-examination, attempted to bring out that committee investigators knew about the San Antonio bank account all along.

"Is there any reason why you did not ask him about the account prior to the hearing?" Goldstein asked.

"I had been questioning Mr. Maragon for over a week before the hearing," Flanagan replied. "He gave us conflicting and different stories about his bank accounts."

Gary Urges Embargo On Filling Vacancies To Halt Postal Firing

Representative Gary (D., Va.) says the postal economy program can be made effective "without dismissing a single regular employe."

He points out that there is an annual turnover of about 34,000 among Postoffice's half million employes. By refusing to fill vacancies for several months, Gary believes, the economy program can be made as painless as possible for postal employes.

However, people who should know say the economy program would wipe out the jobs of at least 15,000 employes instead of 10,000, as first estimated. Also, that the hours of many substitutes would be cut, and it would take them longer to get regular appointments. Most employes slated for the ax are substitutes and temporaries.

VA: Administrator Carl Gray may be called back into active Army service for a temporary tour of duty in Europe. He's a general in the reserves. He'd return to the Veterans Administration after his Army service.

FCC: The term of GOP Commissioner George Sterling expires soon. Sterling is a good bet for reappointment.

WAGE STUDY: An experimental study of wage rates paid the Government's per diem employes is to be made in Philadelphia. It could have a far-reaching effect on the salaries of all wage board workers.

The Philadelphia study is to be conducted jointly by the Defense Department and the Bureau of Labor Statistics. The BLS would like to have the job of collecting data on which per diem wage rates could be fixed in any and all areas. Each agency now does its own wage research.

Meantime, the Budget Bureau has asked each agency to supply it with the cost of gathering data and fixing salaries of wage board employes.

P & MA: Agriculture's Production & Marketing Administration has given promotions to Williams Evans and Robert Bier for superior accomplishments. Also, it has given cash awards for economy suggestions to Louis Baker, $435; Williams Means, $40; James Armstrong, $15, and Virgie Moseley, $10.

TOP 400: The Civil Service Commission later today will release the names of the officials and employes who have been named to the 400 jobs in the three new super grades. Full details on them will appear here tomorrow.

NOTES: The House Expenditures Committee has voted to reject the President's reorganization plan No. 18. The plan is objected to by many employe groups because the salaries would eventually be cut of those postal jobs that would be transferred to General Services. It provides for the transfer of some Federal buildings operated by Postoffice to GSA.

SPLIT: The Federal Bar Association and the Federal Trial Examiners Conference are split over how the jobs of trial examiners should be handled. The bar group would have the examiners appointed by the President and be subject to Senate confirmation. The examiners would have life-time jobs and be paid about $14,000.

Such a plan, of course, would throw the jobs into politics and the Trial Examiners Conference is opposed to it for that very reason. The conference wants the examiners kept under the Civil Service system.

JOBS: Civil Service is accepting applications for mathematician jobs to pay from $3825 to $10,000 to start, and for chemist, physicist and metallurgist to pay from $4600 to $10,000 a year . . . At Fort Myer, Va., exams are open for tailor to pay from $1.18 to $1.40 an hour, and for seamstress supervisor to pay $1.18 an hour.

COMMERCE: The rider to the Commerce appropriation bill to give the Secretary the power to fire any Commerce employe on the spot has been sidetracked in the House. It was knocked from the bill on a point of order raised by Representative Marcantonio of New York. House conferees, however, will ask the Senate to put it back in the bill.

Orchestra Manager Quizzed in Jury Fixing

Daniel Gary Appears Before Grand Jury Probing Tampering With Lewis Panel

Daniel M. Gary, 54-year-old band manager, was questioned for an hour and a half yesterday by the grand jury investigating efforts made to tamper with the jury that convicted gambler William "Snags" Lewis in January.

Gary was subpenaed Saturday in New York, where he had been questioned by FBI agents. He said yesterday he was a former business associate and friend of Bennie C. Caldwell, nightclub proprietor, who was indicted March 28 on charges of tampering with the Lewis jury.

Gary would not reveal the subject of his testimony before the grand jury. He said he is 54, lives at the Theresa Hotel in New York, but maintains offices here at 208 S st. nw. He said his wife is a teacher in the District schools.

Through his attorney, Perry Howard, Gary admitted he had been present on at least one occasion during the 17-day trial of Lewis and two associates, but only once, and then to see Howard.

The grand jurors investigating the alleged jury tampering were scheduled to be discharged at the end of their regular three-month term April 1, but have been held over.

A second witness was subpenaed in connection with the jury tampering yesterday, but failed to appear. He is James Marcus Vance, proprietor of the Dunbar Pharmacy in the Dunbar Hotel at 15th and U sts. nw. His attorney, Curtis Mitchell, filed a motion to quash the subpena at noon, but the motion was not disposed of.

Assistant United States Attorneys William Hitz and Edward L. Carey are presenting the facts to the grand jury.

Gary, who said he is also in the real estate business, made two appearances before the grand jury, the first time for only a few seconds. On that occasion, Mrs. Luraner D. Ivey, 43, 49 47th st. se., a juror in the Lewis case, was testifying before the grand jury.

Caldwell was charged with offering Mrs. Ivey, among others, money to influence her to vote not guilty.

Lewis was sentenced to serve from 10 to 30 months in prison, after seven men and five women deliberated 19 hours before convicting. He has appealed.

Stays Issued Against Two Bottle Clubs

The Government yesterday obtained temporary restraining orders against two more after-hours "bottle" clubs, preventing them from transferring capital assets or dissolving voluntarily pending court trials.

The clubs involved are the Stagecrafters, 433 3d st. nw., and the United Nations Social Club, 1804 M st. nw.

United States Attorney George Morris Fay is trying to shut down 11 bottle clubs by dissolving their charters, charging that they are operating as subterfuges.

Restraining orders against three other clubs were issued April 20. The Government is seeking to prevent the clubs it hopes to dissolve by court order from dissolving voluntarily and then reincorporating under different names or owners.

The restraining orders, granted yesterday by District Judge Edward M. Curran, will stand until similar motions for preliminary injunctions are argued May 2. The Stagecrafters case is due for trial May 9; the United Nations Social Club May 15.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Ross O'Donoghue said attorneys for the Atlas Club, 1349 E st. nw., and the Players Guild, 5th and K sts. nw., had stipulated with the Government that they would not transfer assets or dissolve voluntarily, pending litigation.

The Government is expected to file motions to dissolve the charters of three more bottle clubs today.

Driver Cleared In Car Death

William J. Griffin, 22, 3601 Connecticut ave. nw., was found innocent on a manslaughter charge by Trial Magistrate Arthur P. Owens in Hyattsville police court yesterday.

The charge resulted from an accident on April 7 in which a car driven by Griffin ran off Defense hwy. near Sunnybrook, Md., and struck a telephone pole. A passenger, Lester F. Carrick, 30, of 206 65th st., Maryland Park, Md., was fatally injured.

Griffin testified he had been blinded by the headlights of approaching cars. Although he cleared Griffin of the manslaughter charge, Magistrate Owens found him guilty of reckless driving and fined him $25.

Bandit Gets $800 in F St. Office Holdup

The Washington Post
MRS. AVA K. SWANN
... Cashier is holdup victim

An armed bandit robbed a cashier of $800 in an insurance office on the fourth floor of the Washington Loan & Trust Building shortly after noon yesterday.

Mrs. Ava K. Swann, 42, cashier, of the Women's Benefit Association in the building at 900 F st. nw., said the man entered the small office just a few minutes after she had opened. She was alone in the office counting the money behind the cashier's cage.

Police said the bandit, a Negro of medium size with a scar on one cheek, brandished a pistol, snatched the cash and apparently escaped unnoticed down the three flights of stairs.

The incident was first noticed when Mrs. Swann ran screaming into the adjoining office. She related the story to Mrs. Mary Oakley, a secretary, of 6807 Riggs rd., Hyattsville, Md., who notified the building superintendent.

Police arrived 10 minutes later and immediately launched a fruitless top-to-bottom search for the robber.

Mrs. Swann lives at 7050 Oxon Hill rd. se.

Slain Attorney's Funeral Rites Set for Wednesday

The body of Bettie Renner, slain woman attorney, was returned to Washington yesterday for burial.

There will be a solemn requiem mass at 10 a. m. Wednesday at St. Matthew's Cathedral. Burial will be in Mt. Olivet Cemetery.

British police in the Bahamas, where the 37-year-old Washington woman was murdered last Tuesday, reported no progress in their investigation.

The District Bar Association, of which Miss Renner was a member, last night named the following honorary pallbearers:

Judge Edward A. Tamm of District Court, Judge Thomas D. Quinn of Municipal Court, Ivy Lee Buchanan, Robert R. Faulkner, Arthur C. Keefer, Irene Kennedy, Edison W. Mollohan, jr., Charlotte P. Murphy and Ellen Lee Parks.

Government Payroll At New High Record

The Census Bureau reported yesterday that Federal, State and local government payrolls totaled $1,423,600,000 in January, highest for any month in history. There were 6,119,000 civilian employes.

The Federal Government paid $553,100,000 in January to its 1,976,000 employes, while State and local governments paid $870,500,000 to their 4,143,000 workers, the bureau said.

Educators In Area Hit College Ills

Conference Brands All Discrimination As Unjustifiable And Un-American

Eighty-five delegates of colleges in Washington, Maryland, Virginia and Delaware met at American University yesterday for a one-day regional conference on discrimination in higher education.

After the day-long meeting, the group concluded rejection of school applicants because of "race, creed or national origin is unjustifiable and un-American."

It recommended:

1. Withdrawal of laws requiring segregation at the college level. Virginia and Delaware have such laws.

Schools with special objectives, such as religious institutions, State-supported schools, and those which aim for geographically representative student bodies, might set up special qualifications.

2. Establishment of a Federal program of scholarships and fellowships to reduce economic discrimination.
3. That schools give immediate consideration to appointing "a representative of a minority group to an important faculty position under conditions carefully planned to insure the success of the appointment."
4. A survey of the area to determine what faculty committees are doing in formulating and carrying out personnel policies, to what extent minority groups are employed, and to find out more about the attitudes of college staffs toward discrimination.
5. A student program to include community workshops, speakers' bureaus, student exchanges and leadership training.
6. Continuing "dynamic" education of trustees, administrators, students and the surrounding community.

Dr. Walter E. Hager, president of Wilson Teachers College, said the proposals were not adopted unanimously, and the delegates were not official representatives of their schools.

Discussion Leaders

Leading the discussions were Dr. M. Weldon Thompson of Lynchburg College, Lynchburg, Va.; Dr. Allan P. Colburn, acting president of the University of Delaware; Dr. G. Wilson Shaffer, dean of Homewood Schools, Johns Hopkins University; and Dr. F. G. Livingood, acting president of Washington College, Chestertown, Md.

Dr. Harold Benjamin, dean of the College of Education of the University of Maryland and keynote speaker, urged the educators to fight "divisiveness" based on fear and ignorance.

Committee Authorized

The meeting was the first regional meeting growing out of a conference in Chicago last November called by the American Council on Education with the cooperation of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.

Nine District institutions, three in Virginia, 15 in Maryland, and one in Delaware, sent delegates. George Washington University was the only major institution in the District not represented.

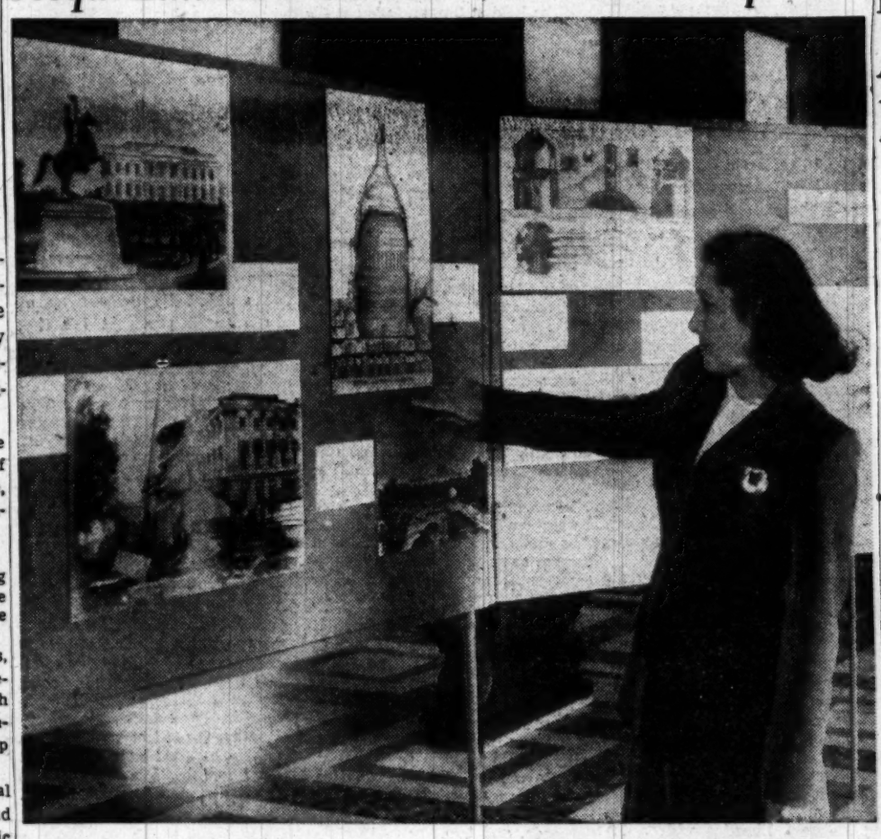
Double-Decker Fete Staged at Library; Sesqui Exhibit Traces D. C. Growth as Capital



Mrs. Robert Wickwirn of Corry, Pa., studies display depicting history of the District

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

Diplomats, Congressmen, scholars and persons who just plain like history swarmed to the Library of Congress yesterday to salute a double-decker Sesquicentennial celebration.

One hundred and fifty years ago yesterday President John Adams signed the bill establishing the Congressional Library.

A special exhibit in the ground floor gallery was unveiled. It traces the library's growth to what is believed to be the biggest library in the world. The exhibition will run until December 31.

Librarian Luther Evans chose the occasion to open an exhibition entitled "The District of Columbia" to commemorate the Sesquicentennial of Washington becoming the Capital of the Nation.

The D. C. exhibit of 450 maps, letters, and official documents in the second floor South Gallery, tells far more than a "dates-and-events" story of the city on the "Potawmack River" and how it grew.

A reception, sponsored by the Welfare and Recreation Association of the Library, highlighted the program.

Earlier, alert 88-year-old Mrs. Henry Martyn Robert, presented to the Library a group of original items showing the evolution of the first edition of Robert's "Rules of Order," written 75 years ago by her husband.

This American classic, now standard equipment for nearly every presiding officer of nearly every organization, was first published February 19, 1776. Up to last year 1,350,000 copies of the little red book had been sold.

The author's first printed effort was an 8-page leaflet in 1869—added yesterday to the Library collection—which began: "All business should be brought before the assembly by a motion of a member, or by presentation of a communication to the assembly."

"I know my husband would be

delighted to have his original work resting in the shadow of Congress," Mrs. Robert told Evans.

President Truman sent Evans a letter of congratulations in which he described the Library as "a steadfast servant of Congress," an institution that has aided "in generous measure in the essential work of extending the boundaries of knowledge and new learning for the benefit of the whole of mankind."

The Library's Sesqui exhibition, which will be on display through the spring of 1951, is a documentation of life here before the creation of the District of Columbia in 1790 through 1900—plus a few nostalgic sidelights for old-timers.

You will find, for instance, an item showing land values in downtown Washington in 1797. David Burness, "a local proprietor," sold a lot that year where a portion of Woodward & Lothrop store now stands—for $200.

There's an inventory of the personal estate of Pierre l'Enfant, the man who originally planned Washington, made at the time of his death. It was appraised at $45.

Clerk Sues U. S. For $250,000, Charges Overdose of Drug

A bank clerk who charges that he suffered a severe heart attack because of medication given him for a skin allergy at the National Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, sued yesterday in District Court for $250,000.

He is Arthur B. O'Neil of 4442 Garrison st. nw. The defendant is the United States Government.

O'Neil charges that he was given 13 times the normal dose of epinephrin August 1, 1949, at the hospital, and as a result his life expectancy is now "zero."

His attorneys, Paul R. Connolly and Howard Boyd, said O'Neil at the time was suffering from hives and that the hospital authorities knew that three cubic centimeters of the drug, the dosage given, would cause a heart disturbance.

Tuberculosis Held Burden To Economy

Over-emphasis on the decline of the death rate in United States in tuberculosis may be deterring present efforts to eradicate the disease, it was stated here yesterday.

Dr. D. T. Smith, Duke University professor of bacteriology and president-elect of the National Tuberculosis Association, sounded the warning at the annual meeting of the D. C. Tuberculosis Association.

The meeting and a separate conference on nursing problems in tuberculosis were preliminary events to today's opening of the forty-sixth annual meeting of the NTA at Hotel Statler.

Dr. Smith told District tuberculosis workers that the disease's economic burden to the Nation should be more emphasized than its fatality rate. For by comparison in death rates, he pointed out, tuberculosis falls far below diseases of the heart and cancer.

But based on what he called "calculated years" of economic loss for the diseases, he stated, heart disease in each victim costs but two "calculated years"; cancer perhaps five, and tuberculosis costs the country "20 calculated years."

At the same meeting, District association directors elected four new members. They include: for three-year terms, Drs. Frederick C. Fishback and Wilder P. Montgomery, and Barry Sullivan, and Janet Walker, R. N., and for one-year terms, Dr. Robert A. Bier and Miss Flora Brown.

Speakers at the separate symposium on tuberculosis nursing problems, at Statler Hotel, emphasized the acute need for more nurses specialized for tuberculosis care.

Fast Time Bill Snarled As Deadline Draws Near

Little Chance Seen For House Action As Nation Awaits DST on Sunday

Time goes on—but not the District daylight saving bill!

This was the situation yesterday as House leaders gave conflicting predictions on the chances this week for action on fast time legislation.

A bill would have to clear the House, go through final formalities at the Capitol, be signed by the President, and then a special order would have to be issued by the District Commissioners—all before next week—to start Washington into daylight saving in tempo with other cities. Other cities will change to DST Sunday.

First move is up to the House; members indicated doubt the first move would be made this week, but District Chairman John L. McMillan (D., S. C.), still hopes a time may be found this week to take up the bill.

It will take unanimous House consent because the House has consented unanimously to let the Federal funds bill have right-of-way over nearly everything else.

Representatives Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.) and James W. Wadsworth (R., N. Y.), District Committee members who have opposed daylight saving, said it is unlikely unanimous consent will be given.

O'Hara added that he thought it wrong for Washington residents to decide what should be the time for the government of 140 million people in the United States.

This referred to the Commissioners' poll showing 92,669 residents favoring saving time, 33,196 opposed and 17,718 listed as "don't care."

Meantime, Representatives Arthur G. Klein (D., N. Y.) and Anthony F. Tauriello (D., N. Y.), said they will urge the House to avoid future tangles by adopting the Senate-approved DST bill. The Senate measure would give the District Commissioners authority to order daylight saving here each summer.

Judge Tamm Rejects Move To Bar Press

Judge Edward A. Tamm of District Court refused yesterday to exclude newspapermen from attending a hearing related to an adoption case.

The ruling followed close on the heels of a decision last week of Municipal Court Judge Aubrey B. Fennell who declared, in an indecent exposure case, that newspapermen have an "inherent right" to be present at all criminal trials.

Judge Tamm made his finding after Attorney John J. Bernard interrupted questioning of a witness to declare that only by a private proceeding could the court protect "children" connected with the case.

The jurist ruled: "The court will not exclude either the press or the public in a case of this kind."

Before the judge was a petition brought by Mrs. Jean Nicely, 27, of Queenstown, Md., asking the court to revoke the "consent" she had given Mr. and Mrs. John E. Becker, of 720 E st. ne., for the intended adoption of Joyce Nicely, 6, one of her twin daughters.

Mrs. Nicely contended that she gave the consent in 1948 under duress.

Judge Tamm continued the case until May 8, when Joyce and Joan will return to the court.

Star Carries on Despite Dad's Death

The more than 5000 persons who crowded into Uline Arena last night for the opening of the Shrine Circus gasped when lithe Francine Volante plunged 75 feet in her "Leap of Death."

A murmur of relief swept the audience when an invisible rope brought her up short of destruction. A roaring ovation was given the petite performer when she stepped into the spotlight after her act and smiled.

However, only a few fellow performers knew that the smile masked grief. Several hours before she went on, Francine received word from Sarasota, Fla., of the death of her father, Frank Otaris, 73, a retired "big top" aerial performer.

The ninth annual Shrine Circus sponsored by Almas Temple to obtain funds for its charities, will continue through Sunday with matinee shows at 2:15 p. m. and evening shows at 8:15 p. m.

The 38 acts, bringing together circus performers from the United States and 12 foreign countries, runs the circus gamut—wild animal acts, aerial breathtakers, trained elephants, ponies, dogs, monkeys and an assortment of clowns.

Former OSS Man Called Larcenist

Bryant O. Pearce, 34, was indicted here yesterday on a charge that he pretended to be a Central Intelligence Agency official to purloin $561 in cameras and film from Sommers Camera Exchange, 714 14th st. nw.

The indictment, which was among 36 returned by the District grand jury, charges Pearce with false pretenses and grand larceny.

According to charges, on February 11 Pearce, who lives at 5119 S st. se., called up the exchange, said he was Warner Stutler of CIA and wanted four expensvie cameras and some film in a hurry.

The Sommers officials were told to give the equipment to a messenger who would identify himself mysteriously as "OSS-72."

The camera store complied but was never paid. Two of the cameras were later recovered after they were sold in New York. Pearce is a former OSS employe, police said.

Three men were indicted on a conspiracy to commit robbery charge. They are Albert Senior, jr., 29, of 612 8th st. sw.; James A. Lowry, 25, of 668 B st. se., and Aloysius B. Stramer, 30, of 1469 U st. se.

Senior and Lowry were later arrested, according to the charge, when, police said, they were about to hold up Aaron's Restaurant, 1514 K st. nw., on March 6.

Aurelio P. Martinez, 29, of 1826 18th st. nw., was charged with taking indecent liberties with a 14-year-old girl on March 12.

Clarence Cooper, 21, of 69 O st. nw., and Clarabelle F. Wright, 27, of 100 Virginia ave. sw., were indicted on housebreaking and larceny charges in the looting of $2274.70 in clothing from the Lillian M. Gusack store, 5022 Connecticut ave. nw., on January 27.

Clayton A. (Peanuts) Pina, 29, of 1835 Corcoran st. ne., was charged with robbing a Post Exchange at Bolling Air Force Base of $872.85 in goods on April 2.

Frank H. Lichtenwalter, of no fixed address, was charged with arson in the tossing of a lighted cigarette into a linen closet on January 28 at 2007 O st. nw.

D. C. Cabmen Again Lose Libel Suit

The United States Court of Appeals yesterday threw out a $400,000 libel suit brought against the Curtis Publishing Co. by the owner of a local taxicab fleet and 60 of his drivers.

The suit grew out of a February, 1948, story in The Saturday Evening Post, entitled "Never Give a Passenger a Break," by cab driver James J. Brennan.

The action was brought by Thomas W. Fowler, 448 New York ave. nw., owner of the Columbia Cab Co., and Driver Charles B. Howery, in his own behalf and in behalf of 59 other Columbia cab drivers.

In tossing out the suit, the Court of Appeals upheld an earlier decision by District Court Judge Alexander Holtzoff. The unanimous Court of Appeals decision was written by Judge Wilbur K. Miller, with Judges Bennett Champ Clark and Thomas F. McAllister, sitting by designation, concurring.

The allegations of damage were "much too general," the court ruled. Neither Fowler, nor the cab driver "sufficiently pleaded special damage," the decision said.

According to the opinion, the article attacked as libelous was illustrated in part by a picture of a Columbia cab, and contained this paragraph: "Only the natives who make a life study of the zone system know exactly how much is legal . . . when they point to the Capitol and ask if that's the White House, that automatically doubles the fare. Any guy unpatriotic enough not to know his Capitol should be penalized."

Ernest Potter Rites Slated for Thursday

A requiem mass will be sung Thursday for Ernest Vincent Potter, 63, former shoe salesman, in St. Bernadette's Church, Four Corners, Md.

Mr. Potter, a Washington area resident for 21 years, died Sunday at Suburban Hospital after a week's illness. He lived at 219 Granville dr., Silver Spring, for the past 10 years, and prior to that in Takoma Park.

Born in Chelsea, Mass., he was a member of the Knights of Columbus, and the Holy Name Society at St. Bernadette's Church. He worked as a salesman for the Regal shoe stores in Washington until he retired last year.

Besides his wife, Nellie H., he is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Doris P. Graham of the home; two sons, Maj. William W. Potter, USAF, and Arthur T. Potter, both of El Paso, Tex.; a sister, Mrs. Eunice Morrison of Berlin, Wis., and a brother, Arthur Potter of Boston, and 11 grandchildren.

The requiem mass tentatively is set for 9 a. m., with burial in St. Mary's Cemetery, Rockville, Md.

Citizens to Meet

The Oakland Terrace Citizens Association will hold its regular monthly meeting Wednesday night at 8 p. m. in the Kensington (Md.) Fire House. A special movie of interest to mothers will be shown.

Dr. Cox, 77, Dies; Retired U. S. Lawyer

Funeral services for Dr. Percy M. Cox, 77, who spent 50 years as a Justice Department lawyer after graduating from medical school, will be held at 3 p. m. today at the Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

Dr. Cox

Dr. Cox was stricken with a heart attack at his home near McLean, Va., Saturday and died in Garfield Hospital Sunday.

A native of Washington, Dr. Cox retired in 1947. Most of his career was spent as a trial attorney defending the Government against suits in the Claims Division and its forerunner.

He was graduated from the old Columbian College School of Medicine in 1895 and practiced briefly in Hyattsville. In 1897, Dr. Cox entered the Justice Department as a law clerk and secretary.

Receiving his law degree from Columbian College in 1904, Dr. Cox was admitted to the District bar the same year. He was a charter member of the Federal Bar Association and had planned to attend the current meetings.

He was also a charter member of the Justice Lodge of the Masons and was formerly a member of the Hiram Lodge. Dr. Cox was also active in the Holloway-Leavell-Amiss Society, a family association with a large following in Maryland and Virginia.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Betty Cox; a daughter, Mrs. W. W. Morell, 4824 Montgomery la., Bethesda, and two sons, James B. Cox, of McLean, and Percy N. Cox, of Baltimore.

The Rev. Lancaster Dies; Ex-Fredericksburg Pastor

Fredericksburg, Va., April 24 (AP).—The Rev. Richard Venable Lancaster, 61, who occupied the pulpit of the Fredericksburg Presbyterian Church for 25 years until his retirement in 1948, died Sunday at his home in Wardensville, W. Va.

Funeral services will be held here at 3 p. m. Tuesday.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Alma Warden Lancaster; four daughters, Mrs. Herbert Early of Alexandria; Mrs. W. R. Dacey of Arlington; Mrs. Frank Moss of Fredericksburg and Miss Natalie Lancaster, a student of Peace College, Raleigh, N. C.; a son, Richard Venable Lancaster, jr., of Richmond; two sisters and three brothers.

Oscar Hild Dies at 49; Musician Union Official

Cincinnati Ohio, April 24 (U.P.).—Oscar Hild, often mentioned as a possible successor to James Petrillo as president of the American Federation of Musicians (AFL), died in Holmes Hospital here early today. He was 49.

Mr. Hild, president of the Cincinnati Musicians Union, failed to recover from a paralytic stroke suffered at his home Friday night. He had been suffering from high blood pressure.

Employment Dips

Richmond, Va., April 24 (AP).—The State Department of Labor and Industry reported today employment in Virginia manufacturing establishments declined 1100 between mid-February and mid-March. The department noted the downward trend probably will be continued until July. The March total of workers was 211,600, a figure of 9600 below the March 1949 total.

Deaths Reported

The following deaths were reported yesterday by the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the District Health Department (figure in parentheses is date of death):

Lisetta G. Gaul, 82, 1028 Conn. ave. (23).
Eleanor McDermott, 72, Philadelphia, Pa. (23).
Mary Anna Clarke, 65, Convent of Good Shepherd (22).
Benjamin Adams, 62, 905 9th st. ne. (21).
(21).
Jack G. Jalepes, 81, 7336 14th st. nw. (21).
Henry Bausill, 56, Arlington, Va.

Retired D. C. Inventor Dies; Ex-Navy Aide

John Conrad Ernest Aschenbach, 73, retired Navy Yard employe and inventor, died unexpectedly Sunday at his home, 6310 5th st. nw., from a heart condition.

A native of Washington, he was educated in the local public schools and worked most of his life as a machinist, formerly with the Bureau of Engraving and the Express Spark Plug Co., Alexandria. He retired from the Navy Yard for the second time in 1945, having been recalled during the war.

Mr. Aschenbach was the inventor of the Express Spark Plug, a plug that couldn't be bridged by oil at the spark gap. At the time of his death, he was working on an enamel testing machine for the Bureau of Standards.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary Louise Aschenbach; a daughter, Mrs. Lillian Hough of 6300 5th st. nw.; a son, Henry Aschenbach of 610 Randolph st. nw., and four grandsons.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 12:30 p. m. at the Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will follow in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Cattle Embark

Newport News, Va., April 24 (AP).—A cargo of 1427 dairy cattle cleared this port for Haifa, Israel, aboard the SS Pass Christian Victory over the weekend.

It was the fifth, and largest, shipment handled here in the past several months. Previous cargoes comprised about 900 animals each.

D. C. Youth Among Japan Crash Victims

Official word was received here yesterday of the death of Robert Tarleton, 24, Tokyo representative of International Business Machines, by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Tarleton, of 507 2d st. se.

Mr. Tarleton

Mr. Tarleton, a Washington native, was one of the 35 Americans killed Friday night when an Air Force transport rammed into Mount Hirugatake, 37 miles southwest of Tokyo.

The crash victim attended St. Peter's Parochial School and was graduated from St. John's College in 1942. He joined IMB briefly before entering the Navy, and upon discharge in 1946, was sent to the Japanese capital by the firm. He was single.

In addition to his parents, he is survived by two brothers, Jerome W. Tarleton of 1609 Dennis ave., Silver Spring, and James M. Tarleton of 218 Orange st. se., and a sister, Sister M. Rose Bernard of the Order of Holy Cross, stationed in India. His father is a member of the District Police Traffic Division.

A telephone strike is harmful to many, helpful to none and costly to all.

LET'S LOOK AT THE FACTS

1 Every fair comparison shows that telephone people in Washington receive good wages.

2 Further increases in the rates you pay for telephone service are needed now to pay for past wage increases—so another general wage increase would make this need even greater and would make certain an immediate request for higher telephone rates.

3 The Telephone Company's offer to continue present contracts would mean regular progression increases this year for all employees who are not already receiving top wage rates.

4 In addition to good wages—made better by regular progression raises—telephone employees have excellent working conditions: a work week of 40 hours or less with extra pay for overtime, nights, Sundays and holidays; up to 3 weeks' vacation with pay and 8 paid holidays a year; exceptional opportunities for advancement in a business where promotions are made from the ranks; one of the most liberal employee benefit and pension plans in the nation—covering sickness, injury, retirement and death—all at no cost to the employee.

...AND THE FIGURES

HERE ARE SOME AVERAGE EARNINGS OF TELEPHONE PEOPLE IN WASHINGTON

Fully experienced Cable Splicers and Central Office Repairmen	$94.96 A Week	$4,957.00 A Year

(These earnings include pay for overtime, holiday, Sunday and night work. Employees in these crafts with one year's service average $49.37 a week or $2,577.00 a year; with five years' service, $74.48 a week or $3,888.00 a year.)

Fully experienced Switchboard Operating Employees	$59.23 A Week	$3,092.00 A Year

(These earnings include pay for overtime, holiday, Sunday and night work. Employees with one year's service average $44.44 a week or $2,320.00 a year; with five years' service, $53.01 a week or $2,767.00 a year.)

Fully experienced Business Office Women (Service Representatives)	$62.00 A Week	$3,236.00 A Year

(Service Representatives with one year's service average $47.59 a week or $2,484.00 a year; with five years' service, $54.21 a week or $2,830.00 a year.)

- Since 1939, Washington Telephone Wage Rates Have Gone Up 94%
- The Cost of Living in Washington Has Gone Up Only 64%
- The Rates You Pay for Telephone Service Have Gone Up An Average of Only 20%

Since telephone employees are well paid now—

since present contracts already provide for further PROGRESSION increases—and since another GENERAL wage increase would require an immediate request for higher telephone rates . . .

WE BELIEVE OUR OFFER TO THE UNIONS IS FAIR TO OUR EMPLOYEES AND FAIR TO YOU WHO PAY THE BILL FOR TELEPHONE WAGES

The Washington Post

SELECTING prize winners in the Children's Group (2 to 6-year-olds), proved a difficult task for judges yesterday in the finals of The Washington Post Sewing Contest. First prize finally went to a dainty blue and white organza frock, held by Mme. Bonnet (at center right). It was made by Mrs. G. C. Tewinkel of Silver Spring, Md. The judges, from left are Mrs. Charles Brannan, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture; Mrs. Lauris Norstad, wife of the Deputy of Staff for Operations, USAF; Mrs. Lee Rush, head of home economics department, District schools; Mme. Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador; Miss Kathryn Towne, associate professor of home economics, George Washington University; Miss Faye Mitchell, professor of textiles and clothing, University of Maryland

Tough Fight But They Won

Judges Name 8 Sewing Contest Victors

By Peggy Preston

EIGHT PRIZE-WINNING GARMENTS in The Washington Post Sewing Contest today are on the way to further fame—and perhaps, fortune.

These are the garments which yesterday were judged first in eight classifications of the competition, chosen from a grand total of 616 entries. Contestants who entered them will each receive a check for $50 and a personalized dress form. But the garments will go on this week to New York, where they will be entered in the National Sewing Contest.

Stakes are high in this Nation-wide race. To first prize winners in each of the eight classifications will go a check for $100. In addition, they will be awarded a week-end trip to New York, and the opportunity to see their garments modeled in the National Sewing Contest fashion show on June 7 at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

Meanwhile, the 16 contestants placing first and second in yesterday's judging can rest on their laurels, content that they are the outstanding seamstresses in the area reached by The Washington Post. To the second place winners will go checks for $20 each, and a book on advanced sewing technique, presented, as are the dress forms, through the courtesy of the Singer Sewing Centers.

Selection Wasn't Easy

IT WAS NO EASY TASK to select the winners. The panel of distinguished judges responsible for making the decisions expressed amazement at the over-all expert workmanship of the entries, and the creative talent displayed. The panel, headed by Mme. Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador, found the job especially difficult in those classifications where the entries were most numerous.

Most popular classification was No. 1 (coat and suit), in which 188 garments were entered. Next was No. 7, for children from 2 to 6 years old. In this group there were 120 entries.

A handsome suit of pin-check Forstmann wool was awarded first prize in the coat and suit division. It is the handiwork of Miss Ilene Mimura of Greenbelt, Md., and was made from a Vogue pattern. Second place was won by Mrs. Thomas Kennamer of Washington for her smartly tailored suit of gray featherweight worsted.

In the division devoted to clothes for youngsters from 2 to 6 years old, the prize went to a dainty blue and white organza frock with bonnet, which was made by Mrs. G. C. Tewinkel of Silver Spring, Md. A little boy's suit of gray flannel, the handiwork of Mrs. R. E. Rayle, took second place.

First prize in No. 4 (junior group) went to a 13-year-old expert, Miss Julie Walker of Washington. Her entry was a deep blue dotted swiss date dress, with white fabric belt, the skirt nicely detailed with inch-wide tucks.

Competition Runs High

AN INTERESTING three-piece outfit of white pique and gingham was judged outstanding in the Original Design division. Its designer, Miss Ruth Baylass Ray of Wood Acres, Md., displayed creative talent and imagination in the use of cording on the bolero jacket and wide, flaring skirt.

In No. 5, the group devoted to evening, lounge, beach clothes and negligee ensembles, the competition was especially high. Beautiful fabrics, fine workmanship and original ideas on design were evidenced in almost every entry. First prize finally went to an exceptionally lovely short evening dress of chartreuse cotton lace over nylon net and rayon satin. It was made by Mrs. Thomas L. Good of Washington. A full-length dinner gown of beige pink lace over taffeta and nylon net, fashioned by Mrs. Mark S. Gurnee of Silver Spring, took second place.

Entries May Be Claimed

WHILE THE EIGHT first prize-winning garments are being packaged and sent to New York, the remaining entries may be claimed this week by their owners. Contestants are requested to call at Contest Headquarters, 500 National Theater Building, today through Friday, between the hours of 9 a. m. and 5:30 p. m. They are also requested to bring with them the numbered receipts which they were given when they entered their garments.

Checks to the winning contestants are being put in the mails today. Officials of the Singer Sewing Centers will contact winners to present the additional prizes.

End D. C. Day Care Centers, Club Federation Urges

The D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs yesterday voiced disapproval of continuing the District's public child day-care centers.

With only one opposing vote the federation resolved that these nursery schools and kindergartens be discontinued on the ground that they were wartime measures and not needed today.

The child care centers were established in 1946 to provide day care for children of low-income working mothers. There are six centers in operation today, caring for some 280 children.

During their monthly business session yesterday at the Hamilton Hotel, the District clubwomen also revealed their stand on several resolutions which will be proposed at the General Federation of Women's Clubs, convention in Boston, Mass., opening May 28.

The D. C. association voiced opposition to the proposal of the GFWC's resolutions committee to remove wartime increases in Federal taxes on entertainment admission tickets.

The D. C. federation, at the same time, endorsed the proposed general federation resolution advocating reduction of Federal excise taxes.

Another reversal from the general federation policies came in the D. C. group's resolution opposing the genocide convention. The genocide convention, which outlaws mass slayings of political, religious or racial groups, has been supported since October, 1949, by the general federation.

In addition, the District group supported the general federation's resolutions which would (1) demand "stiffer penalties and pyschiatric treatment" for sex offenders; (2) strengthen counselling services for the youth in our schools, and (3) "strive to place the beloved national figure of Susan B. Anthony in the Hall of Fame during 1950."

Gillette Asks U. S. Peace Leadership

Senator Guy M. Gillette (D., Iowa) last night declared that the United States had been drawn into seven of the nine wars we have fought by the ultra-totalitarian regimes of Europe and said that was how we were most apt to be drawn into World War III. However, he said, "we are no longer a pawn to be pushed around. We have come of age as a nation . . . and we must lead the world along the path of brotherhood," he said.

Speaking before the National Society, United States Daughters of 1812 at the Shoreham Hotel, Senator Gillette pointed out that we stand today as the undisputed and responsible leader of the world," not as "upstarts calling ourselves a nation" as we were regarded in 1812.

It is up to the United States, which is not "controlled by inherited prejudices," to lead the world toward peace, the Senator declared, and emphasized the responsibility of groups such as the United Daughters of 1812 as well as citizens newer to this country, to bring our hopes to a successful fruition.

"Every deviation from the concept of brotherhood is postponing that day we pray for," the Senator said. "To hold that war cannot be banished is to hold that we cannot work out our own destiny," he added.

Earlier in the day, at the afternoon session of the first day of this two-day business meeting of the Fifty-eighth Associate Council of the Society, Senator George Malone (R., Nev.) said that raw materials being fed into Europe to aid countries there were being turned into manufactured products which were then sold to Russia and her satellites. It is a situation comparable to the scrap iron sold to Japan before the war which was returned to us on Pearl Harbor day, he said.

The Senator from Nevada also reiterated stands he had taken earlier against ratification by Congress of the International Trade Organization and repeated his opposition to giving assistance to European countries unless certain basic requirements are met—requirements which would include the incorporation of Germany into a United States of Europe.

Resolutions passed at yesterday's session included one against the "introduction of subversive ideas in American education" which made reference to "left-wing educators" who are urging "'reconstruction' of our educational system to indoctrinate children and adults with 'the social order' of 'world-mindedness,' conditioning our people for subjugation to world government, alleging that excess patriotism and loyalty to our country are unwarranted."

Mary Haworth's Mail

Woman Is 15 Years Older Than Intellectual Man She Loves, Whose Absorption in Abstract Theories Satisfies Him; How Spark Feeling?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am in love with a man of the intellectual type, whose culture and breeding are above question, but who seems unfortunately lacking in appreciation of the basic homely traditions upon which all solid happiness is founded.

I feel that his college education has warped his attitude toward marriage and is depriving him of the collective pleasures of family living.

I have tried repeatedly to counter Brian's unconscious superiority trend by making subtle appeals to his emotional nature, tactfully directing his thoughts to the personal plane, chatting of notable romances—although not the unmentionable kind recently headlined—and by stressing the satisfactions of shared experience, hoping to incite a yearning for love and affection.

But after 10 years of unobstrusive effort I must admit that I have failed, and I beg of you to tell me how to proceed.

How to Teach Joy of Sharing?

THERE ARE several factors in my favor. Brian is not robust, due to a combination of hereditary elements, plus many years' chronic asthma; and although I am 15 years his senior, the difference is fully absorbed by my superb physique and natural flair for youthful styles. Also Brian has neglected his personal appearance, due to his absorption in the abstract, which has not prevented him, however, from accumulating an ample fortune.

How can I convey to him the divine joy of sharing? And how waken him to the fallacy of intellectual exclusiveness that disdains the warmth of human contacts? I am convinced that his resistance to marriage stems from the unconscious, and that a free and normal exercise of his emotions would develop in him a balanced viewpoint. My devotion to his welfare will not let me give up the quest for his happiness; and your warm helpful interest in humanity emboldens me to ask your guidance.

V. C.

She Overlooks Basic Problem

DEAR V. C.: This is a difficult problem to sum up, inasmuch as Brian is neurotic and you are maladjusted; and your habitual engrossment in him is an unconscious attempt to escape from your own unsolved psychological difficulties.

It appears that Brian is more of a mouse than a man in dealing with people, and that he takes pretentious intellectual flight into realms of theory, to escape the blunders and bruises of actual intimate human experience. But you wouldn't be playing tag with him in this shadow world if you weren't lost to normalcy yourself in the time the game has been going on.

Interesting evidence of your solitary unworldly personality is given in your use of language. It is book-talk, about two centuries removed from living speech as used today in ordinary social communication. It reflects an 18th century spinster brand of thinking, which presumably was loftily free of hunger for "free and normal exercise of emotions" on the woman's part, and wouldn't have admitted such urges for anything. At least, not until after marriage.

First Remove Inner Blocks

STRIPPED of tinsel, your question is "How to marry Brian?"—an ambition you've worked at for 10 years, you say. Well, after so much telltale exertion, cautiously discouraged by him, your only chance of succeeding is to stop trying, I think. And maybe that tactic won't work, either. But if it doesn't, nothing will.

According to a study of bachelors' views, published in the current issue of Mademoiselle, the unmarried man involuntarily backs away from feminine devotion that he hasn't fought for; and the prospect of marriage does not appeal unless he believes the idea was his originally.

There is nothing new about this information, of course. Since time immemorial it has been known that a man likes to feel he is the aggressor in courtship, winning his choice after struggle and uncertainty. But seemingly you've overlooked the truism and need to be reminded of it.

Since your letter ignores your inherent difficulties, and presents self-seeking as magnanimity, my best advice is to enlist first-hand psychological help in getting acquainted with yourself, as will be necessary to develop accurate insight into the root causes of your perennial frustration. Without such knowledge you cannot relax in relation to Brian; and with it, you'll be able to find a more wholesome love-object than he, I predict.

For Balmy Spring and Summer Days Anne Gives Advice on Brightening Old Porch and Garden Furnishings

WITH long, sunny days and lingering twilights just ahead, it's time to think about reviving the old porch and garden furniture. J. W. H. writes:

DEAR ANNE:

We were careless about storing our metal glider and porch chairs last fall and they are rusty and peeling now. How should we go about refinishing them?

J. W. H., Fairfax

Getting the surface smooth and rust-free is the first step in doing over metal furniture. If it's in very bad shape, take off the old scaly finish with paint and varnish remover. If the peeled spots are only occasional, you can smooth them with sandpaper without bothering to remove the paint, however. Scrub off the rust with sandpaper, wire brush, or steel wool. Be sure to remove every trace or the rust will continue its deviltry even under the new coat of paint.

Next, wash off the surface with water and detergent to remove any greasy matter and the rust dust. Dry thoroughly, then touch up bare spots with enamel undercoat (or screens, fiber porch rugs and the like. If you've stripped it of paint.) For the finishing coat, use exterior enamel. One coat is usually enough, though sometimes, if you're changing colors, two are better.

A new booklet "Get Ready to Relax," just issued by the National Paint, Varnish, and Lacquer Association, gives tips on doing over various types of outdoor furniture, plus screens, fibre porch rugs and the like. If you wish a copy, you can obtain one free by writing Department K of the association, 1500 Rhode Island ave. nw.

DEAR ANNE:

For the reader who was having trouble with paint on a damp basement floor, I suggest she try the new rubber base paint which has been developed specifically for concrete, stone, cinder blocks, etc., when there is a problem of dampness. It comes in all colors and gives a very long-lasting surface that takes heavy wear. Such paint is made in Bethesda and the company may be reached by calling Oliver 8500.

Mrs. H. S., jr., Washington.

DEAR ANNE:

In regard to torn shower curtains, I'd like to advise F. P. of two mending methods, depending on the type of plastic. I have a very heavy plastic curtain that also was torn and found that it mended beautifully by barely overlapping torn edges and pressing with a warm iron under a lightweight piece of cloth until both edges cemented together. It's almost impossible even to find the mend, too.

If this method does not work, then the type of plastic is probably one that can be mended with acetone. This is applied with a small brush only to the very edges to be mended, overlapping the seams slightly. This causes the plastic to sort of melt together. Both methods become permanent.

Mrs. C. A.

DEAR ANNE:

In my home town there was an establishment that had highly specialized equipment for blocking hand-knit garments. Is there such a firm in Washington?

E. S. W., Washington.

A place that does excellent work along this line is located in Silver Spring. The telephone number is Shepherd 2330.

DEAR ANNE:

If the lady who wrote about paint-stained curtains will use equal parts of household ammonia and turpentine to soak the paint, then wash in warm soap suds, she will find paint will be removed and no harm done. I tried this on a chiffon dress and had perfect results.

Mrs. S. H. Pearce, 4108 Garrison st. nw.

Miss Strauss Asks Local Appeal In Women Voters' Program

By Judith Crist

Atlantic City, April 24.—An abbreviated program concentrating on support of the United Nations, expansion of domestic and world economy, and development of a more responsive and efficient Government, was presented today to the biannual convention of the League of Women Voters by Miss Anna Lord Strauss, retiring president.

Emphasizing that "with our long programs of the past we sometimes caused mental indigestion when we intended to be a clarifying force," Miss Strauss urged concentration of effort on a local level.

The program to be considered by almost 1000 delegates from 36 States will be a continued analysis of the Federal budget in relation to a stable and expanding domestic economy, reorganization measures to improve administrative efficiency in the development and use of natural resources, and the expansion of world trade and international economic development with maximum use of United Nations agencies.

During the past six years, Miss Strauss said, the league has had a 90 percent increase in membership, with a present enrollment of 93,090 members

The most important emphasis in the league's activities, Miss Strauss said, should be on a local and State level, through education, as a nonpartisan service group training its members and others for citizen service.

While members of the league have been encouraged to take active roles in the political parties of their choice, she said, officers, board members and the league as an organization have maintained a nonpartisan position throughout the organization's 30 years of existence.

Retiring after 16 years of league work, si xas president of the New York City league and the last six as national president, Miss Strauss today announced publicly for the first time that she is a Republican. She would, she said, like to run for political office, but explained that since she comes from the Thirteenth Assembly District, the only Republican district in Manhattan, competition is keen among Republican candidates.

Israel's Anniversary Celebrated; Mexican Defense Chief Honored

By Marie McNair and Elizabeth Maguire

ISRAEL'S second anniversary of independence was celebrated yesterday at a large reception at the Carlton Hotel with the Ambassador of Israel Eliahu Elath and Mrs. Elath hosts to more than a thousand guests.

Mrs. Elath wore a dark blue lace gown, ankle length with a scarf drapery across the square neck and a white orchid on her shoulder.

Most of the European Chiefs of Mission were there, headed by the Dean of the Diplomatic Corps, Norwegian Ambassador Wilhlem Munthe Morgenstierne, and Mme. Munthe Morgenstierne in a slim black silk suit and tiny white hat. The Polish Ambassador, Joseph Winiewicz, came alone, so did the Finnish Minister, Dr. K. T. Jutila.

Senator and Mrs. Robert Taft held up the stream of guests for a warm greeting by the Ambassador. Passing in quick succession down the line were the British Ambassador and Lady Franks, the Italian Ambassador and Signora Tarchiani, the Ecuador Ambassador and Senora de Dillon, the Icelandic Minister and Mme. Thors.

With the Senate adjourned for the day, Senator and Mrs. Owen Brewster, Senator and Mrs. William Benton, Senator and Mrs. Harry Darby and Senator Hugh Butler came almost in a body. Then there were Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Charles Brannan, Mrs. James Webb, wife of the Under Secretary of State, in mink brown satin; the New Zealand Ambassador and Lady Berendsen; the Swedish Ambassador, Erik Boheman.

Early arrivals and taking early leave were the Indonesian Ambassador and Mme. Sastroamidjojo; Col. and Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, Gen. and Mrs. Gordon Young and Col. and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim.

Mexican Defense Chief Honored at Party

MEXICO'S Secretary of Defense, Lieut. Gen Gilberto R. Limon, and Senora de Limon were feted yesterday at a large reception given by the Ambassador of Mexico and Senora de la Colina. Nearly 400 guests top officials and diplomats attended the party, which was held from 6 to 8 o'clock at the embassy on 16th st.

Pretty blonde Senora de la Colina was in a navy blue cocktail frock of changeable taffeta, and Senora de Limon wore a handsome gown of black lace. With their distinguished husbands, the senoras greeted guests in the small drawing room at the head of the staircase.

Doors of the dining room opened wide to the roof-top terrace, and fat bunches of spring flowers centered the buffet. Along with the usual hors d'oeuvres, there were a variety of dishes, hot and tasty, from south of the border.

General and Mrs. Omar Bradley were in the gathering, as well as the Secretary of the Army and Mrs. Frank Pace, jr.

The Ambassador of Afghanistan and Princess Zohra entertained last evening at a dinner for members of the State Department and embassy staff officers.

Mr. and Mrs. Joel Y. Lund of St. Louis, Mo., were guests in whose honor Maj. Gen. and Mrs. William Howard Arnold entertained last evening at a dinner party. In the company were Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hume Gardner, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Anthony McAuliffe, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Gordon Young, Mrs. Parkman Halsey Clancy, Mrs. James Howard Dallman, and Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hurja.

Gen. and Mrs. Collins Are Dinner Hosts

THE retiring Undersecretary of the Army and Mrs. Tracy S. Voorhees were the guests in whose honor Gen. and Mrs. J. Lawton Collins entertained at dinner last evening at the Shoreham Hotel.

Mrs. Collins

Other guests of the Army Chief of Staff and Mrs. Collins were Assistant Secretary of the Army Archibald S. Alexander, nominated by President Truman yesterday to fill Voorhees' post, and Mrs. Alexander.

Also, Assistant Secretary of the Army and Mrs. Carl R. Bendetson, Gen. and Mrs. Wade Haislip, Lieut. Gen. and Mrs. Alfred M. Gruenther, Lieut. Gen. and Mrs. Matthew B. Ridgeway, Lieut. Gen. (ret.) and Mrs. Robert L. Eichelberger, Maj. Gen. and Mrs Carter B. Magruder, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Edward S. Greenbaum, Robert F. Palmer, Mrs. Mary C. THE Ambassador of Greece and Mme. Dendramis and Senator and Mrs. Robert Taft were among guests who attended a dinner given last evening by Prince and Princess Christian of Hesse at the 1925 F Street Club.

Another guest was Mrs. Mesta, United States Minister to Luxembourg. Also in the gathering were Senator and Mrs. Millard E. Tydings, Gen. and Mrs. Conger Pratt, Admiral and Mrs. Paul Bastedo, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bruguiere, and their house guest, Countess de Rougement, Mrs. Henry Latrobe Roosevelt, and Percy Blair.

Thailand Embassy Opened for Benefit

THE Ambassador of Thailand and Princess Wan Waithayakon opened the newly decorated embassy yesterday for a reception for the benefit of the National Speech Foundation.

Princess Wan

The embassy walls in the drawing room and foyer have been done in pink, the hallway and stairs in orchid tone. Red velvet draperies hang at the long windows.

Princess Wiron, young daughter of the hosts, led the embassy children in a traditional Thai dance and afterward there was tea.

Proceeds of the tea will go to the George Washington University Speech Clinic.

McClellans Give Luncheon for Mrs Mesta

SENATOR and Mrs. John J. McClellan gave a small luncheon yesterday in the Senate dining room for Mrs. Mesta, U. S. Minister to Luxembourg. Among the guests were Senator Walter F. George, Senator Kenneth McKellar, Senator Margaret Chase Smith and Senator Alexander Wiley.

It's wonderful how well you see with a Certified Lamp

AND HERE WE HAVE THE REASONS WHY: First of all, your Certified Lamp directs 60% of its light downward to the work at hand while it sends the other 40% upward to reduce eye-tiring contrast. It boasts a special reflector . . . a wider spread of light . . . banishment of gloom and glare . . . more aid for your eyes . . . much more room-lighting beauty!

From every standpoint, a Certified Lamp (tested to 105 lighting specifications) is downright kindness to your eyes. Try one and SEE!

Formula for Successful Marriage

"A man's wife should be his partner . . . help him get ahead," says this smart young wife of a rising young businessman. "I can't afford to waste my time and energy on unprofitable chores. That's why I send the laundry to MANHATTAN, where it's done quickly, efficiently, and economically, while I keep myself fresh and up-to-the-minute, ready at a moment's notice to help my 'partner' entertain the boss and his wife, or dine with out-of-town clients." For quality laundry or dry cleaning, fast service, reasonable prices, call MANHATTAN, DUpont 1111. Early morning collection and delivery service. (See below.)

4 New Highs Set by S. & L. Associations

By S. Oliver Goodman

Washington savings and loan associations reported new highs in assets, home loans, number of accounts and share investments as of March 31.

Combined resources totaled $326,659,540 at the end of the first three months, according to F. Willson Camp, secretary of the D. C. Building and Loan League. This was a gain of $29,819,504 or 10 percent over March 31, 1949.

Loans outstanding aggregated $331,483,500, up more than 15 million dollars for the 12-month period.

Listed were 240,583 investing and borrowing accounts, Camp said, adding that this was a substantial increase. Share investments soared to a record $326,659,540, as compared with $296,840,036 a year ago.

Reflecting the boom in area home building this year, loans for the first three months nearly doubled those in the same 1949 period. The respective totals were $26,536,180 against $13,374,788. Number of loans was 3458, compared with 2042.

Loans granted in the first quarter of 1950 were the heaviest since the same 1947 period, when the total reached $28,890,000.

DEFICIT ERASED: National Airlines reported net income of $1,043,313 for the three months ended March 31 (third fiscal period), more than wiping out deficits in the first six months of its fiscal year. After all charges, the airline showed a net income of $156,845 for the nine months ended March 31, against a net loss of $108,845 in the comparable 1949 period.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Arthur S. Barrows resigned Undersecretary of the United States Air Force and former president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., has joined Gamble-Skogma Inc. of Minneapolis as full-time consultant in merchandising and operations . . . Patrick J. Daly, formerly Ansco's Washington district manager, has been appointed to a similar post in the New York City branch. Howland Pike has assumed the post of Ansco's Washington district manager of Government sales . . . Roger F. Burkhardt has been named American Airlines' director of reservations and ticket offices.

HONOR: Security Storage Co., Washington, will give a testimonial dinner Thursday night in honor of Charles J. Mattimore, superintendent, and John Burner, in charge of the rug storage department. Both executives are completing this month 25 years of service to the company. The dinner will be held at the Burlington Hotel.

ELEVATED: Lewis M. Parsons has been elected a vice president, director and member of the executive committee of United States Steel Corp. of Delaware. Parsons, who will continue in Washington, formerly was assistant to vice president-sales. Prior to joining United States Steel in 1945, Parsons was associated with Bethlehem from 1919 to 1938 and Jones & Laughlin from 1939 until 1945. He is married and lives at 2101 Connecticut ave.

One on the Aisle—

Is Yours an Agency The U. S. Forgot?

By Richard L. Coe

ANY YOU FEDERAL FOLK had contact with ISSOMHSC—the Inter-Service-State-Office of Medicinal Herbs Security Council?

New Gayetyites made its acquaintance last night and got many a laugh from this spoof on government agencies. It's not a great or totally whammo farce, but for Washingtonians it's got special laughs and it also boasts a slickly farcical performance from Melvyn Douglas and a neat one from Mabel Paige.

The ISSOMHSC is an agency that exists only in the fruity imagination of a newspaperman who creates it to help two old government gals get their own vanished outfit back into the Interior Department after an economy-minded Senater slashed it from the budget. Five and a half years after, as a matter of fact.

Miss Paige and Laura Pierpont had labored since the days of Teddy Roosevelt and Miss Pierpont's late husband to make the Office of Seeds and Standards a public service. When the economy ax killed the bureau, they didn't take it lying down. They used their savings, paid the rent on the office, took in a rhumba teacher, a tailor and boarders to pay for materials and carefully burned their government pay checks. Service to the public was their motto.

With the arrival of Laura's niece comes her former husband, Melvyn Douglas, who decides to get the herb gals back into Interior. This he does with the help of the White House, the French Embassy, a callow ensign and his infuriated uncle, the villainous Senator of the first disaster.

The farce sets the situation in the first act, makes the most of it in the second and tugs it together in the last. Author Samuel Spewack, who knew Washington in the war years, has written funnier lines for his other plays and most Washingtonians will feel he missed a few good busses.

But he does play hob with paper bureaucracy, he has a grand time with the Army-Navy-Air Force-State Department types, the stuffed shirts of the press corps and there are plenty of touches only Federal Diaryites will get.

Douglas and Miss Paige are the best of the cast, both expert farceurs. Three others, Miss Pierpont, Dance Instructor Jane Hoffman, Roland Wood and Servus Bell were in the original company. The rest are fair to indifferent, but future performances should improve some.

You'll find plenty of chuckles in "Two Blind Mice," especially in that second act. And daffy as it all sounds, you may come away thinking about that lost agency and saying "Could be, could be."

Representative Taber of the Appropriations Committee, should get himself down to the Gayety and start dreaming.

"TWO BLIND MICE." Harold Bromley and Eunice Healey present the comedy in three acts by Samuel Spewack. Directed by Melvyn Douglas. At the Gayety Theater.

GOVERNMENT GALS: Laura Pierpont and Mabel Paige as the Government ladies who run the mislaid Office of Seeds and Standards in the comedy, "Two Blind Mice," which opened last night on the Gayety stage at Roosevelt High, gets an extra but final showing tonight at Lisner Auditorium as a Panhellenic Association scholarship benefit . . .To play this extra performance the Lisa Gardiner-Mary Day twin casts drew lots . . . Certain of playing, though, were four showstoppers, the same players in both casts: Elizabeth Marshall, Kathy Amouri, Alice Althouse and Hildegarde Garrett—"Miss Cutten Clup and Her Paper Dolls." . . . One thing the youngsters of the Washington School of the Ballet are pleased about is cool weather: those elegant costumes, say the youngsters, aren't for warm weather.

ANOTHER SET of youngsters is in the midst of active thesping, Rose Robison Cowen's Children's Studio pupils . . . This week they're doing four performances of three plays: "Little Women" Wednesday night; "Beauty is Fled" Thursday and Friday and "Martina and Perez" Saturday afternoon . . . Mrs. Cowen's studios are at 3815 Livingston st.

THAT MARX BROTHERS bill at the Pix, "Duck Soup" and "Animal Crackers" has caught on, holding another day, maybe longer.

"LAST DATE," a short documentary on teen-agers' hot-rods, is a possible entry in the bigtime movie houses . . . This short was made for the Lumberman's Mutual Casualty Co., aimed at dramatizing the cruel fatality rate among young drivers . . . Screened privately, it attracted considerable appreciation.

THE WASHINGTON Theater Alliance, that new organization comprising five local amateur groups, has set Tuesday and Wednesday nights, May 2 and 3, for tryouts for the Alliance's first offering as a unit, Terence Rattigan's "Power Without Glory," to be played June 8, 9, and 10 at Arlington Farms . . . Carl Eardley and Sue Evans will direct . . . Member organizations are: Alexandria Little Theater, Fairlington Players, Falls Church Little Theater, Foundry Methodist Players and the Montgomery Players.

THE MONTGOMERY group, by the way, has another Rattigan play coming up this week, Saturday, "The Winslow Boy," which will be repeated at Leland Junior High next Monday and Tuesday nights . . . Hilary Knapp, once Hilary Eaves of the London stage, but now, by preference, plain housewife of Chevy Chase, is codirecting with Jane Plummer Rice . . . In Mrs. Knapp's photo collection are some shots of her acting with Ralph Richardson in a film, "Thunder in the Air," laid in the same period (1911-13) as "The Winslow Boy." . . . Mrs. Knapp also played with him and Martita Hunt in BBC Shakespearean broadcasts.

'Dakota Lil' Goes Soft For the Law

By Orval Hopkins
Post Reporter

FILM called "Dakota Lil," now at the Columbia, is no better and no worse than the average Western. After all, it's spring—we may as well be nice.

It's about a post-Civil War brigand, Rod Cameron, a lady of crime, Marie Windsor, and a Federal agent, George Montgomery, all trying to outsmart each other about a matter of 100,000 fish. Cameron and a crony play Kid Curry and Butch Cassidy and Miss Windsor plays Dakota Lil. These all were actual people, way back then, but how closely to the facts the tale adhers I couldn't say. Anyway, Montgomery and Cameron beat the whey out of each other and Montgomery wins Miss Windsor, who thereupon faces a presumably short tenure in Leavenworth or some other Government icehouse.

It's All in Color

The picture is done in Cinecolor, the process that leaves everything blue. This weighs heavily on Miss Windsor in particular, lending her a sort of dug-up appearance. At that, she does fairly well with some routine material and sings two-three songs (I assume she was singing. One never knows, unless it's an established singing star, who's singing these days), one of which, "Ecstasy," isn't bad.

Montgomery is what we might call a washout, though his role does get him into the durnedest jam I can recall. As the Fed, he is handcuffed to this crook, who at once picks a fight with him. Montgomery finally knocks the guy cold—and there he is handcuffed to a body and thugs closing in at all sides.

Cameron plays the mean man he's forever playing, only meaner. He carries a riding quirt in this one with which he either belts people across the face or chokes them to death.

There's a deal of second-person Spanish at the beginning of the movie, but I was able to handle it easily on account of I once knew a little Mexican girl in Redwood City, Calif.

A Good Short

There's a very pleasing short subject at the Columbia which features Kitty Kallen and Myron McCormick. It's a simple thing about how a girl gets ahead as a song-singer. Miss Kallen takes care of the songs very nicely. Mc Cormick of course, is an established stage player. We see all too little of him.

The newsreel has some scenes of an Easter egg hunt. Wasn't Easter April 9? And isn't this April 25? Come, come, boys. It also has some shots of Esther Williams surf-riding with Duke Kahanamoku. The narrator mispronounced the Duke's name.

A short based on the song "Shortnin' Bread" is awful, spring or no spring.

"DAKOTA LIL." Twentieth Century-Fox release, produced by Edward L. Alperson. Screen play by Maurice Geraghty from a story by Frank Gruber. Photographed in Cinecolor by Jack Greenhalgh. Music by Dmitri Tiomkin. Directed by Lesley Selander. At the Columbia.

Police Quiz Father in Baby's Death

Alexandria police were questioning a 20-year-old father last night after his two-year-old son died from what appeared to be a severe beating.

The child, Donald Dee Ferranto, died of abdominal hemorrhages and apparently had undergone "a severe beating," said Dr. John A. Sims, Alexandria coroner, after an autopsy.

Held for investigation was the father, Don Ferranto, an electrician, of 110 S. Fayette st., Alexandria.

Police said the child was in a coma when his father took him to Alexandria Hospital at 1 a. m. Sunday. Despite efforts to keep the child alive with oxygen, he died at 2:45 a. m. Sunday.

The hospital called in police after noticing bruises on the child's left cheek and left buttock and what appeared to be teeth marks on both forearms.

Police said Ferranto told them the child toppled from a chair in a coma at about 11 p. m. Saturday and that he tried unsuccessfully for more than an hour to get a doctor to come to the house.

He said his wife, June, 21, arrived home from her job as a waitress at about 1 a. m. and accompanied him with the unconscious child to the hospital.

Ferranto told police that on Sunday, April 16, the child fell from the back seat of an auto to the floor of the car and was sick at his stomach shortly after the incident but showed no other ill effects.

He said also that the boy had fallen from his tricycle sometime during the week and incurred the bruises in this fall. He told police the teethmarks on the child's arms were inflicted by a young cousin with whom the boy had been playing.

'Breakaway' Speeder Guilty on 12 Counts

James B. Marks, 29, of 818 New Jersey ave. nw., was sentenced yesterday in Municipal Court to pay $375 in fines or serve 375 days in jail for 12 traffic charges resulting from a speed chase February 16. Police said they arrested Marks at 2d and E sts. ne., for speeding, but later he eluded them and passed a number of stop signs and traffic lights before he was rearrested.

Two Pianos One Too Much For Iturbis

By Paul Hume

A brother and sister act played to a packed Constitution Hall last night.

Jose and Amparo Iturbi appeared, playing two concert grand pianos. They recalled to mind, with their opening Mozart, the fact that Mozart and his sister once played two pianos in public, though the Mozarts more often concertized as violinist and pianist.

The Iturbis added French, Spanish and American music to their list. Where the music scheduled was not written for two pianos, they made their own arrangements.

The audience enjoyed the Spanish pieces in the first half of the evening enough to win an encore. The playing was seldom inspired and often not even synchronized.

Being a gentleman is fine in many fields, but it has limitations.

Miss Iturbi is not able to stand up to her brother's tone, technique, or style. The lack of balance makes serious defects in two-piano playing. Her brother did wonders in covering up, but certain fundamental requirements exist in the field which could not be met.

The program was monotonous in mood as well as mechanical in delivery. Post-intermission music of no value by J. Clarence Chambers, together with arrangements of Chopin and Gershwin, held few attractions.

Chopin wrote music for two pianos. If he had wanted his solo works played by more than one instrument, it is a safe bet he would have written them that way. Do these arrangements, then, aid the world of music, or is such a question beside the point?

Vepco Fights Loan Effort by Cooperatives

Richmond, Va., April 24 (AP).—Attorneys for the Virginia Electric Power Co. opened a fight today to block financing of a central power generating and distributing cooperative which would supply power to its 11 distributing cooperatives.

At a hearing before the State Corporation Commission, they asked that body to refuse approval of a proposed loan of $14,320,000 from the Rural Electrification Administration in Washington to construct a 30,000 kilowatt steam generating plant and 966 miles of transmission lines.

Applicant is the Old Dominion Electric Cooperative, which is made up of 11 distributing cooperatives. It proposes to assume the $14,320,000 loan, plus other loan authorizations and properties, for a total of $16,391,450.

The $14,320,000 loan already has been approved by the REA in Washington.

T. Justin Moore, counsel for Vepco, charged that all American rural electric cooperatives are governed by a "vast holding company in Washington," centered in the office of Claude Wickard, REA administrator. He charged that Wickard had blocked attempts of Vepco to negotiate with Old Dominion and its member cooperatives. And he asserted that Old Dominion is a "new kind" of cooperative—"a super-cooperative which proposes a super-system."

Mcore alleged that creation of the Old Dominion system would be a duplication of facilities and a waste of money because Vepco has offered to sell Old Dominion and its subsidiaries all the power they need at low rates.

Robert Whitehead, counsel for Old Dominion, contested Vepco's right to participate in the hearing. But Commissioner Ralph T. Catterall said the commission, without passing on the corporation's rights in the case, permitted it to intervene "in order to hear what Vepco has to say."

Fight for Self Rule, Neely Tells NAACP

Senator Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.) last night urged District residents to continue to "work and fight" for self-government, and once that is won "don't give up until you have representation in Congress."

The Senator District Committee chairman made the plea for House passage of the Senate-approved Kefauver home-rule bill as principal speaker at the second annual award dinner of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, District branch, at the National Press Club.

The local NAACP presented citations of "gratitude" to six persons, including Senator Neely, for their contributions in the field of human rights.

Growing Better

Concluding his impromptu remarks to 300 persons, the lawmaker noted the world is growing better every day in race relations.

Dr. Edwin B. Henderson, NAACP vice president, and Mrs. Marie B. Funches, dinner committee chairman, presented citations to:

Alan Barth, editorial writer of The Washington Post, for "outright editorial support on the relief of Cardoza High School, greatly contributing to the effort to make Washington, as the capital of the Nation, the real democratic example before the world."

C. Girard Davidson, assistant secretary of the Interior Department, for "carrying on in the spirit of ideal democracy in which the Interior Department has set a high standard by the maintenance of national parks and facilities for all the American people without discrimination . . ."

Militant Proponents

Ernest F. Harper, former president of the Federation of Civic Associations, for "developing the civic associations, normally concerned with property rights, into militant civil rights proponents . . ."

Phineas Indritz, lawyer and chairman of the civil rights committee of the Washington Chapter of the American Veterans Committee for "the preparation of briefs for the AVC as friend of court in cases before the Supreme Court involving basic civil rights of minorities . . ."

Senator Neely for "masterly leadership" of the Senate District Committee . . . and his "announced intention to make democracy work in the capital of democracy," and

John J. O'Connor, professor of history and philosophy at Georgetown University, for "his perseverence in the fight to extend democracy throughout every area of Catholicism and his honest efforts to bring about the full participation of all citizens in the oldest university in the Nation's Capital . . ."

Students Plan Cleanup 'Blitz' To Open Week

Six houses in southeast Washington will receive new paint jobs next Saturday when 25 Eastern High School students descend on the 1200 block of G st. se. with brushes in hand.

Daniel

The "blitz" at 10 a. m. will open "Clean-up, Fix-up and Paint-up Week" officially proclaimed yesterday by the District Commissioners.

The students will paint the front exteriors of homes from 1204 to 1214 G st. se.

Color photographs of the houses before and after will be displayed at the Home Show to be held at the National Guard Armory May 12 through May 21 under sponsorship of the Home Builders Association of Metropolitan Washington.

Falls Church Council Asks Fast Time

The Falls Church City Council at a meeting last night asked Gov. John S. Battle of Virginia to approve for that community use of daylight saving time effective on the same date that Washington adopts it.

Governor Battle already has granted similar requests by Alexandria and Arlington.

The council also directed Roy F. Dunn, city manager, to notify residents of the Hillwood Square area that the Federal Government has canceled water supply contracts for the area. The cancellation has taken place pending sale of the Hillwood wartime emergency housing project to the Hillwood Square Mutual Association. The council directed Dunn to make water contracts between the city and residents.

Halfway Mark Neared in UJA $2,500,000 Drive

Contributions to the United Jewish Appeal in the Washington area moved closer to the halfway mark in the goal of $2,500,000 last night.

Gifts of $73,975 were recorded at an Allied Medical Professions dinner at the Shoreham Hotel to bring the total thus far to $1,125,000. Doctors of medicine, dentistry, podiatry, and optometry were present. Dr. Samuel Dodek presided.

Rabbi Barnett R. Brickner of Cleveland was the principal speaker.

Sale Talk Denied

N. Y. Probes Rumor About Newspaper

New York, April 24 (AP).—The attorney general of New York State, Nathaniel Goldstein, said today he will investigate "seemingly organized rumors" that the New York Herald Tribune is for sale.

Goldstein acted on the basis of a complaint by the newspaper's management, which flatly denied any change of ownership is in prospect.

The attorney general said he would try to determine whether the rumors "are part of a systematic campaign in violation of the law." Spreading rumors that tend to damage a business organization is a violation of the State business law. The maximum penalty is a year in jail and $5000 fine.

"Pressure by false rumor can become a serious threat not only to the New York Herald Tribune but to any member of the free press," Goldstein said.

Mrs. Helen Rogers Reid, president of the Herald Tribune, conferred with Goldstein today and later issued this statement through his office:

"I have never had nor do I have any intention of selling or attempting to sell the New York Herald Tribune. No one has ever been authorized to engage in any discussions on behalf of the paper looking to its sale, much less to offer it for sale.

"The New York Herald Tribune is operating on a profitable basis as it has continuously for many years. Its daily circulation is at a postwar high. Its advertising exceeds that of 1949.

"It is against this background that seemingly organized rumors, so preposterous as to include the possibility of mergers with other newspapers or even loans from other newspapers, have been circulated."

Doctor Faces Abortion and Bribe Charges

Dr. William A. Goodloe, 53, a practicing physician in the District for 25 years, was arrested last night and charged with committing an abortion and conspiring to bribe a Government witness.

The Negro physician was arrested at 1836 S st. nw., where he makes his home and has his office, by Deputy United States Marshals Edward J. Geraci, Francis McCathran and Edward G. Gummer.

The deputy marshals said Dr. Goodloe is involved in the same case in which an attractive red-haired Washington woman, Alice L. Galusha, 26, was arrested Saturday in Baltimore. Detectives in that city allegedly overheard her try to bribe a witness not to appear against Dr. Goodloe.

Dr. Goodloe was released in $10,000 bond, $5000 on each charge.

He is scheduled to appear this morning before United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence.

It is expected that Miss Galusha, who is employed as an IBM operator in the central payroll office of Peoples Drug Stores and lives at 1343 Clifton st. nw., will be arraigned before Commissioner Lawrence at the same time.

Deputy marshals were sent to Baltimore late yesterday to return her to Washington.

Baltimore police said detectives were hidden in the woman's house when Miss Galusha called Saturday and attempted to persuade the witness not to testify against Dr. Goodloe. When arrested, Miss Galusha had $600 in her purse.

Arlington Plans War on Rats in Dump

The dump rats which have made the Arlington County refuse pile their home are going to be leaving it soon—one way or another.

County officials are afraid that when the new $750,000 incinerator, now under construction on South Eads st., goes into operation in August, the county dump will lose its rat appeal.

Rather than have the rats find new feeding grounds in the county, County Manager A. T. Lundberg and County health officer Dr. Ralph G. Beachley now are working out a program to exterminate the rodents at the dump.

NORTHWEST PARK APARTMENTS

Offers Private Living Similar to Your Own Home

On New Hampshire Ave. Extended, North of University Lane

IMMEDIATE OCCUPANCY

EXAMINE THESE FEATURES. COMPARE THEM WITH OTHER APARTMENTS, AND BE AMAZED!

1. Private entrances, and broad, private terraces for family living, face a whole mile of cool, wooded parkland.

2. Twenty individual, spacious layouts of one, two, and three-bedroom units, some with bedrooms upstairs.

3. An unusual roadway system provides safety for children, with one-way traffic, and brings the car to your own front door.

4. Almost half the units are end units, with sun, air and long views on three sides.

5. Masonry walls between units provide complete soundproofing.

6. Stair-climbing reduced to a minimum, as private entrances (70 percent of total) enter directly at ground level.

Walter Winchell

Lint from a Blue Serge Suit

Bette Davis' movie exploiters are stretching out the difficulties with her estranged spouse until the coincidental title of her next film, "Story of a Divorce," is out of circulation . . . Alyn McLerie, the dancing lovely, resigned from "Where's Charley?" to take one of the leads in Irv Berlin's "Miss Liberty." "La Liberty" retired from the Broadway scene (to tour) while "Charley" is in his 2nd walloping year . . . The Hollywood Reporter had a "love letter" to Ingrid Bergman written by novelist Laurence Stallings. It dwelled on her "greatness" . . . Songstress Nancy Donovan's unphony way won over the reporters assigned to the burglary at her house. Celebs and showfolks invariably inflate the value of the theft to make the headlines. But Nancy said the jools were worth $310 . . . The British critics found our hit, "Detective Story," a dull case.

— Winchell

"The Irreverent Mr. Mencken" should be on your night table. Keeps you amused until the sandman conks you. When Menck edited a magazine this slogan was always in it: "One civilized reader is worth 1000 boneheads" . . . Met opera star Jarmila Novotna wears a monocle with the aplomb of an Eric von Stroheim . . . "The Cocktail Party" has the distinction of being No. 5 on the Best Seller List and a Broadway click at the same time. Eugene O'Neill's "Strange Interlude" accomplished that feat . . .

Billy Rose's song, "I Wanna Be Loved," a flop 15 years ago, is destined for hitdom in the 48 States. Patty Andrews' version (for Decca) is the reason . . . Bob Merrill, Tin Pan Alley's new fair-haired lad, has written three ditties in the past six months: "Bake a Cake," "Candy & Cake" and "It's Written on the Rainbow." After his first two became hits, they altered the name of the last to "The Donut Song" . . . French Communists are oof'ly unhappy. Biggest hit in Paris right now is "Ninotchka" (with Garbo), which kids the bejabbers out of them.

Muriel Starr, who died backstage during a performance of "The Velvet Glove" the other matinee, made over two million dollars acting in Australia, New Zealand and Africa. Then lost most of it in the market . . . Gloria Valberg, who appears in G. B. Shaw's "The Devil's Disciple," has a part-time job behind the counter at the Drama Bookshop on 52nd St. . . . The ex-Mrs. Cyrus McCormick (Dorothea Willard) and T. Hammond, her co-producer of the new play, "The Liar" (due here soon), are an off-stage romance . . . Jeanne Aubert, once a Broadway bright light, now confines her activities to Red Cross work in Paris . . . John Roy Carlson, author of the best sellers, "Under Cover" and "The Plotters" (exposing all the pro-Nazi snakes over here), is doing dramatic criticism for the Armenian press under his real name: Arthur Derounian . . . Anne Jeffreys, the femme lead in the touring "Kiss Me, Kate," can become a bride again, but cannot locate her groom, Robert Serena, unseen for 5 years. She was a war bride.

The Hollywood Reporter's movie critic, in reviewing "Annie Get Your Gun," notes: "Make it a point to catch this picture with an audience." Guess the chap doesn't know we Po' Folks back East don't get private screenings . . . One of the easier-on-the-ear disc-jockeys is the lad conducting the "Moonglow" program from New Orleans. Calls it: "Discs and Data." No show-off stuff. Plays platters with brief ad-libbage that makes sense . . . Art Green, formerly of Manhattan, inherited Barry Gray's spot in Miami Beach. He owns a $5000 foreign car, a lovely home in Coral Gables, a law degree and money to squander. Who sez it doesn't pay to learn how to play the phonograph?

"The Rockinghorse Winner" is being touted as another epic film from overseas. It's the first of D. H. Lawrence's works to be screened . . . London has three fantasies that are going big. "The Lady Purrs" is about a good little cat that turns into a good little girl . . . Nashville, Tenn., is said to be another Tin Pan Alley. The focal point for most of the hill-billy (and folksongs) hits—now a trend in the music biz. Broadway publishers are flocking there to open branches . . . Hemingway won't sell his new novel, "Across the River and Into the Trees," to any studio. He will lease the property on a 10-year deal. Fed up with the Hollywood treatment given to his "To Have and Have Not" . . . Remember Jack London's robust sea saga, "The Sea Wolf"? Well, it's back as a rootin' tootin' Western under the name "Barricade" . . . The polka craze across the land has the band agents choking on their benzedrines.

Those choice down-front seats to "South Pacific" (the gift of Rodgers & Hammerstein) enriched the Runyon fund by $75,000 to date . . . The producers of the cinema version of "Christ in Concrete" (released as "Give Us This Day," which died at the box-office with all those good notices) are issuing it again as "Salt to the Devil" . . . A musical version of "Sherlock Holmes" is winging its way to Groucho Marx. We're in stitches, arreddee! . . . The pretty faces on "Leave It to the Girls" generally heckle their male guests into defeat. But J. K. M. McCaffrey really swatted all of them across their shapely girdles.

The ABC of Psychiatry

Everybody Suffers Emotional Conflicts

These articles are the answer to a question thousands of Americans are asking: "What is psychiatry and what does it mean to me?"

George Thorman, a director of the Children's Bureau of Marion County, Ind., is a veteran reporter of scientific and medical subjects. He prepared these articles in close cooperation with the National Mental Health Foundation.

The articles are a condensation of "Toward Mental Health."

By George Thorman

CHAPTER TWO

None of us is perfectly balanced. All of us are subject to emotional conflicts to some extent.

Neurosis is one of the most common forms of emotional disorder. About one out of 10 of us suffers from such disorders because of an underlying conflict. Most of these conflicts go on inside us without our knowing they are there.

Here are the other names of neurosis; uphappiness, tensions, anxieties, fears we cannot account for, ailments that have no bodily basis.

The psychiatrist helps us look back of these fears, anxieties, tensions. He shows us how they are connected with earlier experiences; helps us settle our emotional conflicts. Freed of tension, we are able to solve our problems.

Sometimes not only are emotions disturbed, but the mind becomes confused and the whole personality is changed.

These more serious types of illness which affect the mental life are called psychoses—a medical term for what we sometimes improperly call "insanity."

The psychoses account for a much smaller number of persons who need psychiatric treatment. But because they are more easily recognized and more dramatic they are sometimes better known.

Top Man in Office

We are all more or less subject to changes in mood. One week we feel on top of the world. The next week we hit a slump.

When these changes become extreme, doctors regard it as a serious form of mental illness called manic-depressive psychosis. George is an example of a person who is suffering from this illness.

Most of George's friends and business associates thought he was a hard worker who never knew a day of worry in his life. He had impressed them as one of those successful people with enough energy for three persons.

He did quite well—had the highest salary in his office. Still he wasn't satisfied. Success only spurred him on to greater efforts.

He began to spend his money lavishly—bought a large house, sank most of his money in a risky investment. He became more and more excited and was in such a state that he couldn't sleep or eat.

Then George began slowly to change. He was no longer sure of his business judgment, stayed away from his office, sat staring into space for hours. He said that he would surely lose his job, blamed himself for having brought ruin to his family, cried out to God to spare his soul.

It was in this state of depression that he sat home all day, afraid to go to the office, afraid the telephone would ring.

Causes Undetermined

Doctors are not sure about the causes of these cases of extreme moodiness.

Some cases seem to be brought on by grief or some emotional crisis. Others are not. But the reason for such an illness seems to be fairly clear.

These persons become depressed because they feel they are not attaining the goal they have set for themselves. Most of them are ambitious. They are too anxious to achieve success, and they often set their ideal far above what they can accomplish.

When they find themselves falling short of their ideal, they plunge into the depths of despair.

Sometimes the illness may be due to childish emotional bond to father or mother which the individual wants to break, but somehow cannot.

At the same time that these persons want to have parental affection and guidance, they yearn for freedom from emotional ties and harbor a deep-seated resentment against those to whom they are closely bound. They are torn by intense inner conflict and turmoil.

Danger of Suicide

Some of these depressed people are potential suicides. Many of the stories you read in the newspaper about someone who committed suicide because of disappointment in love or financial failure are about persons who are really mentally ill.

They could have recovered and lived useful lives if their relatives had recognized their illness and placed them under treatment in time.

Many families make the mistake of thinking that the patient will "snap out of it." Melancholy persons cannot be cheered up, jollied out of their moods, or reasoned with.

As soon as symptoms of moodiness are recognized, consult your physician. He may suggest psychiatric advice. If the symptoms are so severe that there is danger of suicide, adequate precautions must be taken.

The psychiatrist will give advice on this point and can help the family physician and the patient's relatives make proper provisions for care and treatment.

He will know whether institutional care is needed or desirable. The family should assume responsibility for seeking and following professional advice.

$15,000 Bonds Set for Pair In Safe Case

Bonds totaling $15,000 each were set yesterday by U. S. Commissioner C. S. Lawrence on Richard R. (Tex) Baker and Hampton R. Lackey on housebreaking charges. The cases were continued to May 9.

Baker, once proprietor of a prosperous restaurant here, and Lackey were arrested Sunday after they allegedly blew two safes. Total loot, police said, was only $12, and the pair dropped that in flight.

Commissioner Lawrence set $10,000 bond for each man on one of the housebreaking charges, which covered the alleged break-in and safeblowing at the Washington Supply Wine and Liquor Co., 500 K st. nw. The $5000 bond for each was set for the alleged break-in at the Albert M. Briggs meat market at 506 K st. nw. They allegedly made their way through the market basement to the liquor place.

The men were arrested after a police scout car crew saw them fleeing from an ally behind the stores. Baker is awaiting a new trial on an arson conspiracy charge growing out of a fire at his restaurant. The first trial of the case last month resulted in a mistrial.

Radio in Review

A Producer Fears TV Stereotyping

By John Crosby

FRED COE, one of the more thoughtful and fertile minds in television, unburdened himself the other day of a few reflections on TV's dramatic programs. Coe has produced the Philco Theater for quite awhile now, has recently added the Chevrolet Theater to his responsibilities and is a sort of free-wheeling idea man around the NBC television network.

Dramatic shows on television, Coe concedes, have shown tremendous improvement in the past two years but, he points out, there are perils ahead. "Television," he remarks sadly, "is letting its experimenters die."

Radio, he says, fell into the easiest rut it could find; it learned how to get a laugh and stayed right there. "But radio had a few people like Corwin and Oboler and Orson Welles who worked in a sort of isolation. Some of their shows were never sponsored but they were allowed to experiment and they contributed something to the entire medium. But television, with its huge casts and expensive equipment, can hardly afford to experiment."

The Movies Tried It

COE SAYS he fears that programs like "Studio One" and Philco will become stereotyped and quit trying to do anything unusual, to keep their Hoopers high. Hollywood, he points out, makes enough money out of its box-office attractions to afford its big prestige pictures. But television can't, he believes, afford such luxuries.

Right here, I'd like to interrupt Mr. Coe a moment to disagree with some violence. It is my belief that television's dramatic shows can't afford not to experiment, that stereotypes will drive the Hoopers down, not up, and that, even more dangerously, stereotypes may have the ultimate effect of driving a large share of the audience away from TV permanently just as the picture industry has permanently lost some 50 million Americans as movie customers by the same tactics.

Let's let Mr. Coe resume. Coe has discovered that some big Broadway hits—"Dinner At Eight," for example—are not nearly so successful on television as some of Broadway's biggest flops, "The Story of Mary Surratt," for example. In the latter case, cutting the play down to an hour helped it immeasurably, whereas "Dinner At Eight" had to be condensed to such a degree there was no room for character development.

In general, well-written plays without any fat on them are seriously harmed by adaptation; wordy plays, on the other hand, are greatly improved.

All producers now, says Coe, are running short on plays available for television. Philco's policy this year has been to produce almost anything except plays—short stories, novels, one-act plays, some of which are far more striking and original on television than Broadway's finest dramas.

Dave Read a Book

TELEVISION, of course, devours material at a fearful rate, so that everyone connected with a dramatic show has to read constantly in search of new dramas. Coe is greatly amused when people ask if he ever has time to read. He reads incessantly.

In this respect, television producers differ markedly from Hollywood producers who rarely, if ever, read much more than a synopsis of the books they film. (One exception to this rule was David Selznick, who is generally credited with having read "Gone With The Wind" from cover to cover before buying it, a demonstration of culture which left his colleagues open-mouthed with astonishment.)

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Bill Is on the Horns of A Dilemma

Way back on February 21 of this year, I ran an item announcing I was getting out of the "plug" business.

Various civic and religious organizations are constantly holding dances, bake sales, bazaars and similar affairs, and it's up to the newspapers of the community to publicize these events whenever possible.

Unfortunately, we found that there was too much duplication in our efforts. Some affairs were being mentioned in the news columns, on the society pages, in this column and in other departments, while other events failed to get into print even once.

Our space is too precious for that sort of wasteful duplication, so it was decided I would run no more "plugs." Publicity chairmen were invited to send their announcements to the Club Editor, the P-TA Editor, the Church Editor, or the City Editor.

But since February 21, I've gotten a number of such announcements anyhow, and I've had to write countless letters explaining why I couldn't use them. In self-defense, I finally had the composing room run off some reprints of the original article. Much as I hate to say "no," there's not much alternative.

And you've no idea how much anguish this new policy has caused me. For example, the Eleventh Precinct Pistol Club is holding its Spring Dance in the Coral Hills Ballroom tomorrow night. The cops at No. 11 are friends of mine. They're crack shots. Besides, nobody in his right mind says "no" to a policeman.

But according to the rules, I can't even mention that tickets are $1.20 including tax, or that Tiny Meeker's orchestra will supply the music. See what I mean?

WISECRACKS MAKE STRANGE BEDFELLOWS

Gretchen Hood of 1226 Fairmont st. nw. wonders who it was that first said: "Politics is the science of broken promises."

Another good version is: "Politics is the art of making impossible promises to people who don't really expect you to keep them."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Three-month-old housebroken male kitten; likes children; will deliver in Arlington." (Owens 8810.)

"Nice cat and three kittens; we're going back to Holland." (Georgia 1505.)

"Three darling white kittens, two black ones, and two sandy tigers." (Warfield 8955.)

"Housebroken 1-year-old smallish dog; his mother was a cocker." (Temple 7400, extension 8291.)

"Three cute 6-week-old male kittens." (Johnson 3-5907.)

PERSONAL NOTES

Mrs. Marion Haberman, 1223 Missouri ave. nw.: Quite a few of the comic strip artists try to tie their plots to current events. Humphrey Pennyworth is going to swim the channel; Steve Canyon and Terry Lee are both fighting communism in the Far East; Rex Morgan crusades against quackery in the search for a cure for cancer; and of course Ozark Ike slugs home runs and makes one-handed catches from April to October.

HOW LAZY CAN YOU GET?

It was early Sunday morning, and I was in Dreamland, having a wonderful time.

Then all of a sudden war was declared, an H-bomb exploded and the end of the world was at hand.

I buried my head under the pillow, but the din and confusion pursued me. So, in desperation, I stumbled to the window to see what was going on.

I was greatly relieved to find the world still more or less intact. True enough, the Sunday morning calm of our neighborhood had been irreparably fractured by the blasting of the horn of a waiting taxi, and pajama-clad figures were peering out of windows all up and down the block. But in due course a man emerged from a nearby apartment, suitcase in hand. He entered the cab; it drove away; and all was peace again.

As every motorist knows, it is against the law to sound an auto horn except as a warning of impending emergency.

I am surprised that a cab driver, with his professional familiarity with the traffic code, would be guilty of such a breach. Most of Washington's hackers are unusually courteous and intelligent.

I can understand the bad manners of the fresh kid who honks his jalopy horn instead of going up to the porch to ring the doorbell. He's not quite dry behind the ears yet. But what's a grownup's excuse for rudeness?

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

I have a number of games which I have outgrown, and also a doll—all in good condition. Would you please tell me where these things can be put to good use? Della Rovner

You bet I can. Take your gifts to the W st. entrance of Children's Hospital. As soon as you've entered the building, turn sharp right into the Public Relations Office. Your toys will help the time pass more quickly for some shut-in child who is not as lucky as you and I.

MARK TRAIL — By Ed Dodd

BEFORE SNOW WING DISCOVERS HIM, THE WEASEL HAS DESTROYED THREE OF HER FIVE EGGS!
THEN, STRAINING HER WEAKENED WINGS, SNOW WING RUSHES TO DRIVE HIM OFF!
HE SKILLFULLY AVOIDS HER FLASHING WINGS AND TAKES UP A SAFE POSITION NEAR HER NEST..
HERE HE WAITS, KNOWING FULL WELL SNOW WING MUST AGAIN LEAVE HER NEST OR STARVE!

Negro High Cadets To Drill Today

About 900 District high school cadets will hold the annual drill competition today at 1 p. m. in Brooks Stadium, O st. between 1st and 3d sts. nw., Col. H. O. Atwood, military instructor, announced yesterday.

The cadets represent the District's four Negro high school battalions.

Refugee Woman Dies After Reaching U. S.

Baltimore, April 24 (AP).—A 74-year-old great-grandmother from Lithuania, a wandering refugee for nine years, died here today a month after she finally found safety in the United States.

Mrs. Marija Sauka fled with her husband and members of her family when Russian armies entered her native country almost a decade ago. For the last four years they had been in Bavaria, trying to get to the United States.

Members of the family conjectured that her great relief at finding refuge at last was too much for the aged woman. She was never ill during their wanderings.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Conflict in War Views Cited

By Drew Pearson

Speaking off-the-record to a civilian orientation conference last week, Secretary of Defense Johnson dramatically declared: "We know — and I say we know — that Russia does not plan to conquer the United States by force or war. She intends to do it by driving us into economic collapse which will give the Communists an opportunity by infiltration to take over."

Johnson

Johnson went on to explain that Russia doesn't have the resources to attack the United States, but will try to bluff us into bankruptcy instead. He also added: "There is complete agreement in the Defense Department as to what the danger is and what we need to meet that danger."

This "complete agreement" did not seem to be borne out, however, by Gen. Omar Bradley, who squirmed uneasily when put on the spot about Johnson's remarks. As chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Bradley was asked why the United States should worry about attack if Johnson's diagnosis was right.

Generals Disagree

"I have talked to the Secretary about this matter," fumbled Bradley. "What I think the Secretary meant is that Russia won't be prepared to wage war for three months, six months or possibly a year or even longer."

When it came the Navy's turn, Admiral Forrest Sherman, Chief of Naval Operations, gloomily remarked: "The evidence of the last couple of weeks would indicate that all is not peace and harmony abroad in the world."

Most outspoken dissenter was Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, Air Force Chief of Staff, who warned that American air strength is lagging behind Russia in many categories.

Despite this, the Secretary of Defense was insistent that the real danger from Russia is not armed aggression but economic collapse.

"I want to state specifically that I am not a candidate for President," he said, obviously in reply to the whispers of ardent Trumanites. "I am for Truman, and I am doing my job the way Truman would want it done. So reports that I am not getting along with Truman are just malicious."

But the main point that stood out during Johnson's talk to civilian executives was: he intends to hold the line on economy.

Peculiar RFC Loan

Shocked Senators spoke up in plain words at a closed meeting of the committee investigating the strange 15-million-dollar Reconstruction Finance Corporation loan to the Texmass Petroleum Co.

After thorough Senator Bill Fulbright spilled the facts about the bailing out of Massachusetts insurance companies by the RFC, Senator Paul Douglas, a temperate Quaker, said wryly:

"After hearing his evidence, it seems to me the loan policy of the RFC is clear. First, it must be a big loan, and second, it must be a bad one."

Some of the unusual circumstances laid before the Senators at this executive session are:

1. The loan was okayed by a minority of RFC directors despite the fact that a confidential report by an RFC top review committee attacked it in stinging phrases.

2. In its prospectus to the Securities and Exchange Commission, Texmass said its vice president, controller and director would be Allen E. Freeze. The interesting fact is that Freeze is the assistant controller of the RFC. And though he sat in on conferences involving the loan to Texmass, he is now slated to be vice president of the company benefiting by the loan.

3. The promoter of Texmass is a colorful Texan, Homer Snowden, who made news last Christmas by exhibiting the Nativity in neon lights on his Dallas lawn.

4. Eighty percent of the RFC loan would be used to bail out creditors, including Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co., John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co., Republic Steel Corp., and banks in Wichita, Kans., Dallas and Boston.

5. The Securities and Exchange Commission was so sour on the project that it would not approve the securities until Texmass inserted in its prospectus: "Investors should realize that the company's securities offered hereby are highly speculative, that they have no present value, and that any future value thereof is very remote and is dependent upon future developments of substantial additional oil and gas reserves which cannot be counted upon."

Yet, despite this, the RFC ok'd a loan.
